Doves In Senate Score A Victory

Cambodia Proposal Defeated

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Antiwar forces seeking to curb future U.S. actions in Cambodia scored a crucial victory in the Senate today.

They turned back an administration-supported amendment by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., to spell out presidential authority to take whatever action he found necessary to protect U.S. forces in Vietnam.

The roll call vote was 52 to 47. Foes of Byrd's proposal, including Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, charged that it could lead to a second U.S. assault into Cambodia without congressional approval.

PROMPT MOVE

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield moved promptly to seal the victory by offering language to specify that the pending Cooper-Church amendment to restrict U.S. actions in Cambodia after July 1 did nothing to restrict the President's constitutional powers as commander-in-chief.

But Mansfield told the Senate that the President has "unilateral powers" to protect American citizens, including servicemen, "Anywhere in the world." On this basis, he said, the Byrd amendment was not needed.

Mansfield added that the President does not have unilateral power to launch a "continental input of money and men" into one country. He said the Byrd amendment would give Nixon "authorization in advance" for a "broad and indefinite undertaking" wtihout any check by Congress.

BYRD AMENDMENT

The vote on Byrd's amendment came after the West Virginia Democrat was blocked in a last-minute effort to "sweeten" his amendment to attract additional support.

Byrd's proviso would have permitted a new incursion into Cambodia after U.S. troops are withdrawn if Nixon deemed it necessary to protect U.S. forces in South Vietnam or being withdrawn from there.

RULERS URGE PEACE

Battles, Tourist Threat In Jordan

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reports of renewed and heavy fighting in Amman reached Beirut today, contradicting claims by the Jordanian government that the bloody civil strife in the capital had all but ended.

Palestinian guerrilla sources in Beirut said heavy fighting broke out today, with Jordanian army tanks moving against refugee camps, shelling neighboring streets and the camps themselves.

The source said the main target appeared to be the teeming Wahdat camp, where many guerrilla organizations have their headquarters.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser og Egypt called for an immediate cease-fire between warring army troops and Arab guerrillas in Jordan Thursday night.

Speagink in Cairo, Nasser neutrally urged both sides "to stop this plunge into destruction."

Earlier, King Hussein said the situation in his divided nation was "improving rapidly" after three days of fighting. Amman radio said "normal life has returned completely."

"We shall do our utmost to bridge the gap and bury dissension," the king said in another broadcast appealing for peace. "The members of the armed forces and the guerrillas are our sons."

In a broadcast at noon his Interior Ministry urged all Jordanians to return to work, indicating that there was still considerable disruption.

Most communications links with the Jordanian capital were still out but reports reaching Beirut said about 500 persons were killed or wounded in fighting in Zerka Monday and Amman the following two days.

"It is terrifying in Amman at the moment," a traveler said. "All the shops are closed. Here and there you see some bands of youths, aged perhaps 10 to 15, carrying submachine guns and wearing guerrilla outfits."

The travelers also said an army loudspeaker truck that came to Sweilah, near Amman, to announce a truce was fired upon by guerrillas. They said guerrillas controlled all roadblocks inside Amman but the army controlled the roads to the capital.

In the course of the civil strife Wednesday, guerrillas killed a U.S. military attache in front of his wife and two children and held 14 Americans and 18 other foreigners hostage in the Amman Intercontinental Hotel. Two of the Americans, both newsmen, escaped.

Twenty-two foreigners were reported taken hostage Wednesday night at the Philadelphia Hotel in Amman. The new hostages included two West Germans—a journalist and a businessman. The nationalities of the 20 others were not immediately known.

The Palestinian guerrillas holding the hostages threatened today to blow up the Intercontinental and Philadelphia hotels unless the Jordanian army stops shelling refugee camps in and around Amman.

Mill Valley Loses Bid To Annex 110 Acres

Mill Valley lost its bid last night to annex the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center by a 3-2 vote of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission. (Another commission story, page 10.)

The annexation was opposed by Tiburon, which has plans of its own to annex the area, and three special districts which would lose tax revenue.

There was strong support during a three-hour hearing from property owners in the annexation area, 110 acres east of Highway 101 between Reed Boulevard and Ricardo Road.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. moved for denial saying such action wouldn't be "closing the barn door" and Mill Valley could reapply after working out accommodations with the three special districts.

Arrigoni and Commissioner Roy Farrington Jones voted for denial and Commissioners Louis H. Baar and J. Wayne Womack voted against denial, creating a 2-2 vote. Chairman Hugh G. Marchant then voted for denial, breaking the tie.

Tiburon's application wasn't before the commission last night, but Councilman Branwell D. Fanning said it was in preparation and would include the entire Strawberry area, not merely the shopping center.

Commissioners weighed the financial impact that annexation would have on the Strawberry Recreation District, Richardson Bay Sanitary District and Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District, which serve the shopping center.

Annexation would cut 5 to 6 per cent of the tax base from the sanitary district, 6 to 7 per cent from the fire district and 15 per cent from the recreation district.

Bumper Strips In Today's I-J

An orange and black bumper strip which is inserted today in all home-delivered I-J's may win readers daily cash prizes and a chance for a luxury trip for two to Hawaii in the I-J's new LUCKY LICENSE fun game which starts Monday.

Readers may enter simply by placing the bumper strip near the rear license plate.

An I-J roving photographer will be taking pictures in all communities of cars with I-J bumper strips. Winning licenses will be published daily for an 18-day period, Monday through July 4. Each daily winner will receive $15 in cash and automatically qualify for the grand prize drawing for the trip to Hawaii. The license numbers will appear in a special Lucky License format which may be found by turning each day to "Where To Find It", the Table of contents on the I-J front page.

The grand prize winner will fly via Western Airlines and will visit three islands, staying at Sheraton luxury hotels, the Sheraton Kauai, Sheraton Maui and Princess Kaiulani. Bumper strips will also be available at I-J offices in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato and Petaluma for those who may have missed the one in today's paper or who may wish extra strips for other cars.

Johnson Has Change Of Heart About Post

Nathaniel Johnson, who resigned last week as president of the Sausalito School District board, announced last night he has decided to keep his board post.

Johnson electrified an audience of 300 persons attending graduation ceremonies at Martin Luther King School when he told them: "I'm not quitting; I rescind my resignation."

The audience applauded and cheered wildly as Johnson explained that "five years ago I made a commitment to this school district and these children and I am not letting anybody turn me around."

The board president who, with trustees C. Gerald Clear and James E. Muldoon, quit the board after the successful June 2 recall of trustees David E. Freedheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith, told the Independent-Journal his change of heart came last weekend.

"I did a lot of thinking," he said, "and I have come to the conclusion that the issue is not just Marin City Sausalito anymore; it is whether integrated schools are going to survive in this Bay Area."

In taking back his seat, Johnson pleaded with all residents of the conflict-ridden district to "unite and lay down their arms and start working for the good of these kids."

Johnson's resignation would have been effective today.

He told the I-J he plans to call a meeting of the district board, which includes newly-elected Trustees Jerry L. Whitcomb and Delta Christ, "soon," but could not specify a date.

The board has not met since May 4, when Freedheim, Clear and Muldoon voted to fire Sidney F. Walton Jr., King principal.

Merchants Suing City On Sandbags

A group of Sausalito businessmen today filed suit in Marin Superior Court asking for a writ of mandate to force the Sausalito City Council to remove sandbags on a two-block portion of Bridgeway.

Thirteen owners and operators of stores on Bridgeway between Anchor and Princess streets claim that the sandbags are a public nuisance and are damaging their business.

They also said that they intrude into the public right-of-way three feet on each side of the street.

The council ordered the bags installed on May 25 for a three-month trial period in an effort to improve "looks and cleanliness."

Merchants who brought the suit were Harold Hobbs, Gene Hiller, Fred Saebel, Frederick S. Mayer, Jon Waycott, Gerald Olson, Joyce M. Curry, Ruby Cullinan, Dorothy Fritter, Richard E. Mackes, Rosemary Russell, Wayne Hauner and Harold Puharich.

They are represented by attorney Gordon C. Wright of San Francisco.

Assembly Votes Check Of Vote-Count Setups

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly voted 55-0 to give the secretary of state authority to review in advance computer vote counting plans of county clerks.

Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, said the legislation was needed "to prevent the debacle of Fresno" again at the November general election. Computer problems delayed counting of ballots in the June 2 election in Fresno County until late Friday.

Higher Water Rates Loom In Two Areas

Southern and Central Marin residents may be paying 25 per cent more for water by the end of the year if the Marin Municipal Water District board adopts the recommendation of Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger. (Other water district stories, page 23.)

Seeger told the board yesterday that if the district carries out planned improvements during the 1970-71 fiscal year it will result in a $726,484 deficit.

He said the 25 per cent rate increase would bring in an additional $1 million.

The water district's last rate increase was 15 per cent in 1965.

Seeger also asked the board to consider calling five separate bond elections in the next 20 years to finance a $21,533,600 improvement program and the district's $30,378,000 share of the Russian River water plan.

The reason for having five elections instead of one, he said, is that it is impossible to estimate increasing construction costs and interest rates. In addition, staggering the elections over a period of years would allow the district to review its needs depending upon increases in water demand and population.

Seeger suggested the first bond election be held in November to ask for $4 million for the first stage of the Marin aqueduct for the Russian River water plan, a $7.5 million for the improvement program.

Subsequent elections, according to Seeger's proposal, would ask for $15 million for the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct next year; $3.5 million for the second stage of the Marin aqueduct and $3 million for improvements in June, 1974; another $8 million for the third stage of the aqueduct and $4.5 million for improvements in June, 1976, and $6.5 million for improvements sometime after 1985.

The board, which did not discuss the proposals yesterday, will consider them at its next meeting June 30.

Alexander Kerensky, Russ Premier In 1917, Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Kerensky, Socialist premier of Russia briefly before Lenin's Bolsheviks took power in 1917, died today. He was 89.

Death came at St. Luke's Hospital.

Kerensky, who headed Russia for 3½ months before losing out to the Bolsheviks, had been hospitalized since April.

He leaves two sons, Oleg, of London, and Gleb, of Southport, both in England.

Nearly blind and ailing in recent years, Kerensky nevertheless cherished a hope that he could return to the Soviet Union and was optimistic that the Russians could eventually "begin to breathe without fear."

But the Soviet government never indicated a desire to have Kerensky back and he made no real effort to return.

Kerensky had lived for a quarter of a century in the upper East Side town house of a friend, Mrs. Kenneth Simpson.

He moved there after the death in Australia in 1944 of his second wife, the former Lidia Therese Tritton, daughter of an Australian industrialist. His first wife, Olga, had divorced him in Paris some years earlier.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Atlantic Reunion Set

OSLO (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl's wife says she is flying to America next week to board a yacht that will meet her husband and his papyrus boat in the Atlantic.

Mrs. Heyerdahl told the newspaper Aftenposten she will leave her home in Italy June 16 and fly via New York to the West Indies. She said she will board the Danish sailing yacht Ring Anderse at Barbados or Antigua.

A Swedish television crew has chartered the yacht to film the last part of Heyerdahl's voyage from Africa to America in the RA II.

Heyerdahl and his seven-man crew left Morocco May 17 and have passed the Cape Verde islands. The reed boat is reported to have averaged 65 miles a day for the last six days, and all aboard are reported in fine shape.

Red Spaceship Silent

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum observatory said today that it had received no radio signals from the Soviet spaceship Soyuz 9 for 24 hours. But it said the satellite did not appear to be in trouble and that the silence was probably related to experiments being carried out by its two-man crew.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the two cosmonauts had completed their work program for their 10th day of flight, were in good condition and were having a rest.

Want GIs To Stay

A high-ranking West German source said his government was pressing other European NATO members to make a joint payment to the United States to help defray the cost of keeping 300,000 troops in Europe.

The source indicated that the idea was still in its infant stage, with nothing decided as to what nations might participate or how much they might put up.

Anti-U.S. Campaign

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo police say they have tips extreme leftists plan to bomb embassies , government buildings and U.S. military bases and to kidnap diplomats in an attempt to force the Japanese government to scrap the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

The treaty, signed in Washington Jan. 19, 1960, will be extended automatically June 23.

The police said they had mobilized 70,00 men to guard U.S. and other foreign facilities in Tokyo. They said they would increase this security force to 20,000 men, half the city's police force, in the next two weeks to combat 50,000 leftists expected to demonstrate against the treaty.

Yanks Leave Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Several hundred Libyans stood silent today as the American flag came slowly down for the last time at Wheelus Air Base and a Libyan band played the Star Spangled Banner.

Then they applauded and cheered as the green, black and red flag of Libya rose briskly to the top of the pole to the roar of a 21-gun salute.

The ceremony ended 16 years of U.S. Air Force operations at Wheelus, the last major American military base in Africa. Forty-five minutes later, the 47 American airmen who handed over the huge facility had left for West Germany to get new assignments.

Russ Boast Of Wheat

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet farmers have sowed 101.7 million acres of wheat so far this year, exceeding the government's spring quota by 4 per cent, Tass reported today.

The official Soviet news agency said a third of the area designated for spring crops is devoted to wheat.

Tass also said that "the plan of sowing sunflower and cotton seeds has been overfulfilled" and that more than 704,000 acres of irrigated land are taken up by rice.

Quake Near Chile?

NEW YORK (AP) — A "fairly strong" earthquake, probably off the coast of Chile, was recorded on the Fordham University seismograph early today the university reported.

The Rev. Joseph Lynch, director of the Fordham Seismic Observatory, said the first shock was recorded at 3:13 a.m., EDT, and a second at 3:22.

He gave the location as 4,300 miles south of here, probably off Chile.

Rousselot Wins 53-Vote Margin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Rousselot, former congressman and former national publicist for the John Birch Society, won the Republican nomination for the 24th Congressional District by 53 votes, it was announced Wednesday night.

Ray Lee, Los Angeles County registrar - recorder completed his tally of returns from the two-county district — a tally delayed eight days after the June 2 primary because of damaged computer punchard ballots.

Final returns from Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties showed Rousselot with 30,622 votes against 30,569 for his closest opponent, Dr. William McColl, a West Covina orthopedic surgeon and former Stanford University and professional football star.

Mormon Youth Aid Black Church

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)— Mormon teens have responded to criticism of their church's Negro policy by raising more than $33,000 to aid the local Church of God in Christ, a black congregation.

A banquet Wednesday night climaxed "Operation Good Samaritan," which started when Bishop M. A. Givens Jr. asked officials if the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints for help in completing his congregation's Deliverance Temple.

"I may disagree with some of your teachings," Bishop Givens told 200 representatives of the two churches, "but that doesn't mean we have to pick up bricks and throw them at each other or that we have to start talking black power."

375 Park Arrests In Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Riot police using nightsticks and a gas-spewing truck broke up a chanting crowd of 500 persons who refused to leave an Isla Vista park after the start of a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Officers reported making 375 arrests Wednesday night and early today.

Numerous witnesses interviewed said between 150 and 200 persons suffered cuts and bruises but that none were in serious condition. A half-dozen were treated in hospitals and most in nearby residences.

Capt. Joel Honey of the Santa Barbara County sheriff's department said there were "quite a lot of student injuries but there were no officers injured that I know of."

The arrest total was the highest since seven straight nights of unrest started last Thursday after 17 persons were indicted in connection with rioting last February in which the Bank of America branch was burned by demonstraters. About 300 had been arrested in the first six nights.

Sherrif's deputies from Santa Barbara and Los Angeles counties along with highway patrolmen charged into the demonstrators and "kicked and clubbed them out of the park," witnesses said.

Witnesses said those arrested included older people who had joined in the protest at Perfect Park against police violence on the preceding six nights and that some taken into custody were women with small children.

"Some of those being arrested were being beaten and kicked. Cops moved in on the longhairs first and dragged them off by their hair," a coed withness said.

R.L.King, Santa Barbara County undersheriff, said of the brutality charges: "We are thoroughly investigating every charge of excessive force that is filed with our office. If there is any proof that an officer used brutality in making an arrest, then he will, of course, be punished."

In a letter to the U.S. Justice Department, 12 faculty members from the adjoining University of California campus said they hold signed complaints from three dozen persons charging officers with forcible entry, brutality, threats, indiscriminate tear gassing and excessive use of force.

Bob Dullea, a Santa Barbara furniture store operator who described himself as being "well past 30" with a son at UCSB, said "it's really shocking. Even people in private homes were being harassed."

Carl Lindros, 35, who said he was a "very establishment stockbroker," said "it's absolutely terrifying. Innocent private citizens are being harassed in their homes."

Saigon To Send Home 86 N. Viet Prisoners

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnam announced today that it will repatriate 86 sick and wounded North Vietnamese prisoners on July 11.

He said 62 soldiers and 24 fishermen captured by South Vietnamese naval units would be returned by sea to North Vietnam.

He said the prisoners would be taken in South Vietnamese naval vessels to a point north of the demilitarized zone, and escorted to shore in three boats of a "humanitarian organization" — presumably the International Red Cross.

Lam made clear that the operation would take place regardless of whether North Vietnam gave its approval. South Vietnam has tried for almost a year to persuade Hanoi to agree to joint arrangements for the return of sick and wounded prisoners.

The North Vietnamese delegation at the peace talks has refused to enter into any such arrangement, but said the Saigon government should release any "patriots" it holds without any conditions or prior agreement.

North Vietnam claims it has no troops fighting in the South, and Hanoi spokesmen have earlier qualified the Saigon attempts to make arrangements for releasing prisoners as a "trick."

At last week's session, Lam said Saigon was ready to release 343 North Vietnamese prisoners for humanitarian reasons. There was no response from the Hanoi delegation.

Today, Lam no longer sought North Vietnamese approval.

"I now wish to inform the representative of the Hanoi administration of a decision taken by the government of the Republic of Vietnam," he said.

If the initial repatriation is accomplished successfully, Lam said, the other sick and wounded prisoners would be returned by the same method.

If weather conditions on July 11 are unsuitable, the operation will be postponed from day to day until July 16 at the latest.

"During this period, in order to insure the safety of the prisoners of war, the fishermen and the escort personnel, we request the Hanoi administration to refrain from all military activities on the ground, at sea and the air space of the area chosen for the release."

LOUISE THORESON
Held in slaying

Thoresen's Wife Held

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Sheets hung across windows today at the big white stucco and brick house where federal agents joined police in investigating the shooting death of William E. Thoresen III, a millionaire gun collector.

In jail, booked for investigation of murder, was Thoresen's slim, brunette widow, Louise, 33, who ran to a neighbor's home Wednesday saying: "Bill has been shot. Call an ambulance."

The handsome Thoresen, 32, his nude body punctured by two or three pistol bullets in the chest, was found on a bed in a second floor room.

Police Chief H. R. Morton said FBI agents and agents from the U.S. Treasury Department firearms division are "interested in the circumstances."

Fresno police officer Jess Ortiz said 25 2½-pound canisters of marijuana was found in some of numerous boxes and cartons stored in the Thoresen home.

Ortiz said agents also found a white powdery substance believed to be hashish, along with equipment used for marijuana smoking, growing and sifting.

Earlier: 6th graf.

Earlier Police Capt. A. J. Bilbo said the shooting came "as climax to a family quarrel." The Thoresens had started divorce proceedings in Phoenix, Ariz., last year, prior to moving here in November.

Mrs. Thoresen was taken to Valley Medical Hospital before she was jailed, but police would not say whether she had been injured. The Fresno County jail matron said she had no outward signs of injury.

The couple's son, Michael, 8, was on his way to school at the time of the shooting.

Thoresen, who inherited from his grandfather a trust estimated at $70 million, once said he had spent most of it, mainly on his gun collections. His father is president of the Great Western Steel Co., Chicago.

Gun collecting, which Thoresen said had been his hobby since he was 9, led to his conviction in March 1969 on a federal charge of illegal interstate shipment of firearms. The charge followed a 1967 raid on the Thoresens' San Francisco mansion and a warehouse.

Peruvian Mercy Efforts Picking Up Speed As Planes Swarm In

ANTA, Peru (AP) — Earthquake relief operations were slow getting started, but they are moving along now, and a dirt strip at this village in the Huaylas Canyon has become the busiest airport in South America.

From dawn to dusk every day, planes haul food, medicine and other supplies into the canyon from Lima and the port city of Chimbote. They fly out with survivors —injured or unhurt— of the May 31 quake, which killed 50,000 persons.

CARDINAL FLIES IN

Juan Cardinal Landazuri-Ricketts flew to Anta Wednesday to see the relief operation and to comfort the survivors. Officials said his visit was "worth a ton of medicine."

Peruvian authorities reported the third loss of an aircraft in a week of relief flights. The National Information Office said a Peruvian air force helicopter crashed near the town of Cajacay and three persons aboard were killed.

Earlier in the day, an Argentine Fokker F27 with seven persons aboard was reported missing en route from Lima to Anta. Last Saturday an American helicopter flying into the canyon was smashed against a hillside by a strong downdraft. The two crewmen and nine passengers were not injured, but the helicopter was destroyed.

BIG CHOPPER LANDS

One of the big twin-rotor Chinook helicopters sent from the United States made its first flight into the canyon Wednesday, hauling in relief supplies and carrying out stretcher cases to Lima.

Also participating in the airlift are U.S. Air Force C123 transports, Canadian twin-engine Caribou transports, Peruvian air force DC3s, a number of single-engine planes, and helicopters from Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Peru and the United States.

Teams of U.S. Army engineers are in the valley looking for places to open up more airstrips. They built one strip Wednesday by patching up a piece of highway just outside Carhuaz.

CHURCH TOWER LEANS

"I think by tomorrow we'll have light in the plaza and the hospital," he said.

"I cannot tell you enough how much we appreciate what you Americans are doing," he added.

Rivera and his family were at their home at Huaraz when the quake hit. A daughter was buried and died in the rubble.

"I was half buried," said Rivera, "but happily it was not my time to see St. Peter."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Atlantic Reunion Set

OSLO (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl's wife says she is flying to America next week to board a yacht that will meet her husband and his papyrus boat in the Atlantic.

Mrs. Heyerdahl told the newspaper Aftenposten she will leave her home in Italy June 16 and fly via New York to the West Indies. She said she will board the Danish sailing yacht Ring Anderse at Barbados or Antigua.

A Swedish television crew has chartered the yacht to film the last part of Heyerdahl's voyage from Africa to America in the RA II.

Heyerdahl and his seven-man crew left Morocco May 17 and have passed the Cape Verde islands. The reed boat is reported to have averaged 65 miles a day for the last six days, and all aboard are reported in fine shape.

Red Spaceship Silent

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum observatory said today that it had received no radio signals from the Soviet spaceship Soyuz 9 for 24 hours. But it said the satellite did not appear to be in trouble and that the silence was probably related to experiments being carried out by its two-man crew.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the two cosmonauts had completed their work program for their 10th day of flight, were in good condition and were having a rest.

Saigon To Send Home 86 N. Viet Prisoners

CHURCH TOWER LEANS

"I think by tomorrow we'll have light in the plaza and the hospital," he said.

"I cannot tell you enough how much we appreciate what you Americans are doing," he added.

Rivera and his family were at their home at Huaraz when the quake hit. A daughter was buried and died in the rubble.

"I was half buried," said Rivera, "but happily it was not my time to see St. Peter."

Busy Fiscal Evening: Pay Nods, Outlays

Expenditures totaling $960,953 for fiscal 1970-71 were approved last night by the Corte Madera Town Council but only after it first approved a 10 per cent pay hike for four department heads and refused to rehire the town's attorney.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher told the council that its approved expenditures would require a tax rate of $1.18 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a 99-cent rate this year to support a $1 million budget.

Usher added the rate was based on the premise that estimated revenues next year and year end balances this year will total what he has predicted.

NOT INTERESTED

Councilman Robert P. Simmons indicated, however, that he was interested in using some ending balance funds (which would form a reserve in the new budget if not used) to further reduce the tax rate. He said he would continue to press for such action at later meetings.

Usher estimated a carryover from this year amounting to about $167,000 and proposed $145,000 of it as next year's reserve.

Usher explained that by reducing the $145,000 figure and the ending balance of other funds the council could further reduce the tax rate, although he would not advise it for fear of reducing the reserve too much.

Prior to the budget session, the council entered closed session to consider rehiring its attorney, Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch of San Francisco.

SHORT SESSION

After about 20 minutes the councilmen emerged and in a unanimous vote turned thumbs down to the firm's request for $350 a month in retainer fees and $40 an hour for special services.

Immediately after giving the boot to the San Francisco firm, the council, without discussion, unanimously approved hiring attorney Albert Bianchi of San Rafael, who set his retainer fees at $300 a month and special charges from $15 to $40 an hour.

The council then moved on to the only other hurdle to completion of its budget — salary increases for the chief of police, finance director, chief building inspector and director of public works.

With no discussion, Simmons moved that the department chiefs be granted the same 10 per cent increase given other city employees in May. Councilman Holmes S. Norville seconded the motion without comment.

MERIT QUESTION

Councilmen Byron D. White and Harold B. Wagstaff mildly maintained that pay raises for department heads should be analysed and considered separately for merit raised.

Mayor Edward W. Colthurst, who remained silent throughout the discussion voted in favor of the blanket raise, thus acting as the swing vote in the 3-to-2 decision. At no time was a reason given for the council's having postponed this action for a month until last night.

Approved city department expenditure totals for next year are:

Mayor and council, $11,625; town manager, $22,300; town clerk, $20,836; finance, $22,693; law, $7,000; planning, $7,420; non-departmental, $45,331; retirement, $56,206; debt service, $17,083; police, $236,259; fire, $86,896; building inspection, $19,945, and animal control, $3,625.

Engineering and administration of public works, $44,650; streets, $126,462; flood control, $72,000; buildings and landscape, $29,818; town parks, $34,814; library, $51,700; recreation, $23,570; and reserves, $20,000.

The council also approved Sanitary District No. 2's 1970-71 budget which totals $196,863 at a cost to city property owners of 60 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Tape Deck, Tapes, Speakers Are Stolen

A tape deck, tapes and speakers valued at $121 were stolen Monday at the San Rafael High School auto shop parking lot from a car owned by Robert M. Lee Jr., 5 Fairway Drive, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

The car was unlocked with a wire tool and a locked glovebox pried open, police said.

Actor Frank Silvera Dies In Pasadena

Silvera, 56, reportedly had suffered from high blood pressure and had been under a physician's care for the past several months.

Uproar Over GI College Enrollments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says some servicemen, let out of uniform early to go to college, are cheating on the privilege and failing to enroll.

The service is so angry it is threatening to recall the culprits and possibly court-martial them.

As part of its effort to encourage more veterans to take advantage of GI schooling benefits —and ease pressure on the tightening labor market—the Nixon administration has expanded the 10-year-old program allowing a head start of up to 90 days for college-bound veterans to include vocational and technical schools.

But an Army circular suggests some men are using the early out program less to give them a head start on post service education and more as a loophole to early freedom.

"A number of queries from colleges and universities indicate that some servicemen granted early separation to attend school are failing to enroll," the Army circular said, without giving any figures.

"This is a dangerous practice as it can backfire badly for those who obtain educational 'early outs' with the intent not to enroll or to make only a token enrollment."

"It just isn't worth it to lie to leave the Army 90 days early," the Army personnel circular stated.

ANCIENT DC-3 STILL USEFUL

Sailor Held As Suspect In Arson Try

A 29-year-old man who had arrived at the Strawberry Point Tennis Club last evening on a sailboat, was arrested on suspicion of arson after Sheriff's officers found him under the club apparently trying to set it afire.

Sgt. Robert Gaddini said that he went to the club about 7:20 p.m. after receiving a call that there might be a burglary in progress.

Under the building, he found Joseph Benjamin Taten who lives on a houseboat at Waldo Point, crawling along on his hands and knees.

The sergeant also smelled smoke and then saw a pile of straw and kindling placed on a wooden piling, apparently so that when it was ignited the piling and the floor of the clubhouse would catch fire. Matches were found nearby.

Tate denied knowledge of the fire preparation and said that he was looking for a lost houseboat and had come to the club to use the restroom. His 20-foot sailboat was tied up outside.

He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of arson and entering a building with intent to commit a felony and was held in lieu of $3,750 bail. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Driver Accused In Dope Count

Steven Harris Milliken, 19, of Woodacre, was booked at Marin County Jail today on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, Ross police reported.

Police said Milliken's car was stopped at 12:40 a.m. on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard for having no tail lights. The officer saw a pipe in the ashtray and reportedly found it held marijuana or hashish residue. A search of the car produced a variety of bottles containing pills, marijuana and hashish, and a knapsack in the trunk also contained hashish, police said. Report did not indicate the quantity of marijuana involved.

Milliken was held in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Chained To Rails

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) —Five women chained themselves to chairs and rails in the public gallery of the Australian House of Representatives Thursday to protest the arrest of two youths who refused to be drafted into military service. The women chanted anti-draft slogans while police cut the chains and escorted them from the building. All five were released.

Bid Is Accepted To Remodel Ferryboat

Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted 14--to-2 today to accept a $109,350 bid to remodel its new ferryboat which will run between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The bid was more than $29,000 above the $80,000 estimated cost predicted by Phillip Spaulding of Seattle, naval architect. The eight bids ranged to a high of $213,000.

The high cost surprised the directors and two demanded that the award to Triple A Machine Shop of San Francisco be held up until Spaulding had been called in to explain. Against the award were Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco and William R. Lucius of Sonoma. Marin's three directors voted for the go-ahead.

The bridge directors held up a contract for H. Donald White, new transportation manager who will handle district bus and ferry operations. He was hired May 28 for $26,500 a year, but this morning when district attorney Jerome K. White announced that the new transportation manager wants a private car, private office and a private secretary several directors screamed in protest.

Robert E. Gonzales of San Francisco, the only director who voted against the hiring last month, said he had never understood that the new man would have a private car and secretary.

Gonzales moved that the appointment be rescinded.

Stephen Leonoudakis of San Francisco backed Gonzales, but the other directors decided that the whole question of contract for the new man should be referred to the joint transportation and finance committee.

This committee, headed by Joseph E. Sheeks of Marin, will have a special meeting Monday at 9 a.m. to discuss the new contract, meaning White will come to work Monday without a formal contract.

"I feel embarrassed to hire a guy one day and he can't go to work," said Daniel F. Del Carlo of San Francisco. "If he were in my union, goddamnit, he would go to work."

The budget and finance committee will meet at 10:30 a.m. June 19 and a subcommittee of the finance committee will meet 9:30 a.m. Tuesday to discuss wages with the bridge workers.

wrote, published newspapers and lectured in his efforts to promote counterrevolution in Russia.

His Paris-based movement sparked a revolt among Russian sailors in 1921, but he eventually became a lone voice castigating Soviet leaders, with equal venom for Joseph Stalin, whom he had freed from political exile in Siberia, and Leon Trotsky, who was defeated by Stalin in a later power struggle, exiled and murdered.

Stalin and Trotsky were among those behind Lenin when the Bolsheviks routed Kerensky's government in the October revolution in 1917.

Kerensky, a member of the Duma, or parliament, beginning in 1912, had been a part of the revolutionary movement since the Red Sunday massacre of workers in St. Petersburg in 1905, and had become known as a legal defender of those accused of political crimes. After the first 1917 revolution during World War I, Kerensky was elected premier by a new constituent assembly.

Kerensky had tried to inspire Russian soldiers to greater efforts against the Germans, but Lenin pulled Russia out of the European war with the Brest-Litovsk treaty.

While the Bolsheviks did away with the czar and his family and consolidated their power, Kerensky vanished for almost a year. He turned up in London to explain how he had worked for counterrevolution in the Russian villages, then disguised himself as a member of a Serbian military mission to get to Murmansk where the British boat provided his escape.

Several years ago Kerensky received an inscribed copy of the book "Twenty Letters to a Friend," by Svetlana Alliluyeva, Stalin's daughter in exile in this country.

"Spiritually," he commented, "she is more my daughter than his."

House Hunter Finds More Than The Ordinary

An off-duty Monterey policeman, looking for a house to buy in Marin, found more than the usual furnishings in one he was touring in Santa Venetia yesterday afternoon.

Officer Ted Bader said that he went to a house at 807 Rincon Way with a real estate agent, who opened the door with a key when no one answered the knock.

In a bedroom, the officer and his wife found a sleeping man and a bowl and plastic bag of suspected marijuana. Sheriff's deputies were called, and William Talmage Johnson Jr., 22, of 1541 Hill Road, Novato, who said he often was guest in the house, was arrested.

The resident of the home, who arrived later, was not arrested.

There was no report on whether the officer bought the house or not.

Johnson posted $625 bail and was released from Marin County Jail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Panel Urges New School Construction

Tomales Bay School's portable classrooms should be replaced by a new school building and an architect hired by the Shoreline Unified District to study that school and the Bodega Bay School.

So reported the Shoreline citizens building advisory committee last night to the board of trustees, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

The committee suggested that the district hire an architect to review the master plan of the Bodega Bay School and suggest revisions to meet the educational needs of the district, and to assess the present Tomales Bay School with emphasis on altering for its use the permanent usable buildings at the old Tomales High School.

The Shoreline Unified School District board also:

READING — Approved a remedial reading program at Tomales Bay School from June 22 to July 17, the hours to be set.

CONTRACTS — Approved the audio visual services contract with the Marin County superintendent's office for $1.75 per average daily attendance.

INTERNS — Approved contracts with Sonoma State College and Dominican College for teacher interns for the next school year.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations of Diane Kothe, teacher at West Marin School; Mrs. Katherine Kudenov and Carol Holtzman, teacher aides at Tomales elementary and of Prudence Wise, English-French teacher at Tomales High School.

HIRED — Hired Patrick Woodworth at $8,802 for English-French at Tomales High School; Mario Lamort at $8,802 for fourth grade at Tomales Bay; Susan Doss at $6,000 teacher at Tomales Bay; Barbara Eggers at $7,458 at Bodega Bay; Joan Smith at $9,216 at West Marin; Sally Carmona at $7,146 kindergarten at Tomales Bay; David Faw at $6,000, teacher intern at West Marin and Joseph Chiara, Jerroll Sandall and Josephine Pozzi all at $3,400 as teacher aides.

ment, however, did not bring the Senate closer to a showdown vote on the Cooper-Church amendment.

Numerous other modifications were pending.

Byrd called on his colleagues "to stand by our men in Vietnam."

He protested against putting "handcuffs" on the President and preventing him from carrying out his constitutional duties as commander in chief.

Byrd urged the Senate not to limit Nixon's authority to return temporarily to Cambodia "for the protection of the lives of our fighting men in Vietnam."

In the last-minute effort to attract undecided votes, Byrd yesterday tried to change the language of his amendment but could not get unanimous consent.

The modifications would have added the words "in the exercise of his constitutional powers and duties as commander in chief" and "the President is requested to consult with congressional leaders prior to using any United States forces in Cambodia . . ."

Fulbright said the modifications complicated the amendment and added "it's possible to derive from it a greater abdication by the Senate than the original language."

Petaluma Water Board Wary Of Nature Studies

More study will be needed before allowing youngsters to use undeveloped Petaluma Park property for nature study, the Petaluma Water Commission decided yesterday.

Alfred L. Walker, principal of McKinley School, had asked by letter for permission to use the property on Sonoma Mountain Road for field trips to study flora and fauna.

The commission said that large numbers of children may create a health hazard. No restroom facilities are available on the land, the former Lafferty Ranch.

The commission asked Walker to submit more detailed plans for the field trips including the number of children expected to take part and the frequency of the trips.

rected to President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and President Muammar Kadafi of Libya, who had both cabled the king and guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat appealing for an end to the fighting.

Hussein reached cease-fire agreements with Arafat's Al Fatah organization on Tuesday and Wednesday, but it appeared that both the king and the commando leader were being outflanked by extremists.

Arab diplomats in Beirut said the battle continued for so long because Hussein's cousin, Sherif Zeid Ben Shaker, turned it into a blood feud after his sister was killed by a stray bullet.

Ignoring orders from the king, Shaker commanded his armored division to shell Palestinian refugee camps around Amman, the sources said. Guerrillas from the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine—a group to the left of Arafat—then occupied the International Hotel and declared the 32 foreigners hostages "to dramatize the plight and suffering of the Palestinian people."

There was still no indication, however, whether the guerrillas had agreed to curb their operations against Israel from Jordanian territory, as Hussein wants them to do, or whether the fighting this week had forced the monarch to give the Palestinians a free hand.

ANNEX

representing Mill Valley, said virtually all property owners in the area asked the city to annex it.

Several residents of nearby areas opposed the annexation. Mrs. John S. Morton, representing "Citizens versus Annexation," said the Mill Valley proposal was "piecemeal," and Tiburon wasn't ready for annexatin.

Ultimately, she said the area should go to Tiburon, but that city will have to solve some of its basic problems first.

Atty. Wallace S. Myers, representing William H. Dodd, owner of 62 acres of the annexation area, and Jacques Reutlinger, owner of the 71-unit Harbor Vista apartments, said they wanted annexation to Mill Valley.

Atty. David Menary Jr., representing Leon Felton of Mill Valley Volkswagen, said Felton favored annexation because he wanted better police protection.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar said he would be "hard put to deny people their request to the city," but felt Mill Valley had obligations to people in affected special districts, and should work out some arrangements.

Attorney Jordan asserted that the area was within Mill Valley's planned ultimate boundaries, and the city would provide police, fire and sanitary service.

John A. Walters of the Altochardson Bay Fire District Board said annexation would have a "downgrading effect" on that district and the tax rate probably would have to be increased.

He pointed out that the district has two fire stations close to the shopping center, one on Strawberry Peninsula, whereas Mill Valley's main fire station is three miles away.

Mill Valley proposed to serve the area from a new fire station to be constructed in East Mill Valley, but Walters questioned when the new station would be built, saying it was promised five years ago. He said the district has a lower fire insurance rating than Mill Valley.

He described the annexation bid as "part of a ping-pong game for the tax base and revenue of the shopping center."

Fanning said there "was no question," it would be more appropriate to annex the land to Tiburon. "We deliberately don't have a petition before you. We didn't want this to be an 'either-or' battle."

He contended that the Marin County master plan for the Tiburon Peninsula showing the city extending to Highway 101.

John F. Barrows, executive officer of the commission, who recommended against approval, said Highway 101 "still offers the most reasonable boundary btween Tiburon and the city of Mill Valley."

OBITUARIES

Claudia Edenfield Dies At 29

Funeral for Claudia L. Edenfield, of 39 Ethel Avenue, Mill Valley, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Miss Edenfield, 29, died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

A native of Orlando, Fla., she had been a Marin resident 27 years. She last worked as a secretary for Hibernia Bank in San Francisco. She was a graduate of Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Edenfield of the home address, and a sister, Linda Bowman of San Anselmo.

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JAMES BROWN

The body of James Henri Brown, professional actor and resident of Gate 3 in Sausalito, was found yesterday in his minibus, parked at a San Anselmo drive-in restaurant.

The county coroner's office attributed death to natural causes. Brown reportedly had diabetes for two years.

Police said Carmel Dillon, co-owner of Jeep's Drive-In at 7 Mariposa Avenue, reported Brown stopped Monday night for food. His bus was still parked at the drive-in when it closed for the night, but Mrs. Dillon told police Brown frequently left the bus there when visiting friends.

When the drive-in reopened Wednesday morning, employees saw the bus still there and found Brown slumped in the seat.

Brown, who lived on a Sausalito houseboat, was a native of St. Louis, Mo., and had lived in Marin approximately 20 years. He was a member of the Screen Actors Guild and had appeared in Marin County stage roles with the Marin Shakespeare Festival and other Marin theater groups. He played Othello in 1963 and Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1964 with the festival. He also performed with the Tamalpais Valley Players, San Francisco Playhouse and at San Francisco State College.

He also had frequent roles in television series, including "Daktari" and segments of "I Spy" shot in the Bay Area. He played movie roles in "Bullitt" and "Petulia" in recent years. He was a merchant seaman before becoming an actor.

He is survived by three children, October and Noah of Mill Valley and Monise of Terra Linda.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

GLADYS RECTOR

Gladys B. Rector, 81, who had lived in San Rafael for the past three years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She had lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Coleman Sellers at 229 Mount Shasta Drive, San Rafael.

A native of Oakland, she had lived in the Bay Area, Seattle and Fresno. Her husband, the late Howard B. Rector was a pioneer in the automobile industry in San Francisco and Seattle.

She is survived by another daughter, Barbara R. Ackley of Honolulu and three grandchildren.

Funeral and entombment will be Saturday in Fresno.

The Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato was in charge of local arrangements.

CAROLYN CLOUGH

Carolyn B. Clough, 55, of Petaluma, died yesterday at a hospital in San Diego, where she had been visiting relatives.

Mrs. Clough was born and reared in Bakersfield and had lived at 6075 Redwood Highway North, Petaluma, 17 years.

A nurse and laboratory technician, she had been employed at Hillcrest Hospital and by Dr. Angelo Leoni.

She is survived by her husband, Herbert W. Clough; and two daughters, Marcia Garretts of Petaluma and Joleen Whalley of San Diego.

Funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Parent funeral chapel, Petaluma. Burial arrangements are pending.

VERNON DONNELLY

Vernon H. Donnelly, founder of Donnelly Export Co. in San Francisco and a resident of San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital following a long illness. He was 78.

Donnelly, who lived at 7 Wood Street, was a native of Peterboro, Canada. He moved to California in 1931 and to Marin County in 1948 after establishing his auto parts export business.

He is survived by his wife Tyna L. Donnelly of San Rafael, a son, William H. Donnelly of Santa Venetia, and two brothers, Ab and Jack Donnelly of Canada. He is also survived by three grandchildren.

Private funeral was held today at Keaton's Mortuary. Inurnment followed at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

THOMAS HUGHES

Requiem Mass for Thomas E. Hughes of San Francisco, father of Stanley Hughes of San Rafael, will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow at St. James Catholic Church, 1086 Guerrero Street, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Hughes, a retired sign painter, died Tuesday in San Francisco following an illness. He was a lifelong resident of San Francisco and a retired member of Local 510, Pictorial Sign Painters Union.

He is also survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lorraine Clark and Mrs. Carol Parodi; two other sons, Raymond Hughes and Edward Clark, and two sisters, Julie McLaughlin and Josephine Arietta, all of San Francisco; and by 13 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Reilly Company Mortuary, 29th and Dolores streets, San Francisco. The family prefers contributions to the Crippled Children's Foundation.

Peninsula Blast Hits Bay Delta Sewage Proposal

As a result, the sewage that has had only primary treatment might contaminate the Crystal Springs Reservoir along the San Andreas Fault, they said Wednesday.

The risk to the reservoir, which receives Hetch Hetchy Reservoir waters in the Sierra for delivery to San Francisco, was announced by James D. Fitzgerald, a San Mateo County supervisor, at a meeting of 35 persons.

Those at the meeting were urged to write to their legislators opposing Assembly Bill 1310 by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, which would empower the Bay Conservation Commission to implement the Bal-Delta plan.

Sailor Held As Suspect In Arson Try

A 29-year-old man who had arrived at the Strawberry Point Tennis Club last evening on a sailboat, was arrested on suspicion of arson after Sheriff's officers found him under the club apparently trying to set it afire.

Sgt. Robert Gaddini said that he went to the club about 7:20 p.m. after receiving a call that there might be a burglary in progress.

Under the building, he found Joseph Benjamin Taten who lives on a houseboat at Waldo Point, crawling along on his hands and knees.

The sergeant also smelled smoke and then saw a pile of straw and kindling placed on a wooden piling, apparently so that when it was ignited the piling and the floor of the clubhouse would catch fire. Matches were found nearby.

Tate denied knowledge of the fire preparation and said that he was looking for a lost houseboat and had come to the club to use the restroom. His 20-foot sailboat was tied up outside.

He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of arson and entering a building with intent to commit a felony and was held in lieu of $3,750 bail. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Driver Accused In Dope Count

Steven Harris Milliken, 19, of Woodacre, was booked at Marin County Jail today on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, Ross police reported.

Police said Milliken's car was stopped at 12:40 a.m. on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard for having no tail lights. The officer saw a pipe in the ashtray and reportedly found it held marijuana or hashish residue. A search of the car produced a variety of bottles containing pills, marijuana and hashish, and a knapsack in the trunk also contained hashish, police said. Report did not indicate the quantity of marijuana involved.

Milliken was held in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Chained To Rails

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) —Five women chained themselves to chairs and rails in the public gallery of the Australian House of Representatives Thursday to protest the arrest of two youths who refused to be drafted into military service. The women chanted anti-draft slogans while police cut the chains and escorted them from the building. All five were released.

Bid Is Accepted To Remodel Ferryboat

Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted 14--to-2 today to accept a $109,350 bid to remodel its new ferryboat which will run between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The bid was more than $29,000 above the $80,000 estimated cost predicted by Phillip Spaulding of Seattle, naval architect. The eight bids ranged to a high of $213,000.

The high cost surprised the directors and two demanded that the award to Triple A Machine Shop of San Francisco be held up until Spaulding had been called in to explain. Against the award were Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco and William R. Lucius of Sonoma. Marin's three directors voted for the go-ahead.

The bridge directors held up a contract for H. Donald White, new transportation manager who will handle district bus and ferry operations. He was hired May 28 for $26,500 a year, but this morning when district attorney Jerome K. White announced that the new transportation manager wants a private car, private office and a private secretary several directors screamed in protest.

Robert E. Gonzales of San Francisco, the only director who voted against the hiring last month, said he had never understood that the new man would have a private car and secretary.

Gonzales moved that the appointment be rescinded.

Stephen Leonoudakis of San Francisco backed Gonzales, but the other directors decided that the whole question of contract for the new man should be referred to the joint transportation and finance committee.

This committee, headed by Joseph E. Sheeks of Marin, will have a special meeting Monday at 9 a.m. to discuss the new contract, meaning White will come to work Monday without a formal contract.

"I feel embarrassed to hire a guy one day and he can't go to work," said Daniel F. Del Carlo of San Francisco. "If he were in my union, goddamnit, he would go to work."

The budget and finance committee will meet at 10:30 a.m. June 19 and a subcommittee of the finance committee will meet 9:30 a.m. Tuesday to discuss wages with the bridge workers.

rected to President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and President Muammar Kadafi of Libya, who had both cabled the king and guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat appealing for an end to the fighting.

Hussein reached cease-fire agreements with Arafat's Al Fatah organization on Tuesday and Wednesday, but it appeared that both the king and the commando leader were being outflanked by extremists.

Arab diplomats in Beirut said the battle continued for so long because Hussein's cousin, Sherif Zeid Ben Shaker, turned it into a blood feud after his sister was killed by a stray bullet.

Ignoring orders from the king, Shaker commanded his armored division to shell Palestinian refugee camps around Amman, the sources said. Guerrillas from the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine—a group to the left of Arafat—then occupied the International Hotel and declared the 32 foreigners hostages "to dramatize the plight and suffering of the Palestinian people."

There was still no indication, however, whether the guerrillas had agreed to curb their operations against Israel from Jordanian territory, as Hussein wants them to do, or whether the fighting this week had forced the monarch to give the Palestinians a free hand.

ANNEX

representing Mill Valley, said virtually all property owners in the area asked the city to annex it.

Several residents of nearby areas opposed the annexation. Mrs. John S. Morton, representing "Citizens versus Annexation," said the Mill Valley proposal was "piecemeal," and Tiburon wasn't ready for annexatin.

Ultimately, she said the area should go to Tiburon, but that city will have to solve some of its basic problems first.

Atty. Wallace S. Myers, representing William H. Dodd, owner of 62 acres of the annexation area, and Jacques Reutlinger, owner of the 71-unit Harbor Vista apartments, said they wanted annexation to Mill Valley.

Atty. David Menary Jr., representing Leon Felton of Mill Valley Volkswagen, said Felton favored annexation because he wanted better police protection.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar said he would be "hard put to deny people their request to the city," but felt Mill Valley had obligations to people in affected special districts, and should work out some arrangements.

Attorney Jordan asserted that the area was within Mill Valley's planned ultimate boundaries, and the city would provide police, fire and sanitary service.

John A. Walters of the Altochardson Bay Fire District Board said annexation would have a "downgrading effect" on that district and the tax rate probably would have to be increased.

He pointed out that the district has two fire stations close to the shopping center, one on Strawberry Peninsula, whereas Mill Valley's main fire station is three miles away.

Mill Valley proposed to serve the area from a new fire station to be constructed in East Mill Valley, but Walters questioned when the new station would be built, saying it was promised five years ago. He said the district has a lower fire insurance rating than Mill Valley.

He described the annexation bid as "part of a ping-pong game for the tax base and revenue of the shopping center."

Fanning said there "was no question," it would be more appropriate to annex the land to Tiburon. "We deliberately don't have a petition before you. We didn't want this to be an 'either-or' battle."

He contended that the Marin County master plan for the Tiburon Peninsula showing the city extending to Highway 101.

John F. Barrows, executive officer of the commission, who recommended against approval, said Highway 101 "still offers the most reasonable boundary btween Tiburon and the city of Mill Valley."

OBITUARIES

Claudia Edenfield Dies At 29

Funeral for Claudia L. Edenfield, of 39 Ethel Avenue, Mill Valley, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Miss Edenfield, 29, died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

A native of Orlando, Fla., she had been a Marin resident 27 years. She last worked as a secretary for Hibernia Bank in San Francisco. She was a graduate of Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Edenfield of the home address, and a sister, Linda Bowman of San Anselmo.

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JAMES BROWN

The body of James Henri Brown, professional actor and resident of Gate 3 in Sausalito, was found yesterday in his minibus, parked at a San Anselmo drive-in restaurant.

The county coroner's office attributed death to natural causes. Brown reportedly had diabetes for two years.

Police said Carmel Dillon, co-owner of Jeep's Drive-In at 7 Mariposa Avenue, reported Brown stopped Monday night for food. His bus was still parked at the drive-in when it closed for the night, but Mrs. Dillon told police Brown frequently left the bus there when visiting friends.

When the drive-in reopened Wednesday morning, employees saw the bus still there and found Brown slumped in the seat.

Brown, who lived on a Sausalito houseboat, was a native of St. Louis, Mo., and had lived in Marin approximately 20 years. He was a member of the Screen Actors Guild and had appeared in Marin County stage roles with the Marin Shakespeare Festival and other Marin theater groups. He played Othello in 1963 and Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1964 with the festival. He also performed with the Tamalpais Valley Players, San Francisco Playhouse and at San Francisco State College.

He also had frequent roles in television series, including "Daktari" and segments of "I Spy" shot in the Bay Area. He played movie roles in "Bullitt" and "Petulia" in recent years. He was a merchant seaman before becoming an actor.

He is survived by three children, October and Noah of Mill Valley and Monise of Terra Linda.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

GLADYS RECTOR

Gladys B. Rector, 81, who had lived in San Rafael for the past three years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She had lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Coleman Sellers at 229 Mount Shasta Drive, San Rafael.

A native of Oakland, she had lived in the Bay Area, Seattle and Fresno. Her husband, the late Howard B. Rector was a pioneer in the automobile industry in San Francisco and Seattle.

She is survived by another daughter, Barbara R. Ackley of Honolulu and three grandchildren.

Funeral and entombment will be Saturday in Fresno.

The Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato was in charge of local arrangements.

CAROLYN CLOUGH

Carolyn B. Clough, 55, of Petaluma, died yesterday at a hospital in San Diego, where she had been visiting relatives.

Mrs. Clough was born and reared in Bakersfield and had lived at 6075 Redwood Highway North, Petaluma, 17 years.

A nurse and laboratory technician, she had been employed at Hillcrest Hospital and by Dr. Angelo Leoni.

She is survived by her husband, Herbert W. Clough; and two daughters, Marcia Garretts of Petaluma and Joleen Whalley of San Diego.

Funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Parent funeral chapel, Petaluma. Burial arrangements are pending.

VERNON DONNELLY

Vernon H. Donnelly, founder of Donnelly Export Co. in San Francisco and a resident of San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital following a long illness. He was 78.

Donnelly, who lived at 7 Wood Street, was a native of Peterboro, Canada. He moved to California in 1931 and to Marin County in 1948 after establishing his auto parts export business.

He is survived by his wife Tyna L. Donnelly of San Rafael, a son, William H. Donnelly of Santa Venetia, and two brothers, Ab and Jack Donnelly of Canada. He is also survived by three grandchildren.

Private funeral was held today at Keaton's Mortuary. Inurnment followed at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

THOMAS HUGHES

Requiem Mass for Thomas E. Hughes of San Francisco, father of Stanley Hughes of San Rafael, will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow at St. James Catholic Church, 1086 Guerrero Street, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Hughes, a retired sign painter, died Tuesday in San Francisco following an illness. He was a lifelong resident of San Francisco and a retired member of Local 510, Pictorial Sign Painters Union.

He is also survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lorraine Clark and Mrs. Carol Parodi; two other sons, Raymond Hughes and Edward Clark, and two sisters, Julie McLaughlin and Josephine Arietta, all of San Francisco; and by 13 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Reilly Company Mortuary, 29th and Dolores streets, San Francisco. The family prefers contributions to the Crippled Children's Foundation.

Peninsula Blast Hits Bay Delta Sewage Proposal

As a result, the sewage that has had only primary treatment might contaminate the Crystal Springs Reservoir along the San Andreas Fault, they said Wednesday.

The risk to the reservoir, which receives Hetch Hetchy Reservoir waters in the Sierra for delivery to San Francisco, was announced by James D. Fitzgerald, a San Mateo County supervisor, at a meeting of 35 persons.

Those at the meeting were urged to write to their legislators opposing Assembly Bill 1310 by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, which would empower the Bay Conservation Commission to implement the Bal-Delta plan.

West Marin Pleases Doctor Whitt

By GEORGE NEVIN

After a week and a day of practice, Dr. Michael C. Whitt leaned back in his chair at his Point Reyes Station office, stroked his beard and described a feeling shared by many in West Marin.

"There's not enough business for two doctors here and too much for one," he said, his soft accent giving away his Southern background. "At least that's the way people around here characterize it."

The 33-year-old general practitioner admits he took a chance. "I knew the region might not support two doctors, but I let my heart get the best of my head," he said.

Ironically, West Marin didn't have any doctor five months ago — now it has two. Dr. William E. Kaye, 34, set up a general practice in January.

Still, Whitt figures he can make a go of practicing in West Marin or he wouldn't be there.

"The Point Reyes area is bound to get bigger. It can't get much smaller," he said. "And with it my practice will grow. Everyone here talks about The Road (Highway 17) which is coming through. When Point Reyes Station becomes a commuter city, the area will lose a lot of what I came here for."

Until that time, however, at least 10 years away, Whitt thinks there's enough business in West Marin for both doctors.

The conflict between the neeed for urbanization and the simultaneous disadvantages it poses affect Whitt personally: "I want more people to build up my practice to a satisfactory level, but at the same time what brings more patients brings an end to the relaxed, rural living," he said.

Whitt said he feels people in West Marin tend to be "a little apprehensive about beards and long hair" (he has both), but still retain the spirit of the old west and measure a man by his actions.

"I feel the quality of the community is such that people will judge on the basis of ability, not appearance," he said.

After only a week on the job, Whitt says the feeling he most often encounters in his patients is not hositility, not doubt but "a feeling that they're happy to have another doctor." West Marin was without a physician from October until January.

The path that brought Whitt from his native Little Rock, Ark., to the West Marin Medical Center wound past several other career opportunities, any one of which he could have taken.

"At first I was going to be a petroleum engineer. I studied at the universities of Oklahoma and Texas," he related. "Then I came to California and found I loved it. I started attending the University of California at Berkeley, majoring in English and pre-med."

After graduating in 1961, Whitt returned to the University of Texas at Galveston, where he graduated from medical school in 1968.

"All through college I though I wanted to be a psychiatrist," he said. "All my courses slanted that way."

But his internship at Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco changed that. "I found I loved general practice. After doing that for a while I forsook psychiatry, and I'm not sorry I did," he said.

After a transitional phase at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in South San Francisco, Whitt learned of the practice available in Point Reyes Station and jumped at the chance of being a country doctor.

"Unconsciously I had wanted that all the time," he said. "It was just like coming home."

Whitt lives in Inverness with his wife, Barbara, and son, Garrett, 1. "It's really idea. I like to hike' and there's the whole Point Reyes National Seashore to do that. In fact, I first got turned on to living here when I was on a hike in the park," he said.

Whitt said he finds it hard to judge from the first week's activity just how big his practice is going to be. "My answering service isn't working yet, so there's no telling how many night calls I've missed," he said. "It should be on in another day or two."

He regards the enormous distances in West Marin as challenge rather than curse. But one aspect of practicing there bothers him:

"It's a long way to the nearest hospital. If I hospitalize anyone I could spend a lot of my day just traveling in to see him."

But Whitt doesn't think the trip will be necessary very often. "The people out here are pretty hardy. They don't want to go to the hospital unless it's absolutely necessary. And I feel that way, too."

So Whitt's thinking may be closer to the individualism of West Marin and Point Reyes Station than he thought when wondering about the acceptance of a man, beard, long hair and all.

Big Day For Women-- 2 Get General's Stars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The women had their day at the Pentagon today as the heads of the Army Nurse Corps and the WAC received their stars as the first lady generals in history.

There wasn't a sign of male resentment as the Army's top brass watched the formal elevation of Anna Mae Hays of Buffalo, N.Y., chief of the Nurse Corps, and Elizabeth P. Hoisington of Newton, Kan., director of the Women's Army Corps, from colonel to brigadier general. Quite the opposite.

Dozens of male generals applauded as Gen. William C. Westmoreland said, "I hereby establish a new protocol for congratulating lady generals" and kissed Gen. Hays on the cheek.

Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor declared Gens. Hays and Hoisington the "First Ladies of the Army" and said the Army is "putting emphasis on restructuring some of our jobs" to make way for more women at the top levels."

Both women are veterans of long and sometimes difficult and dangerous military service.

Gen. Hays, 50, attended wounded soldiers in the Pusan Perimeter into which retreating American forces were pressed by advancing North Korean troops in 1950.

Gen. Hoisington, 52, won the French Croix de Guerre for being the first uniformed woman to enter Paris five days after its liberation in the summer of 1944.

Argentine Junta 'Hunts' Leader

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)— Armed forces commanders who ousted former President Juan Carlos Ongania Monday night today sought a person of unassailable reputation who will accept the limited presidency they have in mind.

The three-man junta has eight days left of the 10-day period it set itself to select a new president. It must first revise the military government charter of 1966 to devise a system of "co-government" between the military triumvirate and the new president.

The bloodless coup that deposed Ongania after four years in office came off almost without incident. But Wednesday night police were summoned to eject about 600 students from the University of Buenos Aires faculty of letters and philosophy.

New Kidnap Note In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)— Another note from the kidnapers of former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu appeared here today accompanied by personal effects of the victim who was reported "executed" June 1.

The note was found with a wristwatch, a pen and pencil set, a key ring and a medallion of the 5th Infantry Regiment in a bank mailbox on the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

Friends of the Aramburu family said the items were identified by Aramburu's son as belonging to his father.

West Bay Eying Tourism Decline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's tourist business dropped sharply last year, seven per cent below the 1968 level, Jack Podesta, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau has announced.

Podesta blamed the decline on the country's economy but he could not explain why the rest of the nation had a 14 per cent jump in tourism last year.

"The proliferation of hippies and smut peddlers here has affected our image," Podesta told a news conference here Wednesday.

Group Votes No Float For Parade

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association will not enter a float in the Larkspur-Corte Madera Fourth of July parade, the association board decided last night.

Too many association directors will be out of town that weekend, President Herber C. Leney reported.

The board was told Leney was to present the association's annual student achievement award today to the San Clemente School sixth grader judged the best all-round student for the year. The award went to Michael Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martell A. Smith of 10 El Camino Drive, Leney said.

The board also agreed to appear at a Corte Madera budget session to ask that money be included for proposed tennis courts at San Clemente School, to be used under a joint powers agreement between the town and the school district.

Co-Ed Asks Jury Trial On Charge

BERKELEY — A Mill Valley co-ed at the University of California at Berkeley pleaded innocent yesterday in Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court to charges of obstructing a peace officer in the performance of his duty and creating a disturbance on the campus.

Leslie Louis Fabre, 21, of 902 Greenhill Road, was arrested May 28 with 22 others when they tried to attend a private student disciplinary hearing on the campus.

Miss Fabre asked for a jury trial which was set for June 17.

Group Votes No Float For Parade

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association will not enter a float in the Larkspur-Corte Madera Fourth of July parade, the association board decided last night.

Too many association directors will be out of town that weekend, President Herber C. Leney reported.

The board was told Leney was to present the association's annual student achievement award today to the San Clemente School sixth grader judged the best all-round student for the year. The award went to Michael Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martell A. Smith of 10 El Camino Drive, Leney said.

The board also agreed to appear at a Corte Madera budget session to ask that money be included for proposed tennis courts at San Clemente School, to be used under a joint powers agreement between the town and the school district.

Co-Ed Asks Jury Trial On Charge

BERKELEY — A Mill Valley co-ed at the University of California at Berkeley pleaded innocent yesterday in Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court to charges of obstructing a peace officer in the performance of his duty and creating a disturbance on the campus.

Leslie Louis Fabre, 21, of 902 Greenhill Road, was arrested May 28 with 22 others when they tried to attend a private student disciplinary hearing on the campus.

Miss Fabre asked for a jury trial which was set for June 17.

Big Day For Women-- 2 Get General's Stars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The women had their day at the Pentagon today as the heads of the Army Nurse Corps and the WAC received their stars as the first lady generals in history.

There wasn't a sign of male resentment as the Army's top brass watched the formal elevation of Anna Mae Hays of Buffalo, N.Y., chief of the Nurse Corps, and Elizabeth P. Hoisington of Newton, Kan., director of the Women's Army Corps, from colonel to brigadier general. Quite the opposite.

Dozens of male generals applauded as Gen. William C. Westmoreland said, "I hereby establish a new protocol for congratulating lady generals" and kissed Gen. Hays on the cheek.

Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor declared Gens. Hays and Hoisington the "First Ladies of the Army" and said the Army is "putting emphasis on restructuring some of our jobs" to make way for more women at the top levels."

Both women are veterans of long and sometimes difficult and dangerous military service.

Gen. Hays, 50, attended wounded soldiers in the Pusan Perimeter into which retreating American forces were pressed by advancing North Korean troops in 1950.

Gen. Hoisington, 52, won the French Croix de Guerre for being the first uniformed woman to enter Paris five days after its liberation in the summer of 1944.

Argentine Junta 'Hunts' Leader

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Armed forces commanders who ousted former President Juan Carlos Ongania Monday night today sought a person of unassailable reputation who will accept the limited presidency they have in mind.

The three-man junta has eight days left of the 10-day period it set itself to select a new president. It must first revise the military government charter of 1966 to devise a system of "co-government" between the military triumvirate and the new president.

The bloodless coup that deposed Ongania after four years in office came off almost without incident. But Wednesday night police were summoned to eject about 600 students from the University of Buenos Aires faculty of letters and philosophy.

New Kidnap Note In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Another note from the kidnapers of former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu appeared here today accompanied by personal effects of the victim who was reported "executed" June 1.

The note was found with a wristwatch, a pen and pencil set, a key ring and a medallion of the 5th Infantry Regiment in a bank mailbox on the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

Friends of the Aramburu family said the items were identified by Aramburu's son as belonging to his father.

West Bay Eying Tourism Decline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's tourist business dropped sharply last year, seven per cent below the 1968 level, Jack Podesta, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau has announced.

Podesta blamed the decline on the country's economy but he could not explain why the rest of the nation had a 14 per cent jump in tourism last year.

"The proliferation of hippies and smut peddlers here has affected our image," Podesta told a news conference here Wednesday.

BARRAGE BALLOON PROTEST

As a jet roars overhead, William Looney of Berkeley, Mo., near St. Louis' Lambert Municipal Airport, launches a sort of miniature barrage balloon assembly to keep the planes away from his house. Despite warnings from police and the Federal Aviation Administration that he is breaking the law, Looney contends, "If my balloons are too high, their jets are too low." Larkspur Approves Budget, Ups Salaries

Larkspur city councilmen last night adopted a $1,052,203 budget for the coming fiscal year, a budget which gives 10 per cent pay hikes to the city's supervisorial employees, 7.5 per cent increases to the remainder of the city staff and holds the tax rate at $1.26 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council voted 4-0 to adopt the budget after four hours of plowing through the budget item-by-item for a second straight meeting.

The budget is approximately $17,000 more than last year's, but this is expected to be offset by an 11 per cent increase in the city's assessed valuation, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst told the council.

The council deleted only $7,000 from the budget as proposed by Bathurst. The council dropped $5,000 which was earmarked as the beginning of a fund for a new library and scratched $2,000 from the library's proposed $10,500 to be used for purchase of new books.

The salary package will cost the city an additional $55,000 this year, Bathurst said. It grants the city's 14 supervisorial employees, including Bathurst, a 10 per cent hike and mther employees 7.5 per cent. Bathurst told the council that with the expenditure of an additional $6,800, all employees could have a 10 per cent hike, but he indicated that the salary spreads between supervisorial and the other employees would become more realistic under the formula adopted by the council.

Councilman William G. Fleckles at first argued that a 5 per cent across the board increase was enough, but changed his mind when a surplus $16,000 was found in the city's sanitation budget.

The council had not expected to adopt the budget at last night's meeting but did so when it found itself with a balanced budget.

The city's general fund tax rate will be .90 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Special district tax rates which will raise the overall city tax to $1.27 are: drainage, 7 cents; park and recreation, 7 cents; library, 12.5 cents; retirement fund, 9.5 cents.

The council was told last night that the city expects to lose about $10,000 a year in sales tax receipts when the Toyota car agency goes out of business, probably in the fall of this year. That drop in income was included in the proposed budget, Bathurst said.

Bathurst told the council that the 11 per cent expected increase in assessed valuation would net the city approximately $23,000 in revenue for the coming fiscal year.

'Skybus' Transit Plan Given Federal Grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe announced Wednesday an $8.7 million grant for initial engineering for Pittsburgh's controversial "skybus" mass transit proposal.

The system includes the $13.2 million "skybus" network that will connect the downtown "Golden Triangle" with suburban South Hill. The "skybus" is a full-automated, electrically-powered vehicle that can carry more than 100 persons.

Pollution Fuss Swirls In Richmond

By DAVID DIETZ

The scene was a meeting of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board, which had set the session in Richmond City Hall to give representatives of the petro-chemical complex a chance to rebut charges made by residents at a March meeting that the plants were recklessly fouling the Contra Costa air.

Industry, rising in its defense, categorically denied the complaints and gave detailed recital of its antipollution efforts. Then the citizens counterattacked, insisting industry was lax and laying much of the blame at the door of the air pollution district.

In the midst of the argument came the remarks of D. J. Callaghan, chief administrative officer of the district: "The staff believes that some of the general complaints about air quality in the Richmond area are justified." But he added, "All available evidence indicates that the reason for these problems is the concentration of industries with high air pollution potential.

"There is no evidence that these industries have been evading our controls or regularly exceeding legal emission standards."

At the March meeting a parade of speakers had urged a crackdown on the oil and chemical plants, alleging illegal emissions of health-damaging pollutants.

Standard Oil, Northern California's largest refinery, had been a particular target of the critics, one woman alleging that a refinery employee had been instructed to discharge soot from furnaces at night to avoid detection.

Calling the statement "grossly misleading," Lawrence E. Coleman, Standard's staff specialist for air and water conservation, said yesterday the operation, common in refineries, was done "in a legal manner, both during daylight and darkness, but we do not permit it if our neighbors might be adversely affected."

Coleman, insisting Standard was "just as concerned" about air pollution as its critics, said the company has installed $13 million in pollution control facilities in the past 15 years, has 15 employees working full time on environmental protection, was in compliance with tough new state standards before they were adopted last fall and has voluntarily monitored plant emissions with equipment placed in the surrounding community for many years.

He said, however, "We do not deny that there are, on occasion, some objectionable odors in the area surrounding the entire industrial complex. Logic would indicate that some of these odors originate in our refinery."

Board member Nevin K. Hiester observed the problem may stem from emissions from two or more plants mixing in the air and said district regulations didn't cover this. District staff promised a thorough look into the matter.

R. J. King, plant manager for Chevron Chemical Co., said pollution control equipment at that facility accounted for more than 15 per cent of total capital investment.

Rebuttal came from Mrs. Lucretia Edwards of the Contra Costa Shoreline Parks Committee. She told the board that residents lacked confidence in it because of failure to "stand up to industry and prevent us from slow suffocation."

Ralph E. Warner, a legal services attorney representing a group of North Richmond residents, asserted the district's technical advisory committee and advisory council had "seriously watered down" tough new regulations proposed by the district staff. He claimed both groups had strong pro-industry influence.

Warner also urged stiffer rules that would speed up repairs to faulty equipment at plants.

Callaghan refuted charges of lax enforcement by the district, saying Standard Oil had been issued 100 violation notices and Chevron nine notices during a four-year period. Although noting fine provisions were not available until late 1968, he did not say whether such a penalty was sought through the courts by the district for violations after that time or whether the violations — some of them repeaters — had been corrected.

He said staff has proposed assigning more inspectors to the Richmond area next fiscal year to supplement the three already in the area and that two new monitoring stations had been added in the last six months.

In other business, the board adopted a preliminary 1970-71 budget of $1.9 million, up $152,266, largely because of proposed increased enforcement. The spending program would require the maximum district tax rate of 1.3 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, up one-tenth of a cent.

Marin's apportionment under the budget would be $79,144, up $10,000.

James F. Reed, mayor of San Anselmo, was named to the advisory council, one of three new appointees. Reed will fill a vacancy reserved for the public at-large.

Airline Has A Limited Clientele

But more than 40,000 passengers -- nearly all chained and manacled—have ridden in his single-engine, six-passenger planes during the past decade.

Main's business is flying prisoners to prisons. He hauls convicts to and from penal institutions in California and sometimes out of state.

Starting with one plane in Tulare County in 1960, Main's Visalia-based Security Transport, Inc., now employs five pilots and several guards and has contracts for prisoner transportation with 16 counties.

Both pilots and guards are deputized so local lawmen won't have to accompany the flights and Main boasts of only five escapes in 10 years.

The most serious was about two months ago when two prisoners overpowered a pilot in Modesto and embarked on a spree that left one policeman and one prisoner dead. A short time later Main started using guards.

The pilots say they rarely have trouble with prisoners once they are in the air.

"Sure I get hasseled," said one, "but most of them act just like anyone else would on a flight."

He added the worst predicaments come in flights involving patients from the state hospital for the criminally insane at Atascadero, who sometimes go berserk on board.

Local officials say the biggest benefit of the service is in dollar savings.

Wayne Baxter of the San Diego County Sheriff's Department said costs have been cut nearly in half since the county contracted with Security Transport.

"Normally it would take four days round-trip to take prisoners to San Quentin," Baxter said. "Figuring deputies' salaries and expenses it would cost in the neighborhood of $400.

"Now we just take the prisoners out to the airport and turn them over to the pilot, at the end of the month we get a bill."

Tulare County Sheriff Bob Wiley also pointed out the service "leaves our deputies free to work here at home, where the taxpayers pay them to work." He added, "it relieves us of one hell of a lot of responsibility."

Main himself predicts a big future for the air transport of prisoners.

"Sooner or later every prisoner in the nation will be moved by air," he explained, "because that's where the prisons will be —in orbit."

And, he added, "that will be the end of dramatic prison break outs."

Mills Amendment To Tax Gasoline Lead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, announced today he'll amend a grade separation bill to impose a tax on lead in gasoline.

Mills said the lead tax amendment would raise $106 million to be spent building highway overpasses and underpasses at railroad crossings.

Health Council Opposes Bruce's Plan To Drop Well-Baby Clinics

A recommendation by the Marin County administrator that the county health department's well-baby clinic be eliminated was opposed last night by the directors of the Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

The directors unanimously endorsed a statement by a three-member committee that the clinics are essential for a needy segment of the population to receive medical care, president Ray K. Bolinger reported.

The elimination of the clinic program was proposed by County Administrator Alan Bruce in his May 5 report, in which he suggested laying off 31 employees and eliminating three departments in next year's budget.

Last night's report, prepared by Dr. Arthur R. Ablin, a Greenbrae pediatrician; Dorothy Foltz, a public health nurse, and Betty Downs, a mother, stated that money for the program could be saved, Bolinger said, by eliminating from the service families which can afford private medical care.

The directors also approved reducing their own budget for 1970-71 from the previously requested $34,706 to $18,497, Bolinger said. The reduction was made possible by matching federal funds.

Six directors were appointed to the board vacancies with a seventh to be chosen July 8 at 8 p.m. at the Hall of Justice at the Civic Center, Bolinger said.

The new directors include four members of the Marin Health Facilities Planning board that merged with the Comprehensive Health Planning Council this month. They are Benjamin W. Dial of Tiburon; Dr. Carroll A. Russell of San Rafael; Dr. John G. Siemens of Kentfield and Peter Ferrarese.

Also elected were Florence Gardner of San Anselmo, a mother of nine children, and Barbara Coffie of Point Reyes.

Agricultural Smog Proposal To Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation drafted to cut down smog-producing agricultural burning has been passed by the Assembly despite charges by opponents that it merely was "a lot of tinsel."

The bill by Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, went to the Senate on a 56-7 vote.

Financial Firm Takes New Name

After 84 years under the name of Marin County Savings and Loan Association, this San Rafael financial institution will do business as Bell Savings and Loan Association.

Application for the name change was made last March to the State Savings and Loan Commissioner by Marin County Savings and the San Mateo Savings and Loan Association following completion of their merger.

Bell Savings will operate as a wholly owned subsidiary of Pacific Coast Holdings, Inc., a holding company and diversified organization providing services and financial resources to the real estate industry.

J. W. Derryberry of Tiburon who was president of San Mateo Mutual, is president of Bell Savings. Fred S. Enemark, who has been executive vice president of Marin County savings, is executive vice president, manager and a director of Bell.

Rex T. Silvernale of San Rafael and Jack J. Craemer of Greenbrae are directors of the new association.

Under the name of Bell, the new association will maintain offices in San Rafael, San Mateo and Burlingame.

Marin Catholics Spur Peru Relief

Marin Catholic Social Services has established a collection center for items needed by Peruvian earthquake victims at its offices at 179 Los Ranchitos Road.

A spokesman said heavy clothing, blankets, sleeping bags, tents, canned foods and kitchen utensils are needed. The center is located adjacent to the offices' rear parking lot.

U.S. War Deaths Dip, Lowest Since April

SAIGON (UPI) — American battle deaths dropped last week to their lowest level since President Nixon ordered the invasion of Cambodia on May 1, the U.S. Command said Thursday.

In the week ended June 6, 119 American servicemen died and 1,211 were wounded in the Indochina War. This was the lowest total of dead since the week ended April 25, when 94 Americans were killed and 1,291 wounded.

GI Dies In Collision In Petaluma

Police said his car swerved across the center line, colliding with a car driven by James Collison Pruett, 44, of 4381 Middle Two Rock Road, Petaluma. Pruett was admitted to Hillcrest for observation.

Sierra Air Crash Bodies Recovered

MARKLEEVILLE (UPI) — Alpine County sheriff's deputies Wednesday night recovered the bodies of two persons killed when their light plane crashed into Freel Peak on a flight from Fullerton six months ago.

Deputies identified the victims as Jerry Weiss, 35, an employe of a La Habra carpet firm, and Sandra Holland, 26, a buyer for a Los Angeles department store.

U.C. Regents Leak Vote On Davis Hiring

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Regents of the University of California say privately they voted 16-4 against rehiring Angela Davis, a Communist party member, as an assistant professor of philosophy at UCLA. The decision, they say, was based on her public speeches.

The decision to release her from the UCLA faculty was made at a closed-door session of the regents in San Francisco Monday.

In interviews, regents indicated the decision against rehiring Miss Davis was based on a policy statement from the American Association of University Professors. It called, they said, for faculty members to "exercise appropriate restraint in public speeches."

The Santa Monica Evening Outlook said in a copyrighted story that a major factor was an April 22 letter from Dean Franklin P. Rolfe of the UCLA College of Letters and Sciences to Vice Chancellor Davis S. Saxon saying that available funds should go to fill faculty positions with higher priorities.

Pacific Graduates

Five Marin students were graduated last week from the University of Pacific in Stockton. Receiving bachelor's degrees were Francis Huffman of Mill Valley, Richard Edelstein of San Anselmo, Sally Haase and Stephanie E. Vaning of San Rafael and Peter Mathews of Tiburon.

Lockheed Fiscal Aid Wins Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee voted today to grant an administration request for $200 million in contingency funds for the C5 super transport to assist the financially ailing Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

It rejected an amendment by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., to delete the $200 million from the $2 billion military procurement authorization bill.

The fight against the funds, which are in addition to this year's regular authorization for the C5, will be renewed on the Senate floor when the bill is brought up, probably next month.

58-Cent Tax Hike In Mill Valley's Budget?

Mill Valley City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has proposed a $2,182,000 budget for fiscal 1970-71, up from this year's $2,135,880.

If adopted by the city council, the budget would require a tax rate of about $3 per $100 assessed valuation, Cunningham said. This year's tax rate is $2.42.

"The total budget shows only a $36,133 increase over this year, but this is misleading," Cunningham said. "The city will have about $200,000 less gas tax money this year. Exclusive of this figure, the budget has increased about 9.5 per cent."

Cunningham attributes the need for raising taxes to a $38,000 deficit in the parks and recreation department this year, and an $8,000 drainage deficit; both must be absorbed in 1970-71.

The proposed budget includes a 7.5 per cent salary increase for city employees but no provision for more fringe benefits.

About a third of the budget must be raised by general fund taxes, limited by state law to $1 per $100 assessed valuation. Cunningham said next year's tax rate will be at that $1 ceiling, and also at the 30-cent ceiling for the city library.

Budget figures for major city departments for 1970-71, followed by this year's figures in parentheses, are:

Parks and recreation, $340,420 ($210,972); police, $243,361 ($216,669); fire, $205,703 ($165,585); streets, $187,215 ($128,829); sewers, $165,159 ($104,726); library, $137,322 ($140,726).

Debt retirement, $83,833 $84,421); nondepartmental, $74,970 (74,712); planning, $63,661 ($60,446); drainage, $52,300 (79,400); finance, $43,046 ($47,989); city manager, $30,460 ($28,165); general government, $29,799 ($16,679).

Much of the money in the largest departmental budget, parks and recreation, will go toward work on the city's yacht harbor, Cunningham said. The $63,685 total breaks down to $18,500 to Paul Fischer for engineering and professional services under a lease-option agreement; $17,705 for dredging of the Saucelito Canal, and $19,500 for various planning fees.

Capital improvement projects are $52,000 for streets, $27,300 for sewers, $31,700 for drainage, $10,000 for fire mains and $20,000 toward the purchase of a new fire truck, an equal amount to be budgeted next year.

Cunningham said he will present the budget to the city council by the end of the week. "It is $26,000 out of balance, but that is as close as I can make it," he said.

"The council will have to decide where its priorities are to balance it."

This year's budget contains a $50,000 contingency fund, but there is none in 1970-71. "We don't have the money for it," Cunningham said. "It's a luxury we can't afford."

Motorcyclist Critical After Auto Crackup

Police said John A. May, of 376 Sunset Way, was riding his vehicle south on Camino Alto at 12:35 p.m. when a car driven by Lucie B. Mellor, 38, of 241 Solano Street, San Rafael, made a left in front of him at Sycamore Avenue.

Counts On Dismissal Made Public

The Novato School District board yesterday made public charges against Hill Junior High School mathematics teacher Wyman W. Kunzler, who was fired last month.

In a complaint for dismissal filed in Marin Superior Court, the board said that Kunzler "consistently teaches far beyond the comprehension of his students."

Among other things, he taught the "binomial theory" to beginning algebra classes as well as cube roots and he boggled the youngsters with 20-digit multiplication problems, the board charged.

Furthermore, he "discouraged students who failed to meet his unrealistic standards," marked down their grades for misbehavior and finally, he burdened them with his personal problems, the board added.

He was also accused of using physical means to discipline pupils.

Kunzler, who has taught at the school four years, was given notice of dismissal at a closed meeting May 11.

Officials Glum On Outlook For Youths' Summer Jobs

A lot of Marin young people are going to find themselves jobless this summer, Collie Gaines, program coordinator for the Governor's 1970 Summer Job Campaign for Youth, predicted today.

Speaking in a panel discussion on KTIM'S "Marin Sounding Board," she said, "The picture's not very bright and I don't want to paint it that way."

Also discussing the summer job outlook for Marin youth were James E. McKenna of the Marin Neighborhood Youth Corps; Horace White, Marin Human Rights Department youth worker; Norman Harrold, an equal employment opportunity officer at Hamilton Air Force Base; and Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the San Rafael employment office of the state Department of Human Resources Development.

Mrs. Gaines, referring to the number of unemployed Marin youth stated on a recent television program, "I've never tried to think of 2,000 youth looking for jobs. That frightens me when we've only been getting 80 or 90 jobs through EOC (Economic Opportunity Council) in the past."

Mrs. aGines and White complained that the job program doesn't have a chance since it started May 1 instead of Jan. 1, and Ayer added to their gloomy portrayal.

He said that between May 1 and Tuesday, his agency fitted 60 young people to jobs as opposed to 146 during the same period last year. Out of 205 pledges resulting from a television program only 15 have panned out as jobs, he said.

Harrold was in a better position because he had 44 Department of Defense jobs for needy students to offer during the summer. He said most have been filled, but he expects some turnover.

McKenna said the Neighborhood Youth Corps expects to find employment for about 140 at $1.50 per hour for 260 hours through September. Most of these jobs are with government or nonprofit organizations, he said.

White, who seemed as pessimistic as Mrs. Gaines, still plans to join her in hunting summer jobs. "Anyplace we can find a job we'll go," he said.

Asked by moderator Kitty Oppenheimer if the search will be successful he answered, "I hope so, but as you know summer is already here. It's hard to get 500 jobs at this late date."

Asked the same question, Mrs. Gaines replied, "I don't know what successful means in Marin." She charged Marinites are oblivious to the needs of youth, especially businesses.

The discussion will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday on KTIM.

Welfare Slashing Bills Are Advanced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to reduce state welfare spending by $87.4 million through restrictions on eligibility requirements has been approved by a Senate committee.

The two bills are part of the governor's program to revise the welfare system. The measures by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, were sent to the full Senate Wednesday on voice votes by the Health and Welfare Committee.

Unruh Environment Bill Is Scuttled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Jess Unruh's bill to establish a powerful state environmental quality control board was rejected on a 6-1 vote Wednesday by the Assembly Natural Resources Committee.

The measure, a major part of the Democratic gubernatorial nominee's conservation program, would authorize a seven-member board which would have veto power over projects proposed by other state agencies. Board members would be paid $20,000 a year.

Hour Power Blackout Hits West Novato

Electricity was cut off to 1,345 customers in west Novato at 9:10 a.m. today when a truck belonging to Basalt Rock Co., Inc., of McNears Point, San Rafael, broke a pole carrying a 12,000-volt live on Indian Valley Road at the Pacheco Ranch, according to manager Lee C. Wise of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Power was restored to most customers within an hour, he said.

Firemen Seek Raise In Novato

Novato firemen last night asked for pay raises averaging 8 per cent and a reduction in working hours, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

Lt. Raymond E. Dougherty made the request for the Novato Firemen's Association. He compared the Novato fire department with others in Marin County and said this would bring the Novato fire department up to the county average. Kidder reported Novato firemen work 73 hours per week, compared to 70 elsewhere in the county.

The board received notice that final plans were completed for the annual chicken barbecue from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Silviera Ranch on Highway 101 north of Novato.

Sonic Booms Again Tonight

Residents from Santa Venetia to Novato who have been awakened at night by the noise of supersonic planes taking off and returning to Hamilton Air Force Base, will experience the same thing tonight and tomorrow night, base officials reported today.

The 84th fighter interceptor squadron flying its F-106 Delta Darts, is taking part in a five-day exercise testing units of the 26th North American Air Defense Command Region.

The exercise or mock war is carried on late at night and early morning because there are few commercial flights in the air at that time, according to base officials.

Officials Glum On Outlook For Youths' Summer Jobs

A lot of Marin young people are going to find themselves jobless this summer, Collie Gaines, program coordinator for the Governor's 1970 Summer Job Campaign for Youth, predicted today.

Speaking in a panel discussion on KTIM'S "Marin Sounding Board," she said, "The picture's not very bright and I don't want to paint it that way."

Also discussing the summer job outlook for Marin youth were James E. McKenna of the Marin Neighborhood Youth Corps; Horace White, Marin Human Rights Department youth worker; Norman Harrold, an equal employment opportunity officer at Hamilton Air Force Base; and Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the San Rafael employment office of the state Department of Human Resources Development.

Mrs. Gaines, referring to the number of unemployed Marin youth stated on a recent television program, "I've never tried to think of 2,000 youth looking for jobs. That frightens me when we've only been getting 80 or 90 jobs through EOC (Economic Opportunity Council) in the past."

Mrs. aGines and White complained that the job program doesn't have a chance since it started May 1 instead of Jan. 1, and Ayer added to their gloomy portrayal.

He said that between May 1 and Tuesday, his agency fitted 60 young people to jobs as opposed to 146 during the same period last year. Out of 205 pledges resulting from a television program only 15 have panned out as jobs, he said.

Harrold was in a better position because he had 44 Department of Defense jobs for needy students to offer during the summer. He said most have been filled, but he expects some turnover.

McKenna said the Neighborhood Youth Corps expects to find employment for about 140 at $1.50 per hour for 260 hours through September. Most of these jobs are with government or nonprofit organizations, he said.

White, who seemed as pessimistic as Mrs. Gaines, still plans to join her in hunting summer jobs. "Anyplace we can find a job we'll go," he said.

Asked by moderator Kitty Oppenheimer if the search will be successful he answered, "I hope so, but as you know summer is already here. It's hard to get 500 jobs at this late date."

Asked the same question, Mrs. Gaines replied, "I don't know what successful means in Marin." She charged Marinites are oblivious to the needs of youth, especially businesses.

The discussion will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday on KTIM.

Welfare Slashing Bills Are Advanced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to reduce state welfare spending by $87.4 million through restrictions on eligibility requirements has been approved by a Senate committee.

The two bills are part of the governor's program to revise the welfare system. The measures by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, were sent to the full Senate Wednesday on voice votes by the Health and Welfare Committee.

Unruh Environment Bill Is Scuttled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Jess Unruh's bill to establish a powerful state environmental quality control board was rejected on a 6-1 vote Wednesday by the Assembly Natural Resources Committee.

The measure, a major part of the Democratic gubernatorial nominee's conservation program, would authorize a seven-member board which would have veto power over projects proposed by other state agencies. Board members would be paid $20,000 a year.

58-Cent Tax Hike In Mill Valley's Budget?

Mill Valley City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has proposed a $2,182,000 budget for fiscal 1970-71, up from this year's $2,135,880.

If adopted by the city council, the budget would require a tax rate of about $3 per $100 assessed valuation, Cunningham said. This year's tax rate is $2.42.

"The total budget shows only a $36,133 increase over this year, but this is misleading," Cunningham said. "The city will have about $200,000 less gas tax money this year. Exclusive of this figure, the budget has increased about 9.5 per cent."

Cunningham attributes the need for raising taxes to a $38,000 deficit in the parks and recreation department this year, and an $8,000 drainage deficit; both must be absorbed in 1970-71.

The proposed budget includes a 7.5 per cent salary increase for city employees but no provision for more fringe benefits.

About a third of the budget must be raised by general fund taxes, limited by state law to $1 per $100 assessed valuation. Cunningham said next year's tax rate will be at that $1 ceiling, and also at the 30-cent ceiling for the city library.

Budget figures for major city departments for 1970-71, followed by this year's figures in parentheses, are:

Parks and recreation, $340,420 ($210,972); police, $243,361 ($216,669); fire, $205,703 ($165,585); streets, $187,215 ($128,829); sewers, $165,159 ($104,726); library, $137,322 ($140,726).

Debt retirement, $83,833 $84,421); nondepartmental, $74,970 (74,712); planning, $63,661 ($60,446); drainage, $52,300 (79,400); finance, $43,046 ($47,989); city manager, $30,460 ($28,165); general government, $29,799 ($16,679).

Much of the money in the largest departmental budget, parks and recreation, will go toward work on the city's yacht harbor, Cunningham said. The $63,685 total breaks down to $18,500 to Paul Fischer for engineering and professional services under a lease-option agreement; $17,705 for dredging of the Saucelito Canal, and $19,500 for various planning fees.

Capital improvement projects are $52,000 for streets, $27,300 for sewers, $31,700 for drainage, $10,000 for fire mains and $20,000 toward the purchase of a new fire truck, an equal amount to be budgeted next year.

Cunningham said he will present the budget to the city council by the end of the week. "It is $26,000 out of balance, but that is as close as I can make it," he said.

"The council will have to decide where its priorities are to balance it."

This year's budget contains a $50,000 contingency fund, but there is none in 1970-71. "We don't have the money for it," Cunningham said. "It's a luxury we can't afford."

Motorcyclist Critical After Auto Crackup

Police said John A. May, of 376 Sunset Way, was riding his vehicle south on Camino Alto at 12:35 p.m. when a car driven by Lucie B. Mellor, 38, of 241 Solano Street, San Rafael, made a left in front of him at Sycamore Avenue.

Counts On Dismissal Made Public

The Novato School District board yesterday made public charges against Hill Junior High School mathematics teacher Wyman W. Kunzler, who was fired last month.

In a complaint for dismissal filed in Marin Superior Court, the board said that Kunzler "consistently teaches far beyond the comprehension of his students."

Among other things, he taught the "binomial theory" to beginning algebra classes as well as cube roots and he boggled the youngsters with 20-digit multiplication problems, the board charged.

Furthermore, he "discouraged students who failed to meet his unrealistic standards," marked down their grades for misbehavior and finally, he burdened them with his personal problems, the board added.

He was also accused of using physical means to discipline pupils.

Kunzler, who has taught at the school four years, was given notice of dismissal at a closed meeting May 11.

Nixon Continues Loyalists' Switches

WASHINGTON (AP) — New title cards have been dealt to some Nixon administration loyalists, and an outspoken dissident has been fired, in the latest round of executive office shake-ups.

President Nixon announced Wednesday he is switching George P. Shultz, who is making $600,000 a pear as secretary of Labor, to head of a super-agency to handle domestic spending programs.

As leader of the new governmental unit—to be called the Office of Management and Budget, an expanded version of the old Bureau of the Budget—Shultz will keep his Cabinet rank but at only $42,500.

Just last Saturday, Robert H. Finch, accepting a similar salary slash in leaving his $60,000 job as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, became the first Nixon Cabinet member to move elsewhere. Nixon named him to the White House staff as a presidential counselor.

Nixon, who reached into the State Department for Undersecretary Elliot Richardson to succeed Finch at HEW, stayed within the Labor Department in tapping Undersecretary James Hodgson as successor to Shultz.

After the mid-afternoon disclosure of the Shultz switch, word came that James E. Allen, a critic of administration policies ranging from school desegregation to the military move into Cambodia, was fired as commissioner of education.

Finch announced he "asked for and received" the resignation—although the outgoing secretary's statement carried no explanation for the step.

Meanwhile, the U.S. ambassador to Columbia said he was resigning. Wednesay night, Jack Hood Vaughn said in Bogota he has submitted his resignation. But he denied reports of disenchantment with the administration's Latin American position.

In other personnel shuffling Wednesday:

—Caspar Weinberger, current chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, was picked to be deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which starts operations July 1.

--Robert P. Mayo, who has directed the budget agency that will be abolished at the end of the month, was designated as a presidential counselor, but Nixon indicated Mayo will not remain long in government service. The President said Mayo had committed himself to only a brief tour.

Wednesday's revisions were the latest in a series of executive branch personnel changes.

It was learned Tuesday that James J. Gallagher, the government's No 3 education official, resigned with parting shots at federal school policies in general and the administration in particular.

A week earlier, June 3, Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, who complained of political intervention in scientific affairs and faltering White House leadership, was fired as director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

In early May, Anthony J. Moffett Jr. quit as head of the division of students and youth in the Office of Education, accusing the administration of derision of youthful antiwar demonstrators and alienation of youth in general.

Last Feb. 17, Leon E. Panetta resigned as head of HEW's civil rights division. He complained he was forced out, and he accused White House aides of undermining tough enforcement of antidiscrimination laws.

Two Burglary Suspects Jailed

Two San Rafael men were jailed yesterday after San Anselmo police found them at a house where the front door had been forced, San Anselmo police reported.

Police said they stopped the two at 1:33 p.m. as they walked from the porch at 283 Crescent Road, residence of Thomas B. Phinney. Police found the front door had been forced open and an attempt made to pry open a window.

Dennis Victor Chesley, 20, of 1445 Lincoln Avenue, and Robert S. Evans, 22, of 10 Sonoma Street, Apt. 7, were booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary and held in lieu of

Jail Suspended In Petaluma Fray

A felony charge of assault on a police officer was dismissed yesterday against Raymond D. Miner, 19, of Santa Rosa, when he pleaded guilty in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of assault and battery and disturbing the peace.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon sentenced Miner to six months in the Sonoma County Jail, three years on probation and fined him $250. The judge suspended the jail term when Miner said he was in the Army and scheduled to leave for Vietnam on Saturday.

Miner was arrested Saturday after police encountered a jeering crowd while investigating a loud party at 506 West Street, Petaluma. Sgt. Jimmy J. Matthews said Miner attempted to strike him.

Judge Draws Censure By High Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The California Supreme Court Wednesday voted to publicly censure Superior Court Judge Gerald S. Chargin of San Jose for his derogatory remarks about Mexican-Americans.

The action, taken on recommendation of the State Commission on Judicial Qualifications, was the first time in history the high court had publicly censured a judge.

Chargin's remarks were made last September as he sentenced a 17-year-old youth for committing incest with his mentally retarded 15-year-old sister.

The court said the remarks "were insulting to the minor's family, offensive to large segments of the public, and caused widespread expressions of deep concern about the impartial administration of justice in California."

The judicial qualifications commission said in its recommendation to the court that it could find no other incidents of bais in Judge Chargin's career.

The judge told the teen-ager he was "lower than an animal," then added "Mexican people" believe "it's prefectly all right to go out and act like an animal...

"Maybe Hitler was right...." he said. "The animals in our society probably ought to be destroyed, because they have no right to live among human beings."

Hearing Aid Stolen From Parked Truck

A $341 hearing aid was stolen from a pickup truck belonging to Mario Bottini, 2050 Vineyard Road, Novato, between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Monday on C Street at Fourth Street, San Rafael police reported today.

Curb Santa Barbara Oil Rigs, Nixon Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today urged Congress to cancel offshore oil leases in the Santa Barbara Channel to prevent additional blowouts like the one which drenched the area with black crude oil 18 months ago.

The President's proposal would create a "marine sanctuary" seaward from the existing state sanctuary stretching 16 miles along the scenic Santa Barbara coast.

The President said holders of the 20 federal leases should be compensated for their losses with revenue from oil production from the Elk Hills naval petroleum reserve, also located in Southern California.

However, Nixon said to avoid additional oil pollution, "it will be necessary to continue pumping from three leases in the area.

"The oil beneath the channel where the 1969 blowout occurred is contained in a geological formation which was damaged by oil drilling. If not bled off, this high pressure oil would escape through zones of structural weakness causing further pollution."

"The legislation I am proposing would, therefore, allow production on these three leases under strict management controls," he said.

Nixon said in 1955 California banned oil exploration in the Santa Barbara area tidelands controlled by the state. But about 10 years later the federal government authorized drilling in federal controlled waters just outside of the state sanctuary.

The President said his proposal to cancel most of the leases "is based on the belief that immediate economic gains are not the only, or even the major, way of measuring the value of a geographic area.

"The ability of that area to sustain wildlife and its capacity to delight and inspire those who visit it for recreation can be far more important characteristics," Nixon said.

"The proposal for Santa Barbara illustrates our strong commitment to use offshore lands in a balanced, and reasonable manner," he said.

Just last Saturday, Robert H. Finch, accepting a similar salary slash in leaving his $60,000 job as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, became the first Nixon Cabinet member to move elsewhere. Nixon named him to the White House staff as a presidential counselor.

Nixon, who reached into the State Department for Undersecretary Elliot Richardson to succeed Finch at HEW, stayed within the Labor Department in tapping Undersecretary James Hodgson as successor to Shultz.

After the mid-afternoon disclosure of the Shultz switch, word came that James E. Allen, a critic of administration policies ranging from school desegregation to the military move into Cambodia, was fired as commissioner of education.

Finch announced he "asked for and received" the resignation—although the outgoing secretary's statement carried no explanation for the step.

Meanwhile, the U.S. ambassador to Columbia said he was resigning. Wednesay night, Jack Hood Vaughn said in Bogota he has submitted his resignation. But he denied reports of disenchantment with the administration's Latin American position.

In other personnel shuffling Wednesday:

—Caspar Weinberger, current chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, was picked to be deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which starts operations July 1.

--Robert P. Mayo, who has directed the budget agency that will be abolished at the end of the month, was designated as a presidential counselor, but Nixon indicated Mayo will not remain long in government service. The President said Mayo had committed himself to only a brief tour.

Wednesday's revisions were the latest in a series of executive branch personnel changes.

It was learned Tuesday that James J. Gallagher, the government's No 3 education official, resigned with parting shots at federal school policies in general and the administration in particular.

A week earlier, June 3, Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, who complained of political intervention in scientific affairs and faltering White House leadership, was fired as director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

In early May, Anthony J. Moffett Jr. quit as head of the division of students and youth in the Office of Education, accusing the administration of derision of youthful antiwar demonstrators and alienation of youth in general.

Last Feb. 17, Leon E. Panetta resigned as head of HEW's civil rights division. He complained he was forced out, and he accused White House aides of undermining tough enforcement of antidiscrimination laws.

Two Burglary Suspects Jailed

Two San Rafael men were jailed yesterday after San Anselmo police found them at a house where the front door had been forced, San Anselmo police reported.

Police said they stopped the two at 1:33 p.m. as they walked from the porch at 283 Crescent Road, residence of Thomas B. Phinney. Police found the front door had been forced open and an attempt made to pry open a window.

Dennis Victor Chesley, 20, of 1445 Lincoln Avenue, and Robert S. Evans, 22, of 10 Sonoma Street, Apt. 7, were booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary and held in lieu of

Jail Suspended In Petaluma Fray

A felony charge of assault on a police officer was dismissed yesterday against Raymond D. Miner, 19, of Santa Rosa, when he pleaded guilty in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of assault and battery and disturbing the peace.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon sentenced Miner to six months in the Sonoma County Jail, three years on probation and fined him $250. The judge suspended the jail term when Miner said he was in the Army and scheduled to leave for Vietnam on Saturday.

Miner was arrested Saturday after police encountered a jeering crowd while investigating a loud party at 506 West Street, Petaluma. Sgt. Jimmy J. Matthews said Miner attempted to strike him.

Senate Fuss Brews Over Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stepped-up $775 million attack on air pollution has passed the House with great ease, but a fight could be brewing in the Senate over setting nationwide air quality standards.

The three-year extension and expansion of 1967 clean air legislation sailed through the House Wednesday, 374-1, directing that national air quality standards be set. The wide-ranging bill also deals with cars, plants, fuels and planes.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of a Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, said: "We're trying to work out something that would avoid the built-in traps of national standards."

The House bill directs the secretary of health, education and welfare to set national standards 30 days after enactment.

Pollutants to be regulated include sulfur oxides, particulate matter like dust, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and photo chemical oxidants. State could set stricter standards.

Muskie fears national standards could minimize control of air pollutants. He noted metropolitan areas require tougher standards than rural areas.

Under present law, air quality standards for adjoining areas are to be adopted by states on the basis of criteria set by HEW.

The House bill also puts each state in an air quality region. The existing statute directs HEW to establish air quality control regions. Muskie has favored this approach in the past.

House members, however, contend only a few such regions have been established so far under the three-year-old law.

The House bill would set authorized spending for federal air pollution programs, at $200 million a year beginning July 1. The level now is about $93 million to $96 million.

The funds would be increased to $250 million in the second year and $325 million in the last 12-month period. All amounts would be subject to actual appropriations at a later time.

During House debate, the biggest attack was directed toward writing even tougher language relating to automobile emissions. But all efforts to bolster auto standards failed.

Backers of these amendments also complained about the quick scheduling of the bill which, they said, prevented them from raising support for their ideas.

The House measure, in addition to the air quality provisions, also authorizes:

—HEW, after hearings, to stop an additive from being used in fuels if it was found to endanger public health.

—HEW to set emission standards for aircraft to be administered by the Federal Aviation Administration.

—Government facilities to adhere to specified standards unless specific exemptions are provided for such things as national security or public health reasons.

Heroin Deaths Increase Sharply

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heroin deaths in San Francisco have increased from an average of 4 per year to 56 in the past 12 months, Coroner Henry W. Turkel says.

Turkel said Wednesday some merchant seamen or servicemen returning from the Orient have brought back doses too strong for many addicts.

He said also many users who have gone to prison were unable to cope with strong doses after they were released.

Soul Singer Breaks Apartheid Barrier

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—American Negro soul singer Percy Sledge has been granted permission to perform before South African white audiences, impressario Ronnie Quibell said today.

Approval came after some whites had darkened their skins to hear Sledge sing before nonwhite audiences, he said. Sledge will now be booked for a six-month tour of South Africa, Quibell said.

Residents Ask Change In Annexation Ruling

A group of residents of Lucky Drive in Greenbrae wants a change in the ruling that they must annex to the town of Corte Madera in order to join the Corte Madera Sanitary District. (Another commission story, page 1).

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission last October approved annexation of 15 acres along Lucky Drive to the sanitary district on the condition that it be annexed to the town.

Residents now have asked that the condition be lifted and last night commissioners tentatively set July 8 for a public hearing on their request.

Last month property owners voted 11 to 8 against annexation to the town.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission also:

OCEANA MARIN — Approved annexation of Oceana Marin Unit One, about 35 acres, near Dillons Beach, to the North Marin County Water District, so sewer service can be provided the 165 existing homes.

PARADISE DRIVE — Approved annexation of several acres between Paradise Drive and the Koch Luggage plant to the town of Corte Madera.

LARKSPUR — Approved annexation of 2.5 acres along the north side of Corte Madera Creek along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East to the city of Larkspur.

GRANDI ANNEXATION — Approved annexation to San Rafael and the San Rafael Sanitation District, a 2.75-acre parcel owned by Charles Grandi at the end of Glenside Way in the Fairhills area of San Rafael.

NEXT MEETING — Tentatively set its next meeting at 8 p.m. July 8 at the Marin Civic Center.

FBI Chief Promotes Anti-Red Lecture

WASHINGTON (UPI) —William C. Sullivan ,the FBI's top lecturer against the threat of communism, was appointed by director J. Edgar Hoover Wednesday the bureau's no. 3 man.

Sullivan, 58, a native of Bolton, Mass., joined the FBI in 1941 and has been servig as assistant director of the domestic intelligence division.

He will succeed Cartha D. DeLocah ,who is retiring July 20 on his 50th birthday.

Suspect Freed On Weapons Charges

A felony charge of possessing a marlin spike and thong against Michael William Plunkett, 29, of Larkspur, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court for lack of evidence.

Plunkett was arrested during a routine traffic check on March 24 when a sherrif's deputy said he noticed the weapon in the car in which Plunkett was a passenger.

$6 Million Suit Over Kent Death

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The father of 19-year-old Allison Krause, one of four Kent State University students killed during a May 4 confrontation with National Guardsmen, has filed a $6 million wrongful death suit against Ohio officials.

Arthur Krause of Pittsburgh, Pa., filed the suit in U.S. District Court here Wednesday. He named as defendants Gov. James A. Rhodes; the Ohio National Guard commander, Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, and Brig. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury, head of Ohio's Army National Guard units.

Krause charged that the defendants ordered the National Guard to the campus and in so doing "intentionally and maliciously disregarded the lives and safety of students, spectators and passersby, including Allison Krause."

GRADUATION COMES TO STUDENT

Surrounded by classmates and teachers, Bruce E. Yarchin receives his eighth grade diploma at home from Sister Joseph Celine, principal of St. Rita's School, Fairfax. Recent hospitalization kept Bruce from attending graduation, so graduation ceremonies, attended by all but one of his classmates, came to him. Muscular dystrophy has confined Bruce to a wheelchair since second grade, but help of fellow students and teachers and his own determination and cheerfulness enabled him to graduate. "During the eight years he's been at St. Rita's we've never heard him complain once," said Sister Joseph. "He certainly is a good soldier." Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick S. Yarchin, 20 Garden Rock Road, San Anselmo. (Independent-Journal photo)

Corte Madera Shore Park Favored; Where Is Issue

The idea of a 50-acre county park on the Corte Madera bayfront won unanimous endorsement of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

A motion to endorse the concept in principle, made by Albert J. Boro, carried 7 to 0. However, a second motion by Boro, locating the park on the Dominic Muzzi property, created a 4-to-3 split.

If the county board of supervisors approves $100,000 for a Corte Madera bayfront park in the 1970-71 budget, Boro moved that the park and recreation staff should work with Corte Madera toward acquiring 50 acres of the Muzzi property.

In favor were Boro, Leroy M. Gerner, Herber C. Leney, and Raymond Bresnan. Opposed were Chairman Lothar Salin, Melton Ferris and Helen E. Newman.

Ferris objected because the 50-acre park plan is part of Corte Madera's Westshore Plan, which calls for a county park surrounded by private development including motels, townhouses, and marina on the Muzzi property. "It is completely inappropriate to endorse the plan of a private developer which isn't even officially adopted by the Town of Corte Madera," said Ferris.

The major benefit of such a park in the Westshore Plan would go to Corte Madera, said Salin. He argued that the town should pay for at least a part of the cost.

"It isn't wise to tie it down to Corte Madera," observed Mrs. Newman. She said the Corte Madera bayfront includes lands in Larkspur and in the county. "I don't want to see the money tied in to this plan or even necessarily to Corte Madera."

Ronald L. Usher, Corte Madera town manager, explained the Westshore Plan and urged the commission to approve the 50-acre county park concept.

He said the town's Westshore Plan is running into difficulty before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission because the BCDC plan still includes a 200-acre dump-and-fill park proposed three years ago by Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation.

Corte Madera rejected the 200-acre park to be created by dump and fill in 1968 but is now pushing for a 50 -acre county park as part of the Westshore Plan.

Mailliard Still In Nixon's War Corner

In spite of a shower of mail opposing President Richard M. Nixon's Cambodian decision, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said he still supports the President's policy.

In a newsletter to his constituents, Mailliard said, "The President's decision prompted an estimated 15,000 Bay Area residents to send letters and telegrams to me. A large majority of those who wrote disagree with the President's decision."

Nevertheless, Mailliard said, he supports the maneuver "on the basis that the destruction of enemy sanctuaries was related to an overall strategy of withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam."

He said that although many interpret the Cambodian campaign as a reversal of policy, facts demonstrate the administration's commitment to orderly disengagement from Southeast Asia.

In addition to evaluating the letters, Mailliard said he has met with about 300 university students from his constituency.

Although there were differences of opinion on how to end the war, Mailliard said, "I found that our views were quite similar in that we share a deep concern for domestic problems and want an early end to the war."

July's Draft Call Set For 15,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A July draft call of 15,000 men was issued today by the Pentagon. It is the same as the quotas previously set for May and June.

The announcement indicated anew that the total draft for 1970 is expected to be between 150,000 and 180,000 men.

The July indictions will bring the total for the first seven months to 114,500, with the draft during the last five months of the year apparently between 35,500 and 65,500.

The draft quotas for February, March and April were 19,000 each. For January, there were 12,500 inductions.

Melton Ferris Ends Planning Panel Career

Melton Ferris of Bolinas, past chairman and member of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission for five years, will go off the commission when his term expires July 2.

Yesterday was Ferris' last commission meeting. He told his colleagues he has served two terms and wants to get off the commission. He is an at-large member of the commission, with a two-year term.

"We'll miss you," said Chairman Lothar Salin. "I hope the board (of supervisors) will appoint someone to succeed you with the same qualities and the ability to probe and sometimes ask embarrassing questions."

Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners also:

VACATION — Heard from Director Pierre W. Joske that he will be on vacation from June 29 to Aug. 11. James Vande Weg, park development coordinator, will serve as acting director during Joske's absence.

BOAT LAUNCH — Passed a resolution supporting the Gallinas Village Community Services District's plan to develop a boat launching ramp on Gallinas Creek.

Candlelight Killer Suspect Nabbed

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Police Lt. Ed Stevens said today a man captured in a Colorado gun battle has waived extradition and will be brought to San Diego Friday to face a charge of murdering a male nurse.

The murder warrant delivered Wednesday night to Colorado Springs names Robert W. Liberty, 23, in the "candlelight killer" slaying last weekend, Stevens said.

Robert Irion, 53, was found strangled and stabbed to death. Burning candles were by his body. A message scrawled in pencil on a closet door said, "the candlelight killer strikes again."

Liberty, a former California mental patient, was captured early Thursday after a motel owner in Colorado Springs was robbed.

GRADUATION COMES TO STUDENT

Surrounded by classmates and teachers, Bruce E. Yarchin receives his eighth grade diploma at home from Sister Joseph Celine, principal of St. Rita's School, Fairfax. Recent hospitalization kept Bruce from attending graduation, so graduation ceremonies, attended by all but one of his classmates, came to him. Muscular dystrophy has confined Bruce to a wheelchair since second grade, but help of fellow students and teachers and his own determination and cheerfulness enabled him to graduate. "During the eight years he's been at St. Rita's we've never heard him complain once," said Sister Joseph. "He certainly is a good soldier." Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick S. Yarchin, 20 Garden Rock Road, San Anselmo. (Independent-Journal photo)

Mailliard Still In Nixon's War Corner

In spite of a shower of mail opposing President Richard M. Nixon's Cambodian decision, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said he still supports the President's policy.

In a newsletter to his constituents, Mailliard said, "The President's decision prompted an estimated 15,000 Bay Area residents to send letters and telegrams to me. A large majority of those who wrote disagree with the President's decision."

Nevertheless, Mailliard said, he supports the maneuver "on the basis that the destruction of enemy sanctuaries was related to an overall strategy of withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam."

He said that although many interpret the Cambodian campaign as a reversal of policy, facts demonstrate the administration's commitment to orderly disengagement from Southeast Asia.

In addition to evaluating the letters, Mailliard said he has met with about 300 university students from his constituency.

Although there were differences of opinion on how to end the war, Mailliard said, "I found that our views were quite similar in that we share a deep concern for domestic problems and want an early end to the war."

Thieves Take Coins

The annual art show of the Novato Art Guild will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato, according to president Einar Kruse. Refreshments will be served during the show.

July's Draft Call Set For 15,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A July draft call of 15,000 men was issued today by the Pentagon. It is the same as the quotas previously set for May and June.

The announcement indicated anew that the total draft for 1970 is expected to be between 150,000 and 180,000 men.

The July indictions will bring the total for the first seven months to 114,500, with the draft during the last five months of the year apparently between 35,500 and 65,500.

The draft quotas for February, March and April were 19,000 each. For January, there were 12,500 inductions.

Melton Ferris Ends Planning Panel Career

Melton Ferris of Bolinas, past chairman and member of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission for five years, will go off the commission when his term expires July 2.

Yesterday was Ferris' last commission meeting. He told his colleagues he has served two terms and wants to get off the commission. He is an at-large member of the commission, with a two-year term.

"We'll miss you," said Chairman Lothar Salin. "I hope the board (of supervisors) will appoint someone to succeed you with the same qualities and the ability to probe and sometimes ask embarrassing questions."

Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners also:

VACATION — Heard from Director Pierre W. Joske that he will be on vacation from June 29 to Aug. 11. James Vande Weg, park development coordinator, will serve as acting director during Joske's absence.

BOAT LAUNCH — Passed a resolution supporting the Gallinas Village Community Services District's plan to develop a boat launching ramp on Gallinas Creek.

Corte Madera Shore Park Favored; Where Is Issue

The idea of a 50-acre county park on the Corte Madera bayfront won unanimous endorsement of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

A motion to endorse the concept in principle, made by Albert J. Boro, carried 7 to 0. However, a second motion by Boro, locating the park on the Dominic Muzzi property, created a 4-to-3 split.

If the county board of supervisors approves $100,000 for a Corte Madera bayfront park in the 1970-71 budget, Boro moved that the park and recreation staff should work with Corte Madera toward acquiring 50 acres of the Muzzi property.

In favor were Boro, Leroy M. Gerner, Herber C. Leney, and Raymond Bresnan. Opposed were Chairman Lothar Salin, Melton Ferris and Helen E. Newman.

Ferris objected because the 50-acre park plan is part of Corte Madera's Westshore Plan, which calls for a county park surrounded by private development including motels, townhouses, and marina on the Muzzi property. "It is completely inappropriate to endorse the plan of a private developer which isn't even officially adopted by the Town of Corte Madera," said Ferris.

The major benefit of such a park in the Westshore Plan would go to Corte Madera, said Salin. He argued that the town should pay for at least a part of the cost.

"It isn't wise to tie it down to Corte Madera," observed Mrs. Newman. She said the Corte Madera bayfront includes lands in Larkspur and in the county. "I don't want to see the money tied in to this plan or even necessarily to Corte Madera."

Ronald L. Usher, Corte Madera town manager, explained the Westshore Plan and urged the commission to approve the 50-acre county park concept.

He said the town's Westshore Plan is running into difficulty before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission because the BCDC plan still includes a 200-acre dump-and-fill park proposed three years ago by Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation.

Corte Madera rejected the 200-acre park to be created by dump and fill in 1968 but is now pushing for a 50 -acre county park as part of the Westshore Plan.

Candlelight Killer Suspect Nabbed

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Police Lt. Ed Stevens said today a man captured in a Colorado gun battle has waived extradition and will be brought to San Diego Friday to face a charge of murdering a male nurse.

The murder warrant delivered Wednesday night to Colorado Springs names Robert W. Liberty, 23, in the "candlelight killer" slaying last weekend, Stevens said.

Robert Irion, 53, was found strangled and stabbed to death. Burning candles were by his body. A message scrawled in pencil on a closet door said, "the candlelight killer strikes again."

Liberty, a former California mental patient, was captured early Thursday after a motel owner in Colorado Springs was robbed.

Chainsaws can start fires. Be sure yours is properly muffled and use care in filling the tank. Machinery use started almost 23,000 fires in California in 1969.

Hub Mayor Writes Nixon On War Issue

In an open letter to President Nixon, San Anselmo Mayor James F. Reed makes the point that the San Anselmo City Council's refusal to take a position against the Asian war did not mean support of the war.

Reed, who cast the deciding vote in the 3-2 decision, wrote the president that he agreed wholeheartedly with a request for withdrawal of U. S. troops, but "I do not feel I was elected. . .to speak for the citizens of San Anselmo on other than municipal affairs."

But as a citizen, he wrote, "I have a duty" to speak out. "No issue in anyone's memory has split and divided our country as this one has. . ."

"For the good of the United States. . .end our involvement in the hostilities. Honor can be admitting that we are wrong, and in this instance I firmly believe we are."

The council on May 27 declined to take an official position calling for American withdrawal, despite pleas during an hour-long hearing that it send Nixon a letter calling for a June 30, 1971, deadline for withdrawal.

Antipoverty Agency Gives Nod To Job Descriptions

Directors of Marin's antipoverty agency approved job descriptions last night for three employees of its proposed emergency food and medical service program.

The economic opportunity council board approved work guidelines for a director, a job which will pay between $650 and $750 monthly; warehouse inventory clerk, $450-$500 monthly, and bus-truck driver, $2.67 an hour.

The program, awaiting approval of $80,000 in federal funds, would provide food and medical service to low income persons on an emergency basis. It is an outgrowth of the agency's current volunteer program, Project HELP.

Food distribution centers would be established at EOC facilities in Marin City, San Rafael, Novato, and possibly at a location in West Marin.

In other matters, the board approved an emergency application for $13,000 in federal funds to save the threatened new careers phase of the Head Start program and tabled until its next meeting July 1 action on proposed resumption of the Marin City secretarial school.

The $13,000 would enable adult job hopefuls in the Head Start program to attend training as teacher assistants, cooks, community workers and clerks at College of Marin and Sonoma State College.

The secretarial school ended with the close of the agency's fiscal year March 30 and in order to be revived, a funding application must be approved first by the Marin City Target Area Board of EOC, due to meet Monday night.

Marijuana Case Being Probed

No charge was filed yesterday against Steven Harris Milliken, 19, of no known address, who was arrested in Ross earlier in the day on suspicion of possessing marijuana, hashish and narcotics paraphernalia.

The case was to be investigated further by the district attorney's office.

State's Total Output Hits New Record

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bank of California Wednesday reported the state's total production of goods and services set an all-time high during the past month and were 5.4 per cent higher than a year ago in the same period.

The new high was estimated at $110.4 billion during May, the bank reported, but the new high could be short-lived because a slight decline was anticipated in June in the gross state products factor.

The bank measures economic activity in the institution's tri-state service area. The report encompasses production of both goods and services in determining its gross state product figure.

Horsemen Set Rodeo Plans For Novato

Committee chairmen for the Novato Horsemen's 12th annual rodeo, scheduled for 1 p.m. June 21 were announced today by William R. Evenich, president.

The rodeo is the climax to the four-day Western Weekend Country Fair celebration, June 18 through 21 in Novato. The rodeo usually draws a capacity crowd, coming on father's day.

Lloyd A. Loftus and Evenich are co-chairmen of the rodeo; Neil Cullins, chairman of the rodeo kick-off dinner and dance at 7 p.m. Saturday in the horsemen's clubhouse; John A. Church, grounds chairman; Martha Wright, ticket sales; Mrs. P. Thomas Carson, in charge of the clubhouse; Alfred Bellucci, James Kimbell and Cullins, food and drink concessions.

Loftus, of 1848 Indian Valley Road, will supervise the businessmen's calf-tying event. Entry blanks may be obtained from him.

Any local cowboy may compete in any event. Entry blanks may be obtained from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 19 at the clubhouse.

The stock this year is furnished by the Golden State Rodeo Co., a newly formed company.

Debutante Parties Added To Calendar

By MOLLY MARIN

Although the Marin debutantes will be busy for three days next week with a special volunteer orientation andtour of Marin social service agencies, they also are receiving some party invitations for the summer months.

On June 23 Mrs. Russell Smith of Ross will be hostess at a tea at her home in honor of her deb granddaughter, Martha Hunter Smith of Atlanta. Martha is spending the summer with her grandparents and will return to Marin to bow at the Marin Debutante Ball in December.

Another tea is on the deb calendar for June 26, when Mrs. John Dowling Relfe will give a tea for her niece, Marin deb Jennifer Relfe. The party will be held at the hostess' Green Street home in San Francisco.

A supper dance aboard the cruise vessel "Harbor King" is scheduled for Aug. 15 for the debs and their escorts. Hosts will be the Gene Vayssies and Edwin Burmesters. The honorees will be Nancy Vayssie and Jane Wilsey, Mrs. Burmester's daughter.

THE WALTER LONGS of Corte Madera are packing to leave on a six weeks tour of England and Europe. In London they plan to meet their daughter, Linda, who has been attending the University of Bordeaux this year. Linda is planning to return to attend the University of California in the fall, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

ENDING A 43-day cruise of the South Pacific and touring the Orient are the Charles L. McInnises of Kentfield. During their trip they visited Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan. The McInnises returned aboard the liner President Wilson.

A 30TH WEDDING anniversary dinner will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Guerin of Terra Linda on Sunday by their four children. The Guerins were married June 15, 1940, in New York City.

GERRY AND Penny Igl and their three children, formerly of Mill Valley, who moved to Seattle last year, will arrive this week to spend a few days as home guests of the Philip Yorks. Friends are planning some small gatherings of their old friends from Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley and the Bohemian Club in San Francisco.

DR. AND MRS. Rodney B. Hartman have recieved news that their third granddaughter was born Saturday. The baby, who is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Hartman of Stockton, has been named Kristie Lynn Hartman. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams of Santa Rosa are the maternal grandparents.

Miss Bonomi To Be Wed

An Aug. 15 wedding date has been set by Rose Marie Bonomi of Petaluma for her marriage to Charles Yelton at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Petaluma.

A graduate of Petaluma High School, the bride-elect is the sister of Margaret and Shirley Bonomi of Petaluma. Mr. and Mrs. John Robustelli of Cotati are her grandparents.

Charles, who is employed in Concord, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Yelton of Petaluma and his sisters are Becky and Patty Yelton, also of Petaluma.

Labor Department's Women's Bureau Celebrates 50 Years

By DONALD FINLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Back in 1920, a congressman predicted that "men may deeply regret the entrance of women into the commercial, industrial and professional fields."

Despite his misgivings, Congress voted that year to establish a Women's Bureau in the Labor Department "to formulate standards and policies which shall promote the welfare of wage-earning women, improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency and advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

Women workers have come a long way since then and the Women's Bureau, which helped them make those gains, celebrates its 50th anniversary with a national conference opening here today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, director of the bureau, said the three-day conference is expected to draw about 1,000 men and women. The theme is "American Women at the Crossroads: Directions for the Future."

Mrs. Koontz was one year and two days old when the bill establishing the Women's Bureau was signed into law by President Woodrow Wilson on June 5, 1920.

Rep. John MacCrate, N. Y., may have expressed the prevailing feeling in Congress when he said men might regret the entrance of women into the work force. But reviewing the way women had filled many industrial jobs during World War I, he also conceded that "We are face to face with a fact of live."

In 1920 only 23 per cent of U. S. women held jobs. This has grown to 43 per cent now and women today account for about one out of every four workers in the labor force. They hold jobs in almost all fields of work.

The Women's Bureau has been in the forefront of the fight for legislation to give them equal job protection and opportunities. For instance, the Equal Pay Act of 1963 prohibits paying women less than men for identical work, and the 1964 Civil Right Act prohibits job discrimination based on sex.

Back in 1920, only two states — Michigan and Montana — had equal pay laws and none of the states had laws prohibiting employment discrimination based on sex. Mrs. Koontz also points out that working conditions for women, as well as men and children, back in 1920 were intolerable.

A government survey just prior to World War I showed that women and children were working as long as 16 hours a day without overtime in old buildings in which the windows were nailed shut and the roar of power machinery was deafening. Sanitary conditions and fire hazards often were equally bad.

Mary Anderson, a Swedish immigrant who was the first director of the Women's Bureau, told in her autobiography of one tour she made to investigate working conditions. She said women in a carborundum factory worked in metallic dust so thick they could hardly see more than a few feet away. She visited another plant where women were making storage batteries, "a very perilous occupation for women because the effects of lead poisoning are especially serious for them, causing sterility, miscarriages and death of babies during the first year of their lives."

Mrs. Koontz said a pattern followed by many modern women is to work during their teens and early 20s, before and right after marriage. Then they drop out of the labor force to have children and re-enter the job market at about age 30, after all the children are in school.

She said this is borne out by statistics showing that the average woman worker in 1920 was single and 28. Now she is married and 39.

Mrs. Koontz by no means considers the bureau's job to be finished. She says women often are relegated to lower-paying jobs, denied admission to some occupations, assigned quotas in others and generally discriminated against in a business world still managed mostly by men, many of whom may still have lingering feelings that women belong in the home.

'Irene' Acts Real Woman Role

By CLIVE RUSSELL

Nyree Dawn Porter has never been a tragic figure. The success and wealth that came with "The Forsyte Saga" were welcome but unnecessary. Acting is her pleasure and a quiet home life her relaxation.

When her husband died in the spring she indulged in none of the public grief expected of an actress. But his death has been a personal tragedy. Although they had no children in the 11 years of their marriage, Nyree said that she would like a baby, "Because it would be awful to end up with a modicum of success and no children."

She has already ensured herself more than a modicum of success, but she used to speculate that she might give up acting when she had a family, as she is by nature obsessional, concentrating on one thing at a time.

"Maybe one day I'll go back to New Zealand when I have children," she once said. "But not for the moment. It's a hell of a long way to run back to mother."

NYREE IS not the running-home kind. Bad luck has dogged her career but she has shrugged it off, appearing not to notice. At 17 she had to give up a ballet career because she grew too tall. At 25 she missed two consecutive star theater roles because of accident and illness on the eve of opening. It was only after years of leading television and stage roles for which she earns professional praise but little public reputation, save for being unlucky, that she won fame in "The Forsyte Saga."

"It proves what I've always maintained," said Nyree Dawn Porter. "You don't have to strip to be sexy'.' She had just played a scene in the Saga in which her husband virtually raped her, tearing off her blouse but baring nothing more titillating than full-length underwear that wouldn't have shamed a Salvation Army worker. Yet the scene swelled her already vast fan mail and moved one critic to charge it with having a traumatic effect on the sex life of the British male.

NYREE WAS made by "The Forsyte Saga." But not formed by it. Softly beautiful, blonde, honey skinned and husky-voiced she is a natural for roles in which she could be proclaimed a new Marilyn Monroe. She has been avoiding such roles since she arrived in England as New Zealand's Miss Cinema in 1958.

"I was a beautiful, singing, dancing doll from New Zealand. And that was the only way anyone would ever look at me — not as an actress."

So after starring in one West End revue she turned down glamorous roles and was out of work for the next six months.

Nyree shouldn't really have been in England at all. She had been entered in the Miss Cinema competition by a friend who hadn't even told her. The prize was a three week trip to England and a film test. The film test never materialized, but Nyree stayed anyway, with her actor husband.

She was 21 and for all her melting looks already a trouper. As a girl she trained for ballet but grew too tall at five and a half feet, so she opened her own ballet school at 17. At 19 she was a star of the New Zealand Players' Theatre Trust and at 21 she left Napier for a three week trip and never returned.

By the early '60s Nyree had broken into TV and the theater. But since she avoided her natural type-casting as a dolly she wasn't widely known when the casting for Forsyte began.

WHAT SHE plays has always been even more important for Nyree than for most actresses.

"I get totally immersed in the characters I'm playing and often carry them over into my private life. I've been acting since I was three and a half and since then I've done everything. I played an Indian whore, a frigid virgin, Madame Bovary, before people were finally convinced that I could do more than simply wear clothes well.

"I don't care what I act in provided the part I play is of a real woman and not a type. I nearly always played wicked women until Irene. There's nothing so satisfying as playing a really wicked woman. Virtue's so dull, isn't it?"

Irene was virtuous, but her complexity compensated for it.

"I feel I know what made her the woman she was," says Nyree. "A woman so hurt by her early life that she closed up and lived within herself when she couldn't deal with the people around her. I would love to have been alive in the days she lived."

The Saga was quite real to Nyree while she was filming it. She would go home shattered when one of the characters died. She is, in fact, a highly vulnerable person; able to take care of herself professionally and present a confident face to the world but privately far less secure than she seems.

"I'm terribly shy. I've had to give up using public transport because people look at me and it makes me feel a freak.

"I was amazed to find that nobody in the cast knew how terrified I was during rehearsals," she said when she returned to the theatre in "The Duel," after Forsyte. "Not even the producer knew. He thought I was very confident. I thought it was glaringly obvious. I used to go off into the loo and throw up."

Ever concerned not to become typecast, Nyree went to Hollywood in 1967, after "The Forsyte Saga," to find a rougher, less refined role and to change medium to films. She was tested for "McKenna's Gold" but bad luck pursued her. Gregory Peck rejected her as his co-star — at 30 she looked too young.

Back in England she has played Shaw's "St. Joan" on stage, done a light comedy TV series and recited Aristophenes' Lysistrata at the Albert Hall.

She looks set to repeat her Forsyte success with the role of Blanche Ingram in "Jane Eyre," with Susanah York in the title role and George C. Scott and Ian Bannen.

NYREE LIKES to live a quiet country life, painting when she finds time, surrounded with animals. Money and fame are welcome but unimportant.

"I have no sense of the value of money. I want the acting itself rather than the fame. I've always been a terribly satisfied person. I don't think I could have dealt with success when I was young and less experienced; I don't envy anyone who becomes successful quicker than I did. I suppose it would be much more interesting if what I wanted was men and booze, but I don't."

NOTED FOR her role of Irene in the "Forsythe Saga," Nyree Dawn Porter has been avoiding Marilyn Monroe type roles since she arrived in England as New Zealand's Miss Cinema in 1958.

Drying Lingerie

There is no need to put lingerie in the dryer. Instead, take it directly from the washer and fold lengthwise, laying items across the top of the dryer or some other flat surface. They'll dry quickly and look smooth, crisp, and new.

This is probably how you feel about fashion.

Don't. It isn't all that complicated. The clothes you're wearing today won't be obsolete tomorrow. Which isn't to say there isn't a new feeling in fashion. There definitely is. It's been coming on for a year now. It's a softer feeling. Less constructed. Leaner and longer. And the new lengths are one perfect expression of it. But it can be achieved many other ways. Via boots. Or pants, Or stockings that are a color extension of your dress. So stop wondering whether to midi or not to midi - that isn't the question. Of course, you'll midi. You'll want to. But you'll want to do lots of other things too. Including wearing most of the clothes in your closet.

NEW LOOK FOR NURSES

New pants suit uniforms have been made optional for the nurses at Queen of Angels Hospital in Los Angeles. Hospital authorities said that the pants suits are more stylish and more functional than the traditional skirts for duty wear in the hospital. Favoring the new look are, from left, Norma Megna, Mary Lohman, Mittie Perkins, Joan Ornelas, Patricia Denis, Mary V. Yalor and Marilda Hitchcock.

Debutante Parties Added To Calendar

By MOLLY MARIN

Although the Marin debutantes will be busy for three days next week with a special volunteer orientation andtour of Marin social service agencies, they also are receiving some party invitations for the summer months.

On June 23 Mrs. Russell Smith of Ross will be hostess at a tea at her home in honor of her deb granddaughter, Martha Hunter Smith of Atlanta. Martha is spending the summer with her grandparents and will return to Marin to bow at the Marin Debutante Ball in December.

Another tea is on the deb calendar for June 26, when Mrs. John Dowling Relfe will give a tea for her niece, Marin deb Jennifer Relfe. The party will be held at the hostess' Green Street home in San Francisco.

A supper dance aboard the cruise vessel "Harbor King" is scheduled for Aug. 15 for the debs and their escorts. Hosts will be the Gene Vayssies and Edwin Burmesters. The honorees will be Nancy Vayssie and Jane Wilsey, Mrs. Burmester's daughter.

THE WALTER LONGS of Corte Madera are packing to leave on a six weeks tour of England and Europe. In London they plan to meet their daughter, Linda, who has been attending the University of Bordeaux this year. Linda is planning to return to attend the University of California in the fall, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

ENDING A 43-day cruise of the South Pacific and touring the Orient are the Charles L. McInnises of Kentfield. During their trip they visited Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan. The McInnises returned aboard the liner President Wilson.

A 30TH WEDDING anniversary dinner will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Guerin of Terra Linda on Sunday by their four children. The Guerins were married June 15, 1940, in New York City.

GERRY AND Penny Igl and their three children, formerly of Mill Valley, who moved to Seattle last year, will arrive this week to spend a few days as home guests of the Philip Yorks. Friends are planning some small gatherings of their old friends from Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley and the Bohemian Club in San Francisco.

DR. AND MRS. Rodney B. Hartman have recieved news that their third granddaughter was born Saturday. The baby, who is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Hartman of Stockton, has been named Kristie Lynn Hartman. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams of Santa Rosa are the maternal grandparents.

Miss Bonomi To Be Wed

An Aug. 15 wedding date has been set by Rose Marie Bonomi of Petaluma for her marriage to Charles Yelton at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Petaluma.

A graduate of Petaluma High School, the bride-elect is the sister of Margaret and Shirley Bonomi of Petaluma. Mr. and Mrs. John Robustelli of Cotati are her grandparents.

Charles, who is employed in Concord, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Yelton of Petaluma and his sisters are Becky and Patty Yelton, also of Petaluma.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Bright, Popular Student Feels Like A Circus Horse Doing Tricks

DEAR HELEN:

I've started to write you many times, but never finished the letters. It all sounds crazy and selfish. I have everything, yet I'm so depressed I dream of killing myself.

I have great parents, a nice home, many friends, a part time job. I'm in the top ten percent of my class and college bound. That's a big part of my problem, I guess.

The work is twice as hard in my advanced classes, and the pressure and competition is fantastic. My pride forces me to keep up, pretend it's a breeze, but if college is to be the same, can I take six more years?

Lately I've begun to doubt the validity of grades, school, society, life. When you don't have time left to read the books you love because you have too much meaningless homework; when you can't see the subject because of the grades; when you cram for exams (or waste time on dull reports) on courses that have no relevance but will only get you into college, well, it's like you were two people. The free, honest part of you is floating invisible but close, watching that fireball down there and wondering, "How long will she keep on fooling them? When will she break:"

And the fireball, with her urge to excel and make people proud of her, keeps driving for "As," and wishing that other self would go away and leave her alone.

My two selves clash on social pressures too. My clique is safe, secure, like my family.

Our little world isn't open to those others who might not think as we do. In fact, you're a traitor if you think differently. My invisible self hates the narrow, gossipy snobbishness, and again wonders, "How long?"

I feel trapped and frustrated. I can't change the world because I can't even change myself. I try reaching out to people not in my group, but there's sort of a mutual distrust. I can't confide in my "don't care" friends. Even my parents don't really listen.

It's horrible to be thought of as popular but to be so all alone. I want to get involved in worthwhile things, but I'm so busy preparing myself for a life I don't want that I've forgotten how to live.

So long as I perform, like a circus horse going through its tricks, I'm a sweet child, a credit to the school. It's all so phony.

I guess I'm a self-pitying brat who doesn't know when she's got it good, but lately I dream more and more of joining that invisible me even if I must cop out to do it. But that would admit failure, something I mustn't even think about. Do I need a psychiatrist or —

How can I get together with myself again? — THE TWO OF ME

DEAR ME:

Your letter says so very well what many young people are thinking these days: You resent false values, are impatient at time wasted on meaningless pursuits, yet you feel guilty for not appreciating your good life. You are an achiever who wonders if the achievements are worthwhile, but you're caught on the treadmill because you must excel.

It's an occupational hazard of being brilliant—to be upset with a world that pays too much attention to unnecessary things; bothered by the mercenary aspects of life — and worried because you fear you may fall into that trap, too.

More than a psychiatrist, I think you need long talks with the kind of involved person you hope to be — a teacher, counselor, minister: Someone who has been through it. Perhaps he'd show you that even those stupid assignments may make some sense. I'm sure he'd help you realize we must take that which we sometimes don't like in order to reach a point (a college degree) where we can change the system for the better later on. It takes patience. — H.

MRS. JOHN DAVIS

Mrs. Davis Is Elected

Mrs. John Davis has been elected to serve as the new president of St. Vincent's School for Boys Women's Auxiliary for the coming year.

One of the founding members when the auxiliary was organized three years ago, she has served as chairman for several of its fund-raising events for the group, including the Golden Gate Arabian Horse Show and annual barbecue at the school.

She and her husband, who is an executive with the General Insurance Co. of America, live in Corte Madera. Aside from her work with the St. Vincent's Auxiliary, Mrs. Davis enjoys ice skating, water skiing and entertaining in her home.

Food Waste

The average American family wastes about 400 pounds of edible food in the course of a year. That means this country wastes more than 10 million tons of food each year. So reports the Consumers Information Guide of the Westchester County, N.Y. Savings Bank.

Oceans Are Dying, Says Cousteau

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The world's oceans may be dead in 30 years and mankind about 50 years later unless pollution is curtailed, says Jacques. Cousteau.

The undersea explorer, in an interview, said housewives can help avert disaster by buying only things which don't contribute to pollution.

"If the women would refuse to buy goods in nondestructible containers and refuse to use non biodegradable products, the situation could be altered fast," Cousteau said Tuesday.

He said huge quantities of chemicals are pouring into the sea, destroying tiny plant life. Said Cousteau:

"The world gets 80 per cent of its oxygen from the ocean and these minute plants are the things that produce it. Without them, we are dead, literally.

"I have been diving since 1936, and I would say that since then we have gone halfway to destroying the ocean. But, of course, we are doing it much faster today."

But, said Cousteau, "there is an awareness among the public and industry and there are signs of something being done."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Bright, Popular Student Feels Like A Circus Horse Doing Tricks

DEAR HELEN:

I've started to write you many times, but never finished the letters. It all sounds crazy and selfish. I have everything, yet I'm so depressed I dream of killing myself.

I have great parents, a nice home, many friends, a part time job—I'm in the top ten percent of my class and college bound. That's a big part of my problem, I guess.

The work is twice as hard in my advanced classes, and the pressure and competition is fantastic. My pride forces me to keep up, pretend it's a breeze, but if college is to be the same, can I take six more years?

Lately I've begun to doubt the validity of grades, school, society, life. When you don't have time left to read the books you love because you have too much meaningless homework; when you can't see the subject because of the grades; when you cram for exams (or waste time on dull reports) on courses that have no relevance but will only get you into college, well, it's like you were two people. The free, honest part of you is floating invisible but close, watching that fireball down there and wondering, "How long will she keep on fooling them? When will she break:"

And the fireball, with her urge to excel and make people proud of her, keeps driving for "As," and wishing that other self would go away and leave her alone.

My two selves clash on social pressures too. My clique is safe, secure, like my family.

Our little world isn't open to those others who might not think as we do. In fact, you're a traitor if you think differently. My invisible self hates the narrow, gossipy snobbishness, and again wonders, "How long?"

I feel trapped and frustrated. I can't change the world because I can't even change myself. I try reaching out to people not in my group, but there's sort of a mutual distrust. I can't confide in my "don't care" friends. Even my parents don't really listen.

It's horrible to be thought of as popular but to be so all alone. I want to get involved in worthwhile things, but I'm so busy preparing myself for a life I don't want that I've forgotten how to live.

So long as I perform, like a circus horse going through its tricks, I'm a sweet child, a credit to the school. It's all so phony.

I guess I'm a self-pitying brat who doesn't know when she's got it good, but lately I dream more and more of joining that invisible me even if I must cop out to do it. But that would admit failure, something I mustn't even think about. Do I need a psychiatrist or —

How can I get together with myself again? — THE TWO OF ME

DEAR ME:

Your letter says so very well what many young people are thinking these days: You resent false values, are impatient at time wasted on meaningless pursuits, yet you feel guilty for not appreciating your good life. You are an achiever who wonders if the achievements are worthwhile, but you're caught on the treadmill because you must excel.

It's an occupational hazard of being brilliant—to be upset with a world that pays too much attention to unnecessary things; bothered by the mercenary aspects of life — and worried because you fear you may fall into that trap, too.

More than a psychiatrist, I think you need long talks with the kind of involved person you hope to be — a teacher, counselor, minister: Someone who has been through it. Perhaps he'd show you that even those stupid assignments may make some sense. I'm sure he'd help you realize we must take that which we sometimes don't like in order to reach a point (a college degree) where we can change the system for the better later on. It takes patience. — H.

MRS. JOHN DAVIS

Mrs. Davis Is Elected

Mrs. John Davis has been elected to serve as the new president of St. Vincent's School for Boys Women's Auxiliary for the coming year.

One of the founding members when the auxiliary was organized three years ago, she has served as chairman for several of its fund-raising events for the group, including the Golden Gate Arabian Horse Show and annual barbecue at the school.

She and her husband, who is an executive with the General Insurance Co. of America, live in Corte Madera. Aside from her work with the St. Vincent's Auxiliary, Mrs. Davis enjoys ice skating, water skiing and entertaining in her home.

Food Waste

The average American family wastes about 400 pounds of edible food in the course of a year. That means this country wastes more than 10 million tons of food each year. So reports the Consumers Information Guide of the Westchester County, N.Y. Savings Bank.

Panhellenic Association Hosts Party For College-Bound Women

A party for college-bound women interested in pledging sororities will be held by the Marin County City Panhellenic Association Monday at 11 a.m. A members' meeting will precede the party, which is an opportunity for the seniors to meet other women planning to go to the college of their choice. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. George Herrero, 234 South Ridgewood, Kentfield.

THE WELSH-AMERICAN Society of the San Francisco Bay Area will have a covered dish picnic Sunday in the clubhouse of the Muir Woods Improvement Association, according to Jane Jones Calkins of Mill Valley.

Singing and entertainment for young people will be featured. The clubhouse and its setting are similar to the mountain chapels by the sea in Wales, Miss Jones says. Her home, "Bwthyn Bryn," near Muir Woods, will be open for inspection.

THE COLEMAN Fun Fair held Saturday at Forest Meadow in San Rafael raised approximately $6,800, according to Mrs. Francis X. Kelly, president of the Coleman School Parent-Teacher Association and chairman of the fair.

Funds will be used to plant grass, install a sprinkler system and lay asphalt in the school yard.

The fair was attended by approximately 6,000 persons.

NEW OFFICERS installed by Dunham Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association in Petaluma are Mmes. Gerald Skoff, president; Lester Tunzi, vice president; Jim Tunzi, secsetary; Sam Aggio, treasurer; Eleanor Miller, honorary vice president; Joe DeAlesandro, historian; Chuck Bricker, auditor; and Harold Rowan, parliamentarian.

TOMALES SCHOOL Parent-Teacher Association has elected Mrs. Dolores Lawson as its president for the coming school year. Serving as other officers will be Ralph Nixon, auditor; and Mmes. Alice Bonini, treasurer; Ann Jensen, vice president; Jody McDowell, secretary; Barbara Whitner, parliamentarian; and Connie Poncia, historian.

AN EXPERIENCED potter will demonstrate her craft to the Young Wives Group of Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley during their meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Strawberry home of Mrs. Douglass Nadeau.

THE MARIN County Chapter of American ORT will meet at the home of Barbara Babou in San Rafael for a "Beat the Heat" swim party and barbecue Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Present and prospective members and their husbands and friends are invited. Mrs. Stephen Jaffee of Greenbrae is reservations chairman.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Let's Face It, The Average Players Makes Plenty Of Goofs

If bridge columnists wrote about the game as it is really played, there would be rioting in the streets and blood in all the bridge clubs. We pretend that the average player makes a mistake once an evening; but the fact is that the old boy pulls a dozen boners every hour — and some of them are so bad that it pains me to write about them. Nevertheless, I will muffle my moans while relating what took place on today's hand.

TAKES WITH JACK

West led the seven of spades, and South won the first trick with the jack. If you want to take time out for a few moans of your own over this atrocious play, you will be forgiven.

South might have recovered if the ace of clubs had appeared promptly, but when South led the king and then the queen of clubs East was shrewd enough to hold off. Now South could set up dummy's clubs, but he couldn't get to dummy to cash the last two clubs.

Declarer struggled on, but he wound up with only eight tricks. The defenders got three hearts, a diamond and a club, defeating the contract.

ALMOST TOO OBVIOUS

The correct play is almost too obvious to write about. South must win the first trick with the ace of spades instead of with the jack.

South goes after the clubs, knocking out the ace sooner or later. The defenders are then in position to take two hearts if they like, but that merely gives South an extra trick. Nothing can prevent declarer from reaching dummy with the king of spades for the rest of the clubs. He therefore wins two spades, three diamonds and four clubs, scoring game and rubber.

CLIP THIS COLUMN

If you know players who habitually pull this kind of boner, clip this column and mail it to them. And be sure to throw your own mail away unopened for the next week or so.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-No trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♥- Q 7 4
♦- J 10 9 7
♣- A 6 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only seven points, the combined count can be only 23 to 25 points. At best, this is not enough for game. Pass and let your partner play an easy hand for a change.

The North American continent's largest bird, the condor, produces only one egg every two years. If it hatches, the offspring remains in the nest for 18 months.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, June 11, the 162nd day of 1970 with 203 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1920 Ohio Sen. Warren Harding was summoned to a Chicago hotel room and informed he had been chosen as the dark horse Republican candidate for president. He won the election the following November.

In 1963 federalized national guard troops stood by as Gov. George Wallace allowed two Negroes to enroll at the University of Alabama.

A thought for the day: Miguel de Cervantes said, "Tell me thy company and I'll tell thee what thou art."

Burglars Take $156 In Clothing

Burglars Monday night took $156 worth of men's clothing from Macy's Department Store, Fourth and Court streets, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A burglar alarm at 10:04 p.m. summoned police and store personnel, but the loss was not discovered until janitors arrived for morning cleanup yesterday.

Metal bars were pried apart and a ground-floor window broken to enter the building.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Expiring U.S. Notes Eligible For Trading

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife recently purchased five Treasury notes and was told that they are not renewable. It was my understanding that a holder of Treasury notes would be eligible for new offerings by exchanging maturing issues for new ones. — G.N.

A. The Treasury financing operation in May (I assume this is the one to which you refer) included $16.56 billion of notes offered in exchange for maturing issues and a $3.5 billion cash offering. This was the Treasury's first cash offering of notes made since August, 1968. The fact that your wife's purchase was a cash one should not alter the possibility of exehange when the notes mature.

When the Treasury announces refunding plans, expiring notes or bonds which are eligible for exchange are specified. In other words, Treasury cash requirements at maturity determine whether a note or bond is to be allowed to expire or to be ligible for exchange. Two-thirds of bonds and notes reaching maturity over an 18-month period through early 1968 were exchanged. Prior to an exchange offering, the Treasury makes a public announcement of its plans, which is carried by the press. You should watch for these announcements well in advance of the maturity date of your note.

Q. I realize that the drop in the market affects most individual issues but the drop in Ampex is greater than most. Is there something basically wrong with the company? — G.B.

A. Sharp declines resulting from investor dumping of basically sound glamor stocks frequently signal the final stages of a bear market. Ampex is selling at 73 per cent below its early 1970 high, and excessive reaction to lower earnings reported in the April quarter and projected for the July quarter. Management has reaffirmed its conviction that a growth rate of 14 per cent compounded will be achieved over the next five years. Now trading at about 10x fiscal 1970 earnings, Ampex appears to have above-average rebound potential.

Boise Cascade Expects Better Second Half

HOUSTON (BW) — Boise Cascade "is looking toward a better 1970 second half comparison with 1969 than it expects to experience during the first half of this year," William M. Agee, vice president, finance, stated here Wednesday.

Speaking before the Houston Society of Security Analysts, he said:

"We have indicated previously that our results in 1970 would be adversely affected in the first half by the fact that our 1969 first half results were unusually good.

"We also indicated that our comparisons would be better during the second half of the year," he said. "With five months now behind us, we still believe this will be the case for Boise Cascade in 1970."

Second quarter results in 1969 were the best in Boise Cascade's history, which Agee attributed to extraordinarily high prices for building materials. This year the high cost and unavailability of mortgage money has caused a slump in housing activity, Agee said.

In spite of this, he added, because of Boise Cascade's unique position in the homebuilding industry, the company's housing operations have continued to grow both in volume and profits.

Many 'First-Time' Exhibitors In Marin Art And Garden Show

Probably the largest number of "first-time" commercial exhibitors in recent years are making appearances at the Marin Art and Garden Show in Ross next month — 22 of them out of a total of 50 now signed.

There are 10 more booth spaces this year than before and at this writing only three vacancies remained.

Half of the newcomers fall in the art and craftwork class: Claudia Misner from Richmond with her leather goods, tapestry bags, vests and other goods; Clair Fraschina from San Francisco with a jewelry display; The Art Assemblage from San Anselmo; San Rafael photographer Arthur Madsen; Irene and Marianne Horton (I and M Enterprise) from Woodacre, decorative pillows and plaques; Hazel Manning of Ross, mineral mounts; Tom McFadden of Forest Knolls, with furniture, woodcarvings and ceramics; Carol Parrish of San Francisco, decorated turkey eggs, jewelry, flower and owl arrangements; Royal Art Service, Corte Madera, paintings, prints, stuffed toys and tote bags; Al Tichenour from Hamilton Air Force Base, redwood planters; and Stained Glass Originals from San Francisco.

New also this year are Bib 'n' Rib of San Anselmo, whose proprietor Ron Brandeis will be showing some of his original Ozark sauces; Fred Cherry's Wine Discoveries, also of San Anselmo with an exhibition of choice wines; Futura, distributor of Bestline products in San Rafael; and camping, sport and mountain climbing equipment from Mary King's The Mountain Shop in Kentfield.

There are new promotional exhibits by Alpha Schools, San Rafael; Belvedere Nursery School; the Kidney Foundation of Northern California; the Marin County Epilepsy Society; Meals for Millions; and the Marin General Hospital Volunteers. All provide literature and information. Marin General will have a boutique.

Exhibitors from previous years include the American Cancer Society; Anavac Enterprises with its character computer, the Baha'i Faith; Alice Zelina Berger's paintings on wood; John Bickner's redwood signs and plastic flowers and bottles; Bonsai Nursery, the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum; Casman and Weiss Manufacturing Co. (blenders and broilers); Cooperative Marin; Creative Merchandisers, Derby's of California, stone planters and jewelry; Henry George School of Social Science; Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath; Niko paintings on driftwood; both the Marin Democratic and Republican Committees; Leo Molitor's beefsticks, Niagara massage equipment; Mary Furdas of Woodacre, showing Shaklee products; State Farm Insurance Co.; Patricia Stevens Finishing School and Career College; Donna Stradcutter's jewelry; The Tamalpais Retirement Home of Greenbrae; the Tamalpais Conservation Club; Tamalpais Hardware's lapidary supplies, Tiffany lamps and baskets; Ethelyn Telfor's oil paintings on wood; Dean Witter and Co.; and World Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft.

JOHN R. McCABE of San Rafael has been elected a member of the Administrative Management Society. eH is sales manager for James Hill and Co., San Francisco.

SAUSALITO INSURANCE AGENT Warren Glass has won an all-expense-paid trip for two to Mexico City in a nationwide sales campaign by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

Oakland, Taiwan City Ink Sister-Port Pact

OAKLAND (BW) — Ceremonies marking the signing of a sister port affiliation between the Port of Oakland and the Port of Keelung (Taiwan) were held Wednesday in Keelung.

Heading the Taiwan delegation was Adm. K. C. Tsao, director of the Keelung Harbor Bureau.

The official ceremonies included signing of sister-port affiliation documents by Walters and Tsao, the raising of both port flags and pouring a decanter of sea water from the Port of Oakland into the Keelung Harbor.

Gifts and mementos were exchanged by both port boards.

The sister-port relationship between Oakland and Keelung developed from a visit to Oakland by Taiwan port and steamship executives for a container seminar and a return visit to Taiwan by a trade mission group from the Port of Oakland.

Oakland is the largest container port on the Pacific oCast of the United States, while Keelung, port for Taipei, Taiwan's capital city, is rapidly expanding its fracilities for containerization with two new terminals opening this year.

Dow Jones Sustains Loss; Week's Biggest

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Dow Jones Industrial Average today suffered its biggest setback of the week, but turnover remained light in what generally was regarded as a further consolidation of last month's sharp gains.

The closely watched barometer of 30 top blue chip companies was off 10.00 at 684.35 near the bell.

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 1,049 retreated and 242

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 retreated and 242 gained.

Turnover amounted to around 7.75 million shares as against 7,240,000 shares Wednesday.

A spokesman for Walston Co. brokerage said he expected the Dow to move to the 665-675 area before major support develops. On May 26 the closely watched blue chip barometer finished at 631.16, its low for the year.

Another analyst said he believed the market was headed for a 50 per cent retracement of recent sharp advances. This, he said, would put the Dow at about the 670-680 level.

Other analysts pointed out that demand for stocks was hampered by several factors, including delay in President Nixon's economic report to the nation and an announcement by the Soviet Union that it was increasing its military aid to North Vietnam in response to expanded U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny said "relations with the United States are frozen because of U.S. aggression" in Indochina and elsewhere.

Point-sized losses cropped up most often in the electronics, while most other major stock groups traded in fractions. IBM was among the biggest losers, closing down 6 1-4 at 259 1-4.

Among the day's most active issues were American Telephone, Pittston, Burroughs and Carter Wallace.

In late trading, Pittston was 3-8 higher on 68,700 shares and Carter Wallace was off 1 1-4 on 60,700 shares. Carter Wallace reported a sharp drop in operating net for the fourth quarter ended March 31.

DuPont Tells Of Plans For Merger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Francis I. DuPont & Co. has agreed to merge with Hirsch & Co., a combination which, together with a previously proposed combination with Glore Forgan Staats Inc., will create the world's second largest investment company.

The new firm, F.I. DuPont, Glore Forgan & Co., will have 141 offices across the country, compared with Bache & Co., which presently is in second place with 130, and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, which is undisputed leader with more than 200 branches.

A DuPont spokesman said there has been no discussion of any possible closings of branch offices after the three-firm merger takes effect July 1.

Hirsch, with 26 offices, is primarily a retail establishment, while Glore Forgan, with 20 offices on the West Coast, has concentrated on investment banking.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Expiring U.S. Notes Eligible For Trading

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife recently purchased five Treasury notes and was told that they are not renewable. It was my understanding that a holder of Treasury notes would be eligible for new offerings by exchanging maturing issues for new ones. — G.N.

A. The Treasury financing operation in May (I assume this is the one to which you refer) included $16.56 billion of notes offered in exchange for maturing issues and a $3.5 billion cash offering. This was the Treasury's first cash offering of notes made since August, 1968. The fact that your wife's purchase was a cash one should not alter the possibility of exehange when the notes mature.

When the Treasury announces refunding plans, expiring notes or bonds which are eligible for exchange are specified. In other words, Treasury cash requirements at maturity determine whether a note or bond is to be allowed to expire or to be ligible for exchange. Two-thirds of bonds and notes reaching maturity over an 18-month period through early 1968 were exchanged. Prior to an exchange offering, the Treasury makes a public announcement of its plans, which is carried by the press. You should watch for these announcements well in advance of the maturity date of your note.

Q. I realize that the drop in the market affects most individual issues but the drop in Ampex is greater than most. Is there something basically wrong with the company? — G.B.

A. Sharp declines resulting from investor dumping of basically sound glamor stocks frequently signal the final stages of a bear market. Ampex is selling at 73 per cent below its early 1970 high, and excessive reaction to lower earnings reported in the April quarter and projected for the July quarter. Management has reaffirmed its conviction that a growth rate of 14 per cent compounded will be achieved over the next five years. Now trading at about 10x fiscal 1970 earnings, Ampex appears to have above-average rebound potential.

Boise Cascade Expects Better Second Half

HOUSTON (BW) — Boise Cascade "is looking toward a better 1970 second half comparison with 1969 than it expects to experience during the first half of this year," William M. Agee, vice president, finance, stated here Wednesday.

Speaking before the Houston Society of Security Analysts, he said:

"We have indicated previously that our results in 1970 would be adversely affected in the first half by the fact that our 1969 first half results were unusually good.

"We also indicated that our comparisons would be better during the second half of the year," he said. "With five months now behind us, we still believe this will be the case for Boise Cascade in 1970."

Second quarter results in 1969 were the best in Boise Cascade's history, which Agee attributed to extraordinarily high prices for building materials. This year the high cost and unavailability of mortgage money has caused a slump in housing activity, Agee said.

In spite of this, he added, because of Boise Cascade's unique position in the homebuilding industry, the company's housing operations have continued to grow both in volume and profits.

Many 'First-Time' Exhibitors In Marin Art And Garden Show

Probably the largest number of "first-time" commercial exhibitors in recent years are making appearances at the Marin Art and Garden Show in Ross next month — 22 of them out of a total of 50 now signed.

There are 10 more booth spaces this year than before and at this writing only three vacancies remained.

Half of the newcomers fall in the art and craftwork class: Claudia Misner from Richmond with her leather goods, tapestry bags, vests and other goods; Clair Fraschina from San Francisco with a jewelry display; The Art Assemblage from San Anselmo; San Rafael photographer Arthur Madsen; Irene and Marianne Horton (I and M Enterprise) from Woodacre, decorative pillows and plaques; Hazel Manning of Ross, mineral mounts; Tom McFadden of Porest Knolls, with furniture, woodcarvings and ceramics; Carol Parrish of San Francisco, decorated turkey eggs, jewelry, flower and owl arrangements; Royal Art Service, Corte Madera, paintings, prints, stuffed toys and tote bags; Al Tichenour from Hamilton Air Force Base, redwood planters; and Stained Glass Originals from San Francisco.

New also this year are Bib 'n' Rib of San Anselmo, whose proprietor Ron Brandeis will be showing some of his original Ozark sauces; Fred Cherry's Wine Discoveries, also of San Anselmo with an exhibition of choice wines; Futura, distributor of Bestline products in San Rafael; and camping, sport and mountain climbing equipment from Mary King's The Mountain Shop in Kentfield.

There are new promotional exhibits by Alpha Schools, San Rafael; Belvedere Nursery School; the Kidney Foundation of Northern California; the Marin County Epilepsy Society; Meals for Millions; and the Marin General Hospital Volunteers. All provide literature and information. Marin General will have a boutique.

Exhibitors from previous years include the American Cancer Society; Anavac Enterprises with its character computer, the Baha'i Faith; Alice Zelina Berger's paintings on wood; John Bickner's redwood signs and plastic flowers and bottles; Bonsai Nursery, the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum; Casman and Weiss Manufacturing Co. (blenders and broilers); Cooperative Marin; Creative Merchandisers, Derby's of California, stone planters and jewelry; Henry George School of Social Science; Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath; Niko paintings on driftwood; both the Marin Democratic and Republican Committees; Leo Molitor's beefsticks, Niagara massage equipment; Mary Furdas of Woodacre, showing Shaklee products; State Farm Insurance Co.; Patricia Stevens Finishing School and Career College; Donna Stradcutter's jewelry; The Tamalpais Retirement Home of Greenbrae; the Tamalpais Conservation Club; Tamalpais Hardware's lapidary supplies, Tiffany lamps and baskets; Ethelyn Telfor's oil paintings on wood; Dean Witter and Co.; and World Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft.

JOHN R. McCABE of San Rafael has been elected a member of the Administrative Management Society. eH is sales manager for James Hill and Co., San Francisco.

SAUSALITO INSURANCE AGENT Warren Glass has won an all-expense-paid trip for two to Mexico City in a nationwide sales campaign by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

Oakland, Taiwan City Ink Sister-Port Pact

OAKLAND (BW) — Ceremonies marking the signing of a sister port affiliation between the Port of Oakland and the Port of Keelung (Taiwan) were held Wednesday in Keelung.

The official ceremonies included signing of sister-port affiliation documents by Walters and Tsao, the raising of both port flags and pouring a decanter of sea water from the Port of Oakland into the Keelung Harbor.

Gifts and mementos were exchanged by both port boards.

The sister-port relationship between Oakland and Keelung developed from a visit to Oakland by Taiwan port and steamship executives for a container seminar and a return visit to Taiwan by a trade mission group from the Port of Oakland.

Oakland is the largest container port on the Pacific oCast of the United States, while Keelung, port for Taipei, Taiwan's capital city, is rapidly expanding its fracilities for containerization with two new terminals opening this year.

Dow Jones Sustains Loss; Week's Biggest

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Dow Jones Industrial Average today suffered its biggest setback of the week, but turnover remained light in what generally was regarded as a further consolidation of last month's sharp gains.

The closely watched barometer of 30 top blue chip companies was off 10.00 at 684.35 near the bell.

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 1,049 retreated and 242

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 retreated and 242 gained.

Turnover amounted to around 7.75 million shares as against 7,240,000 shares Wednesday.

A spokesman for Walston Co. brokerage said he expected the Dow to move to the 665-675 area before major support develops. On May 26 the closely watched blue chip barometer finished at 631.16, its low for the year.

Another analyst said he believed the market was headed for a 50 per cent retracement of recent sharp advances. This, he said, would put the Dow at about the 670-680 level.

Other analysts pointed out that demand for stocks was hampered by several factors, including delay in President Nixon's economic report to the nation and an announcement by the Soviet Union that it was increasing its military aid to North Vietnam in response to expanded U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny said "relations with the United States are frozen because of U.S. aggression" in Indochina and elsewhere.

Point-sized losses cropped up most often in the electronics, while most other major stock groups traded in fractions. IBM was among the biggest losers, closing down 6 1-4 at 259 1-4.

Among the day's most active issues were American Telephone, Pittston, Burroughs and Carter Wallace.

In late trading, Pittston was 3-8 higher on 68,700 shares and Carter Wallace was off 1 1-4 on 60,700 shares. Carter Wallace reported a sharp drop in operating net for the fourth quarter ended March 31.

DuPont Tells Of Plans For Merger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Francis I. DuPont & Co. has agreed to merge with Hirsch & Co., a combination which, together with a previously proposed combination with Glore Forgan Staats Inc., will create the world's second largest investment company.

The new firm, F.I. DuPont, Glore Forgan & Co., will have 141 offices across the country, compared with Bache & Co., which presently is in second place with 130, and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, which is undisputed leader with more than 200 branches.

A DuPont spokesman said there has been no discussion of any possible closings of branch offices after the three-firm merger takes effect July 1.

Hirsch, with 26 offices, is primarily a retail establishment, while Glore Forgan, with 20 offices on the West Coast, has concentrated on investment banking.

Marin Should Follow Up On Petaluma River Study

It is encouraging to see that a body like the Sonoma County Development Board has begun to recognize the recreational potential of the Petaluma River.

Not long ago, that board released the first reports of its citizen committees studying the Petaluma River basin.

The reports contained recommendations for the preservation of the basin's pastoral environment and encouraged recreational development. It warned against pollution, overpopulation and uncontrolled growth.

ALL THIS IS VALID, of course.

The City of Petaluma and the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce have demonstrated interest in nurturing the recreational potential of the river and its environs.

This, too, is encouraging.

Take a look at the map, however, and you will see that about a third of the west bank of the Petaluma River lies neither within the limits of Sonoma County nor the city of Petaluma.

Add the navigable and potentially most desirable portion of San Antonio Creek (a Petaluma River tributary) and you have a shoreline equal to approximately half the length of the river which is outside the jurisdiction of the city of Petaluma and Sonoma County.

To date, no one from this "outside" area has given much thought to its preservation for recreational development and use.

IN THIS CASE, we of Marin are the "outsiders."

We have pretty much ignored and neglected the great potentials of the Petaluma River basin which we share with our neighbors to the east and north.

Better late than never that we should become interested.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and the city of Novato could and should borrow a leaf from Petaluma's book and focus some attention on the great potential of the river which runs past their doorstep.

The Marin County Chamber of Commerce and the Marin County Planning Commission could and should borrow a leaf from the Sonoma County Development Board's book and give study to cooperating in the effort to recognize and realize Petaluma River basin's full potential.

YESTERDAY in this space we noted that Paradise County Park on the bayshore was already overtaxed and we predicted that the county's newly acquired and about-to-be-opened McNear's park, also on the bayshore, is likely also to be overtaxed in the very near future.

A Marin county park on the shores of Petaluma River and or San Antonio Creek likewise would be enjoyed by many.

If we don't take action now, future generations will be deprived of the enjoyment of this great natural asset which lies unrecognized at our doorstep.

A GOOD PLACE to start is with the Sonoma County Development Board's citizen committee reports.

Summer Fog

Summer fog is one of the Bay Area's greatest assets. More than anything else it is responsible for moderating the heat of summer and making it such a pleasant season here.

Summer fog in Marin usually forms in the afternoon outside the Golden Gate, and sometimes on the southern slopes of Mount Tamalpais and the Sausalito hills. It forms a moving river 100 to 1,500 feet deep, flowing inland at an average rate of 16 miles an hour, carrying hundreds of thousands of tons of water inland each afternoon.

Sweeping over highway 101 above Sausalito, fog may not be welcomed by commuters. But when we think that above the fog the temperature may be 90 degrees, we are grateful for small favors.

Fog from the cool ocean is the Bay Area's natural airconditioning. If it doesn't always work — well, neither does the man-made kind.

Treasurer Makes Quick Use Of Bond Interest Ceiling Boost

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Like a kid with a bag of candy, the State of California lost no time in digging in when the electorate adopted Proposition 7 at the recent primary election.

Prop. 7 is the authorization for a higher interest ceiling on state bonds. The election was June 2, and first sale of bonds at the new interest rates, which will be higher than the presently authorized 5 per cent, will be just two weeks later, June 16.

ON THAT DATE, State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest will sell $300 million worth of state bonds. The offering will include $200 million in bond anticipation notes to finance the state water project construction; $50 million in state school building aid bonds, and $50 million in higher education construction bonds.

Sale of the one-year bond anticipation notes would repay money borrowed from the general fund this spring, and would provide funds for pushing the state water project closer to completion.

The school building aid bonds would mature over a 15-year period starting July 1, 1971, with an average maturity of about eight years.

The higher education construction bonds also would have a 15-year maturity period, starting next July 1, and would carry the same maturity.

MRS. PRIEST SAID that passage of the proposition has enabled the state to resume bond selling acitivities, which had all but been halted during the past 15 months because of soaring interest rates which exceeded the legal limit of 5 per cent. The new ceiling is 7 per cent, subject to legislative adjustment if needed to meet market conditions.

Some indication of what the people of California let themselves in for can be gained from the annual report of the state treasurer on California's bond situation.

THERE ARE MORE than one billion dollars worth of bonds waiting to be sold, at interest rates higher than 5 per cent. No one knows the exact interest rate until the bonds are sold, because they are purchased on bid. But the rate is bound to be more than 5 per cent, and 7 or less per cent at the top. .

There are outstanding bonds out totaling $4,671,046,000, that have to be redeemed by the year 2019, roughly 49 years hence, when children being born at the present time will have lived considerably more than half their lives.

The interest on those outstanding bonds will amount to $2,689,220,537, or more than half of the amount to be used in retiring the bonds, all of which brings the total debt on the state's general obligation bonds to $7,360,266,537.

AND THIS IS PLUS the more than a billion dollars in bonds to be sold because the voters already have authorized them.

All of which will bring the state's bonded debt perilously close to $10 billion.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Protest Group Lacks Long Hair, Notice

The board of directors of a brand-new protest group meet in Marin County each week and there isn't a beard nor bead in sight. Nor are there armed militants nor unwashed bearers of crude placards nor steely-eyed rioters nor hysterical shouters of obscene imprecations. There is simply a group of business and professional men and women who protest the inequity in the management of Golden Gate Bridge resources and the planning of North Bay commuter transportation facilities. These people are the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association whose overall aim is to see that the powers of the bridge district be limited to the operation and maintenance of the bridge, that North Bay commuters have a voice in matters that concern them as users of the bridge and that they be permitted to participate in the planning of transit systems that affect them.

Because these weekly meetings of the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association are quiet and orderly, they attract no press interest. It is incongruous that, had a crowd of lunatics swarmed across the bridge each week screaming four-letter words in protest to bridge policy, the story would make page one of every newspaper in the area. When people get together quietly, with dignity, to protest essentially the same thing while formulating constructive proposals toward equitable solutions to existing problems, it creates not a ripple.

Taxes Outstrip Cost Of Living

. . . Taxing authorities may deny vehemently that assessments are made with budgets in mind . . . . However, my curiosity was aroused sufficiently to secure comparative figures which disclose quite a record for the past 10 years.

Using 1959 as a norm year, and with it in mind that many properties have been self-improved, I checked eight neighboring properties in my area. Six older homes showed, respectively, an assessed valuation increase of 90, 133, 140, 90, 68 and 170 per cent. For 1970, those same houses will show 120, 148, 160, 130, 94 and 215 per cent over 1959. Two newer houses built within the decade will show increases of 61 and 114 per cent. Altogether the average increase is 130 per cent.

Random figures show the home or non commercial owner provided a pro rata share of the tax base of 72.1 per cent in 1964, 85.89 per cent in 1966 and approximately 80 per cent in 1968. The assessed valuation of Marin County was $218,393,943 in 1959 and $583,388,558 in 1969 for an increase of 160 per cent. These figures are without regard to tax rates, just assessments.

During the norm or basic year of 1959 the cost of living index was established as $100; in 1969 it was $131.80, or an increase of 31.8 per cent. This bears little relation to Marin County property taxes.

For modern computation, the dollar was, during the same basic year of 1959, considered to be worth 100 cents; in 1970 it is considered to be worth 75.9 cents, or a drop in value of 24 per cent, which still bears little relation to Marin County figures.

I have heard it said that figures can be used to prove anything you want them to prove. If this be true, I should like to have it shown just how much better are our schools, our roads, our relief system, our policing and our county administration in the same relation that basic tax increases of 130 to 160 per cent or better, bears to a cost of living increase of 32 per cent or a dollar devaluation of 24 per cent. I'd settle for either of these latter figures, but who can hold his breath that long?

If taxes seem confiscatory now who can guess what will happen if a recession takes hold. It's fair comment that the 1930's will prove to be the kindergarten years.

Better Uses For School Funds

We noticed a recent article in the Independent-Journal regarding the Coleman School Fair. While we applaud the concept of community involvement we deplore the notion that a sum in the neighborhood of $5,000 is to be used for a lawn. It would seem that the same energies used in preparing and executing a fair of this sort might be used to develop the drainage and planting of a lawn with volunteer labor and the $5,000, or the lion's share of that sum, could be used directly toward the enhancing of the educational program. Some examples of more beneficial enrichments might include remedial teachers, art teachers, playground equipment or field trips.

We feel that in this day of "meaningful involvement" there are many parents and community members who would gladly get behind such a project as landsacping and planting a grass field with the guidance of a consultant.

How Rationalize Our Conscience?

Accepting the fact that all we have to judge by are the commercialized news sources, nevertheless how do we rationalize the national moral conscience?

In example, there's the comparatively slight "seek and destroy" operation in Cambodia magnified hysterically out of proportion. Ecology — cannilly distorted into an immediate, impending world-wide disaster. Legal abortion — now to become a crutch in support of a sexually free and wanton society.

Can we find the truths in our conscience if we answer these questions? How do we withdraw our armies from battle without rear-guard protection? Is pollution a frantic "now" disaster, or a sly attempt to weaken our capitalistic structure? How can we abort and take the life of an innocent infant yet magnaminously refrain from taking the criminal life of a condemned murderer?

Above all, we certainly are not educated human beings if our conscience closes our minds and refuses to evaluate a counter viewpoint.

Why School Bond Issues Defeated

The reason that school bonds have been voted down regularly may be found in a recent I-J news item: "Ross Adopts A Calendar of 175 (School) Days."

This means that school doors are closed 52.1 per cent of the year; a normal business firm which closes weekends and holidays is inoperative only 30.7 per cent of the time.

In these days of high costs and exorbitant taxes, a sensible voter will not be a party to a continuation of this kind of wasteful luxury. Let the school districts start utilizing the facilities they now have.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

AN OLD, OLD MAN was rocking peacefully on the porch of a tiny village store when one of those flashy European racing cars came to a grinding stop and two hep city characters emerged. "Hey, grandpa," called one of them derisively, "how long has this hole in the woods been dead?" The old, old man regarded them serenely over the rim of his spectacles, then answered calmly, "Can't be very long, I figure. You're the first buzzards I've seen."

OVERHEARD:

Motorcycle cop to speedster he's just flagged: "I'm only doing 80. How much were you only doing?"

Exasperated husband to wife: "For the first time since we're married, you're wrong AGAIN!"

Thai Mercenary Deal Revives Old Ghost Of Credibility Gap

WASHINGTON — Credibility gap was a phrase that haunted the Johnson Administration. Now, once more, the evidence is beginning to come in showing how difficult it is in an open society to wage an undeclared war.

After a prolonged wrangle with the State Department Sen. Stuart Symington's subcommittee brought out the facts about the big money contribution to Thailand for furnishing a Thai combat division for the Vietnam War. Besides an outright payment of $50 million a year, Thailand demanded and got an additional $30 million in military assistance and a battery of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

These were secret commitments, publicly denied by the highest Thai officials. The total bill for the training, equipment and individual allowances of the 13,000 Thai troops was $200 million, the report of the Symington committee shows.

WHAT MAKES THIS so timely is the announcement from Bangkok that Thai "volunteers" will be sent to fight in Cambodia. Thailand's premier, Thansom Kittikachorn, announced that the Cambodia "volunteers" would be armed and equipped by the United States, "unlike the (Thai) volunteers for Vietnam whose expenses are paid by Thailand." This opened a credibility gap that the Nixon Administration must somehow close. It is too late to bury secret agreements either past or present.

The American payments for the Thais in Vietnam range from $39 a month for privates to $450 for lieutenant generals. The Thai payment is, to be sure, only a small part of the total bill submitted by America's "allies" for contributions of one kind and another to the war in Vietnam.

Having pried into another example of this same secrecy, in this instance in the Philippines, Symington is engaged in a hassle with State and Defense over censorship of the transcript of the hearings. The Philippine case looks even more dubious than the under-the-table deal in Thailand.

The Defense Department provided a total of $38.8 million for Philippine support troops, 2,200 reduced subsequently to 1,500, with all finally withdrawn six months ago. What happened to the money is almost as mysterious as what this token force actually did during its stay in Vietnam.

THE GENERAL ACCOUNTING office was able to trace checks theoretically providing allowances and supplies just under $40 million to the Philippine Secretary of National Defense, Ernesto Mata. They were deposited in the Philippine Veterans Bank in Manila.

No accounting was asked for and there is no record to show that the money for allowances — on the same scale as the Thai allowances — ever filtered down. Comptroller Gen. Elmer Staats reported to the Symington committee that he had been denied access to records that might have shown where the funds went. Documentation for perhaps $30 million has been run down.

Symington is convinced that the balance of the money stayed with the sticky fingers of very high officials in Manila. While this may never be established, the denial to the general accounting office of facts that must be of record somewhere is damning in itself. And, in the meantime, the wrangle goes on, as it went on for many weeks over that Thai report, to release what is certain to be a heavily censored transcript.

THIS IS ALL DIRECTLY relevant to events in Cambodia. Hiring mercenaries to do the fighting may be an essential of the underclared war the United States is waging in Southeast Asia. But the very least that should be expected is an honest accounting to civilian authority fo where the money goes. Short of that, the end result is doubt and distrust, a credibility gap as wide as the Grand Canyon.

In a closed society such as the Soviet Union they do these things differently. For at least four years Soviet technicians and pilots have been in Egypt operating the missile defenses and in recent weeks flying defensive missions in MIG. As the SAM-3 missile defenses are extended to the Suez Canal line, the number of Soviet military is probably well over 10,000 today.

Russian coffins have been shipped back to the home land with casualties in that undeclared war. The next of kin are told that the husband or father died in an auto accident. Unless it be through a small elite underground, not a word of this is known to the Soviet public.

Yet, even in that closed world, the signs are multiplying that with advanced scientific and technological education it is difficult or impossible to keep the curtain of ignorance pulled tight. Courageous men and women are daring to speak out. And, while they are still only a tiny minority, their example promises to be contagious.

Congress Aiming Guns At The Swiss Bank Accounts

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Anonymously numbered Swiss bank accounts, key to a thousand mystery novels and spy thrillers, are coming under intense congressional scrutiny as a reallige adjunct to organized crime.

Unlike many of the crime inquiries, widely publicized in the House and Senate, this one may produce quick legislative action. A Senate Banking subcommittee began hearings this week on a bill, already passed by the House, which would curb use in the United States of secret ban counts in Switzerland and other nations which shelter them.

The House-approved bill is being touted as a blow against white-collar crime. That means not only illegal financial dealings by unscrupulous businessmen but also the financing of such on-the-street criminal operations as narcotics traffic by manicured and scented crime syndicate bosses.

The measure is designed to illuminate the use of secret accounts by Americans through record keeping. Residents of the United States would be required to maintain records, or file reports, of transactions with foreign financial institutions. The Treasury would be empowered to require reports of major exports and imports of currency and other legal tender.

In a recently publicized court action, two St. Louis businessmen were convicted in a $4 million fraud involving a U. S. Navy rocket-launcher contract. With the help of Swiss bank employees, payments to dummy subcontractors were paid into Swiss bank accounts. In this instance Swiss law was violated, and bank employees were implicated in the conspiracy.

Proceeds from the sale of $950,000 worth of heroin shipped into the United States by two convicted narcotics traffickers, were shown to have been transmitted through New York to numbered bank accounts in Switzerland.

THE HOUSE-APPROVED bill imposes other domestic record-keeping requirements on banks. Some are viewed as burdensome, and the measure may encounter organized opposition in the Senate. If it becomes bogged down, another Senate subcommittee may quickly get into the act.

The Senate Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., is already doing investigative spade work on the use of numbered bank accounts by Mafia leaders and other members of the underworld elite. Hearings are expected later.

Marin Should Follow Up On Petaluma River Study

It is encouraging to see that a body like the Sonoma County Development Board has begun to recognize the recreational potential of the Petaluma River.

Not long ago, that board released the first reports of its citizen committees studying the Petaluma River basin.

The reports contained recommendations for the preservation of the basin's pastoral environment and encouraged recreational development. It warned against pollution, overpopulation and uncontrolled growth.

ALL THIS IS VALID, of course.

The City of Petaluma and the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce have demonstrated interest in nurturing the recreational potential of the river and its environs.

This, too, is encouraging.

Take a look at the map, however, and you will see that about a third of the west bank of the Petaluma River lies neither within the limits of Sonoma County nor the city of Petaluma.

Add the navigable and potentially most desirable portion of San Antonio Creek (a Petaluma River tributary) and you have a shoreline equal to approximately half the length of the river which is outside the jurisdiction of the city of Petaluma and Sonoma County.

To date, no one from this "outside" area has given much thought to its preservation for recreational development and use.

IN THIS CASE, we of Marin are the "outsiders."

We have pretty much ignored and neglected the great potentials of the Petaluma River basin which we share with our neighbors to the east and north.

Better late than never that we should become interested.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and the city of Novato could and should borrow a leaf from Petaluma's book and focus some attention on the great potential of the river which runs past their doorstep.

The Marin County Chamber of Commerce and the Marin County Planning Commission could and should borrow a leaf from the Sonoma County Development Board's book and give study to cooperating in the effort to recognize and realize Petaluma River basin's full potential.

YESTERDAY in this space we noted that Paradise County Park on the bayshore was already overtaxed and we predicted that the county's newly acquired and about-to-be-opened McNear's park, also on the bayshore, is likely also to be overtaxed in the very near future.

A Marin county park on the shores of Petaluma River and or San Antonio Creek likewise would be enjoyed by many.

If we don't take action now, future generations will be deprived of the enjoyment of this great natural asset which lies unrecognized at our doorstep.

A GOOD PLACE to start is with the Sonoma County Development Board's citizen committee reports.

Summer Fog

Summer fog is one of the Bay Area's greatest assets. More than anything else it is responsible for moderating the heat of summer and making it such a pleasant season here.

Summer fog in Marin usually forms in the afternoon outside the Golden Gate, and sometimes on the southern slopes of Mount Tamalpais and the Sausalito hills. It forms a moving river 100 to 1,500 feet deep, flowing inland at an average rate of 16 miles an hour, carrying hundreds of thousands of tons of water inland each afternoon.

Sweeping over highway 101 above Sausalito, fog may not be welcomed by commuters. But when we think that above the fog the temperature may be 90 degrees, we are grateful for small favors.

Fog from the cool ocean is the Bay Area's natural airconditioning. If it doesn't always work — well, neither does the man-made kind.

Treasurer Makes Quick Use Of Bond Interest Ceiling Boost

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Like a kid with a bag of candy, the State of California lost no time in digging in when the electorate adopted Proposition 7 at the recent primary election.

Prop. 7 is the authorization for a higher interest ceiling on state bonds. The election was June 2, and first sale of bonds at the new interest rates, which will be higher than the presently authorized 5 per cent, will be just two weeks later, June 16.

ON THAT DATE, State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest will sell $300 million worth of state bonds. The offering will include $200 million in bond anticipation notes to finance the state water project construction; $50 million in state school building aid bonds, and $50 million in higher education construction bonds.

Sale of the one-year bond anticipation notes would repay money borrowed from the general fund this spring, and would provide funds for pushing the state water project closer to completion.

The school building aid bonds would mature over a 15-year period starting July 1, 1971, with an average maturity of about eight years.

The higher education construction bonds also would have a 15-year maturity period, starting next July 1, and would carry the same maturity.

MRS. PRIEST SAID that passage of the proposition has enabled the state to resume bond selling acitivities, which had all but been halted during the past 15 months because of soaring interest rates which exceeded the legal limit of 5 per cent. The new ceiling is 7 per cent, subject to legislative adjustment if needed to meet market conditions.

Some indication of what the people of California let themselves in for can be gained from the annual report of the state treasurer on California's bond situation.

THERE ARE MORE than one billion dollars worth of bonds waiting to be sold, at interest rates higher than 5 per cent. No one knows the exact interest rate until the bonds are sold, because they are purchased on bid. But the rate is bound to be more than 5 per cent, and 7 or less per cent at the top.

There are outstanding bonds out totaling $4,671,046,000, that have to be redeemed by the year 2019, roughly 49 years hence, when children being born at the present time will have lived considerably more than half their lives.

The interest on those outstanding bonds will amount to $2,689,220,537, or more than half of the amount to be used in retiring the bonds, all of which brings the total debt on the state's general obligation bonds to $7,360,266,537.

AND THIS IS PLUS the more than a billion dollars in bonds to be sold because the voters already have authorized them.

All of which will bring the state's bonded debt perilously close to $10 billion.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Protest Group Lacks Long Hair, Notice

The board of directors of a brand-new protest group meet in Marin County each week and there isn't a beard nor bead in sight. Nor are there armed militants nor unwashed bearers of crude placards nor steely-eyed rioters nor hysterical shouters of obscene imprecations. There is simply a group of business and professional men and women who protest the inequity in the management of Golden Gate Bridge resources and the planning of North Bay commuter transportation facilities. These people are the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association whose overall aim is to see that the powers of the bridge district be limited to the operation and maintenance of the bridge, that North Bay commuters have a voice in matters that concern them as users of the bridge and that they be permitted to participate in the planning of transit systems that affect them.

Because these weekly meetings of the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association are quiet and orderly, they attract no press interest. It is incongruous that, had a crowd of lunatics swarmed across the bridge each week screaming four-letter words in protest to bridge policy, the story would make page one of every newspaper in the area. When people get together quietly, with dignity, to protest essentially the same thing while formulating constructive proposals toward equitable solutions to existing problems, it creates not a ripple.

Taxes Outstrip Cost Of Living

. . . Taxing authorities may deny vehemently that assessments are made with budgets in mind . . . . However, my curiosity was aroused sufficiently to secure comparative figures which disclose quite a record for the past 10 years.

Using 1959 as a norm year, and with it in mind that many properties have been self-improved, I checked eight neighboring properties in my area. Six older homes showed, respectively, an assessed valuation increase of 90, 133, 140, 90, 68 and 170 per cent. For 1970, those same houses will show 120, 148, 160, 130, 94 and 215 per cent over 1959. Two newer houses built within the decade will show increases of 61 and 114 per cent. Altogether the average increase is 130 per cent.

Random figures show the home or non commercial owner provided a pro rata share of the tax base of 72.1 per cent in 1964, 85.89 per cent in 1966 and approximately 80 per cent in 1968. The assessed valuation of Marin County was $218,393,943 in 1959 and $583,388,558 in 1969 for an increase of 160 per cent. These figures are without regard to tax rates, just assessments.

During the norm or basic year of 1959 the cost of living index was established as $100; in 1969 it was $131.80, or an increase of 31.8 per cent. This bears little relation to Marin County property taxes.

For modern computation, the dollar was, during the same basic year of 1959, considered to be worth 100 cents; in 1970 it is considered to be worth 75.9 cents, or a drop in value of 24 per cent, which still bears little relation to Marin County figures.

I have heard it said that figures can be used to prove anything you want them to prove. If this be true, I should like to have it shown just how much better are our schools, our roads, our relief system, our policing and our county administration in the same relation that basic tax increases of 130 to 160 per cent or better, bears to a cost of living increase of 32 per cent or a dollar devaluation of 24 per cent. I'd settle for either of these latter figures, but who can hold his breath that long?

If taxes seem confiscatory now who can guess what will happen if a recession takes hold. It's fair comment that the 1930's will prove to be the kindergarten years.

Better Uses For School Funds

We noticed a recent article in the Independent-Journal regarding the Coleman School Fair. While we applaud the concept of community involvement we deplore the notion that a sum in the neighborhood of $5,000 is to be used for a lawn. It would seem that the same energies used in preparing and executing a fair of this sort might be used to develop the drainage and planting of a lawn with volunteer labor and the $5,000, or the lion's share of that sum, could be used directly toward the enhancing of the educational program. Some examples of more beneficial enrichments might include remedial teachers, art teachers, playground equipment or field trips.

We feel that in this day of "meaningful involvement" there are many parents and community members who would gladly get behind such a project as landsacping and planting a grass field with the guidance of a consultant.

How Rationalize Our Conscience?

Accepting the fact that all we have to judge by are the commercialized news sources, nevertheless how do we rationalize the national moral conscience?

In example, there's the comparatively slight "seek and destroy" operation in Cambodia magnified hysterically out of proportion. Ecology — cannilly distorted into an immediate, impending world-wide disaster. Legal abortion — now to become a crutch in support of a sexually free and wanton society.

Can we find the truths in our conscience if we answer these questions? How do we withdraw our armies from battle without rear-guard protection? Is pollution a frantic "now" disaster, or a sly attempt to weaken our capitalistic structure? How can we abort and take the life of an innocent infant yet magnaminously refrain from taking the criminal life of a condemned murderer?

Above all, we certainly are not educated human beings if our conscience closes our minds and refuses to evaluate a counter viewpoint.

Why School Bond Issues Defeated

The reason that school bonds have been voted down regularly may be found in a recent I-J news item: "Ross Adopts A Calendar of 175 (School) Days."

This means that school doors are closed 52.1 per cent of the year; a normal business firm which closes weekends and holidays is inoperative only 30.7 per cent of the time.

In these days of high costs and exorbitant taxes, a sensible voter will not be a party to a continuation of this kind of wasteful luxury. Let the school districts start utilizing the facilities they now have.

Thai Mercenary Deal Revives Old Ghost Of Credibility Gap

WASHINGTON — Credibility gap was a phrase that haunted the Johnson Administration. Now, once more, the evidence is beginning to come in showing how difficult it is in an open society to wage an undeclared war.

After a prolonged wrangle with the State Department Sen. Stuart Symington's subcommittee brought out the facts about the big money contribution to Thailand for furnishing a Thai combat division for the Vietnam War. Besides an outright payment of $50 million a year, Thailand demanded and got an additional $30 million in military assistance and a battery of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

These were secret commitments, publicly denied by the highest Thai officials. The total bill for the training, equipment and individual allowances of the 13,000 Thai troops was $200 million, the report of the Symington committee shows.

WHAT MAKES THIS so timely is the announcement from Bangkok that Thai "volunteers" will be sent to fight in Cambodia. Thailand's premier, Thansom Kittikachorn, announced that the Cambodia "volunteers" would be armed and equipped by the United States, "unlike the (Thai) volunteers for Vietnam whose expenses are paid by Thailand." This opened a credibility gap that the Nixon Administration must somehow close. It is too late to bury secret agreements either past or present.

The American payments for the Thais in Vietnam range from $39 a month for privates to $450 for lieutenant generals. The Thai payment is, to be sure, only a small part of the total bill submitted by America's "allies" for contributions of one kind and another to the war in Vietnam.

Having pried into another example of this same secrecy, in this instance in the Philippines, Symington is engaged in a hassle with State and Defense over censorship of the transcript of the hearings. The Philippine case looks even more dubious than the under-the-table deal in Thailand.

The Defense Department provided a total of $38.8 million for Philippine support troops, 2,200 reduced subsequently to 1,500, with all finally withdrawn six months ago. What happened to the money is almost as mysterious as what this token force actually did during its stay in Vietnam.

THE GENERAL ACCOUNTING office was able to trace checks theoretically providing allowances and supplies just under $40 million to the Philippine Secretary of National Defense, Ernesto Mata. They were deposited in the Philippine Veterans Bank in Manila.

No accounting was asked for and there is no record to show that the money for allowances — on the same scale as the Thai allowances — ever filtered down. Comptroller Gen. Elmer Staats reported to the Symington committee that he had been denied access to records that might have shown where the funds went. Documentation for perhaps $30 million has been run down.

Symington is convinced that the balance of the money stayed with the sticky fingers of very high officials in Manila. While this may never be established, the denial to the general accounting office of facts that must be of record somewhere is damning in itself. And, in the meantime, the wrangle goes on, as it went on for many weeks over that Thai report, to release what is certain to be a heavily censored transcript.

THIS IS ALL DIRECTLY relevant to events in Cambodia. Hiring mercenaries to do the fighting may be an essential of the underclared war the United States is waging in Southeast Asia. But the very least that should be expected is an honest accounting to civilian authority fo where the money goes. Short of that, the end result is doubt and distrust, a credibility gap as wide as the Grand Canyon.

THE CONSERVATION WAR

A Cause With Appeal For Every Faction

By JOE WING

Will the current craze for ecology be just another passing fad?

After the college kids, the politicians and the well-meaning housewifes have had their fun marching and shouting and picking up tin cans, will they turn to other newer and more exciting causes?

NOT IF THEY VALUE their lives they won't. Nor will they be able to do so easily because, though the iVetnam war, for instance, is going to phase out sooner or later, the pollution crisis is one that will be with us always. We'll be lucky if there is any real progress this decade.

Behind the drive against air and water pollution, against noisesome garbage and sewage, against thoughtless destruction of wildlife and its habitat, against desecration of beauty spots and the despoiling of land and sea, there is an issue even more fundamental than the quality of life about which we hear so much.

The issue is whether man is headed, like the dinosaur before him, towards his own destruction. The dinosaurs weren't smart enough to adjust to changes in their ecology. Although the brains in our little bodies are bigger than those of the dinosaur, are we that much smarter?

ONE HOPEFUL SIGN for the future is a research report from General Electric that Americans will be less concerned in coming years with material things and more interested in life's quality.

Fortunately for its survival, the ecology craze has things going for it that are lacking even in such causes as abolition of the bomb.

First, it's a cause with demonstrated appeal not just for youth or the elderly or the middle aged, but for everybody.

Second, the problems of conservation and the allied pursuit of nature study are so fascinating that, once recognized, they are hard to sweep away into a dark corner of the mind.

Third, these problems are ones that nearly every individual can help solve in some small measure by his own individual, practical effort.

HE PROBABLY cannot take a single tangible step towards banning the bomb, but most definitely he can make some contribution toward cutting down on water pollution, smog or litter, and even toward such larger matters as better sewage disposal, preservation of wild lands, and protection of birds and other living things. He can't pass the whole buck on these matters to politicians and to industry. Not only must he do his part individually, but unless politicans and industries know he wants action and means business there will be none.

In spite of all the talk about conservation, hosts of Americans who consider themselves in sympathy with the general idea go right ahead wiping out insects both "good" and "bad". They persist in "cleaning up" brushy or swampy or weedy areas that harbor much of our dwindling wildlife, or in shooting "varmints.'

THEY BURN TRASH, toss beer cans by the roadside, flaunt great neon signs that desecrate the landscape and gobble up ever more valuable electricity. They even contaminate streams and lakes, figuring that their own small contributions of filth won't make any difference.

Obviously a tremendous education job is needed. This is where the ordinary, garden variety nature lover, or lover of humanity, can do his part. As effective as anything; perhaps, is an intelligent, word-of-mouth campaign.

Just consider that in spite of all the fine talk by Smokey Bear, forest fires touched off by careless people rage each year through millions of acres. Obviously more talk is needed.

THE CONSERVATION WAR is not one, therefore, that will be won overnight. Even its battles will be long-drawn-out. Only if the growing army of amateur environmentalists has staying power will any substantial victory be achieved. But it will be too bad for the vanquished, or their children's children, if the war is lost.

'Working Within The System' Makes Youth Even More Feared

WASHINGTON — For years now, our congressmen on Capital Hill have been urging students to 'work within the system.' You can imagine their surprise and consternation recently when the students took them up on it.

Congressman Halyard Hoakum were just putting some balls in his golf bag when his secretary came in and said, "Sir, there's a delegation of students outside from your district and they want to see you."

The secretary showed 10 students in.

Congressman Hoakum said, "For heaven's sakes, it's Friday. Don't they know we don't work on Friday?"

"I told them that, but they still insisted on seeing you. They said they're from Fairweather State, your alma mater."

"ALLRIGHT, show them in," Congressman Hoakum said, "But be sure and interrupt me in 20 minutes. You can say the White House is calling."

A young girl said, "Congressman Hoakum, we've come to discuss with you what is going on in Vietnam."

CONGRESSMAN HOAKUM said, "Of course you have. Say, let's pose for a photo together." He buzzed his press man. "Jack, you want to bring in the camera and take some shots of me talking to a group of fine, dedicated Americans from Fairweather State? We could air mail it out there for Monday morning's papers. Good."

Congressman Hoakum said, "Now gather around the desk here and pretend like you have something really serious to say."

"WE DO HAVE something serious to say," a boy said. "Congressman Hoakum, the students at Fairweather State are concerned over the way the President has been . . ."

"Say, how's the football team going to be?" the congressman asked. "Coach Fogel told me he might get a bowl invitation this year."

A girl pursued the subject, "We are fed up with rhetoric and pablum. We want our representatives in Congress to do something."

"I know exactly how you feel," Congressman Hoakum said. "When I was a student I felt the same way. I said, 'Why can't we change things?' But since I've been in public life, I've taken a more realistic view. But you're too young to know that, and I envy your idealism. If I were your age, I'd be doing the same thing you're doing."

"HOW CAN WE change things, Congressman Hoakum?"

"By working through the system. That's the American way. Our government with its checks and balances provides for everyone to have a voice in this country. And no one believes in the right of peaceful dissent more than I do. You getting all this on tape, Jack?"

"Congressman Hoakum," the girl spokesman said, "you have been a great help to us and have shown us what we have to do."

"It's wonderful that we can still communicate. What are you going to do?"

"WE're GOING to get all the students at Fairweather State to work for your defeat in November."

"We'll see that it's your last one."

The students marched out singing. Hoakum, his head in his hands, said to his press man, "Jack, call J. Edgar Hoover and tell him to find the SOB who's trying to get kids to work within the system."

Fires kill more than trees. While you are camping and having fun in the forests of the Redwood Region this year, use extreme caution. The wildlands are dry.

France Has Own Vietnam Going In Far-Off Chad

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Toronto Telegram News Service

Almost unknown, and certainly unnoticed amid today's welter of problems, is a tiny war in the most backward and remote country of Africa — a war that's being called "France's little Vietnam."

For two years, Franch troops in the form of paratroopers and the Foreign Legion have been in Chad, Africa's most inaccessible landlocked country that is 1,000 miles from the nearest sea coast.

One might generously say that Chad is hurtling headlong into the 17th Century. It has had independence from France for 10 years now, and progress — political and economic — has been minimal.

Chad has no railways, no all-weather roads, and no newspapers.

Its president, Francois Tombalbaye, had never seen a white man until he was about 6 years old (he's not sure when he was born) and he once recalled that he thought his first white man was a "dead animal."

MEANING OF NAME

His name means: He Who Does Not Reveal Secrets — which isn't a bad name for a politician.

Or, as someone else once remarked wryly: "Tombalbaye believes in one man, one vote — once." Chad is a one-party country, and the only thing resembling a newspaper of public opinion is a government propaganda sheet with a daily circulation of about 700.

As far as France's involvement goes (3,500 troops and "advisers") there are disquieting parallels with Vietnam.

FEAR'S 'DOMINO'

Rightly or wrongly, Paris seems to feel that if Tombalbaye was overthrown and a rebellion successful, there might be a "domino reaction" — and the shock waves would endanger the other 10 former French colonies.

As his dependence on the French military has increased, Tombalbaby has progressively become more of a Francophile. He now says it was a "mistake" to try and replace the French administration too fast, and that once the rebellion is crushed things will be better.

Paris is concerned that the rebels gain support from Chad's Moslem — and revolutionary — neighbors to the north: Sudan and Libya. There have also been rumors of Chinese arms coming in — a rumor designed to turn on the taps of French aid.

AWKWARD QUESTIONS

In France, however, newspapers and the public have been asking awkward questions about the "unknown" war.

"The rebellion is becoming progressively more organized despite official propaganda which compares the rebels to bandits . . . it is close to civil war," says the influential newspaper Le Monde.

Just what is the rebellion about? First of all, it isn't ideological — or at least it didn't start out that way. But steadily and predictably it has taken left-wing overtones.

It is an extension of traditional nomads versus townspeople feuding, but added to be the authoritarianism of the Tombalbaye regime; the endemic corruption of the government; the uneven tax distribution; the incompetence of the administration; the rampant nepotism. Here are also religious animosities and the hostility between the Arab north and the Black south.

Chad is a human tragedy — even if there weren't a war being fought. It is inhabited by 3,500,000 people, of whom 5 per cent are Christian, 55 per cent are Moslem, and 40 per cent Pagan.

Its economy is subsistance, and based on cotton and cattle. In the rainy season the roads become tracks, and huge, shallow Lake Chad virtually doubles in size.

Its main claim to fame is that in 1935 there was a tornado that dumped record-size hailstones on the eastern region — as big as a man's fist on the fringes, and chunks of ice five-feet long and two feet in diameter at the center.

Chad is special to French traditionalists, since it was the first country to rally to de Gaulle in World War II. It was from the capital of Fort Lamy that General Leclerc led his "Chad army" northward.

It's a difficult, almost impossible, country to fight effectively in. And the French Foreign Legion often goes into battle riding bicycles.

But the French public opinion has had enough. Pressures have persuaded President Pompidou to pull a President Nixon — he's indicated that French forces will be withdrawn in July.

By that time Chad's military will be able to fight alone — with the help of a few hundred "advisers." Or so the theory goes. It sounds familiar to anyone conditioned on President Nixon's "Vietnamization" scheme.

Anyway, the rebels — a myriad of groups led by the National Liberation Front (FROLINA) — are hoping to hang on until that day. They think they can handle the Chad army.

The rebellion in Chad isn't of the stuff designed to make headlines. But the fact that the natives are restless is indicitive of the times: The choice for the country seems to either develop into a sort of crossroads of Africa, or to remain a blind alley.

For France, there is only grief and trouble ahead.

THE CONSERVATION WAR

A Cause With Appeal For Every Faction

By JOE WING

Will the current craze for ecology be just another passing fad?

After the college kids, the politicians and the well-meaning housewifes have had their fun marching and shouting and picking up tin cans, will they turn to other newer and more exciting causes?

NOT IF THEY VALUE their lives they won't. Nor will they be able to do so easily because, though the iVetnam war, for instance, is going to phase out sooner or later, the pollution crisis is one that will be with us always. We'll be lucky if there is any real progress this decade.

Behind the drive against air and water pollution, against noisesome garbage and sewage, against thoughtless destruction of wildlife and its habitat, against desecration of beauty spots and the despoiling of land and sea, there is an issue even more fundamental than the quality of life about which we hear so much.

The issue is whether man is headed, like the dinosaur before him, towards his own destruction. The dinosaurs weren't smart enough to adjust to changes in their ecology. Although the brains in our little bodies are bigger than those of the dinosaur, are we that much smarter?

ONE HOPEFUL SIGN for the future is a research report from General Electric that Americans will be less concerned in coming years with material things and more interested in life's quality.

Fortunately for its survival, the ecology craze has things going for it that are lacking even in such causes as abolition of the bomb.

First, it's a cause with demonstrated appeal not just for youth or the elderly or the middle aged, but for everybody.

Second, the problems of conservation and the allied pursuit of nature study are so fascinating that, once recognized, they are hard to sweep away into a dark corner of the mind.

Third, these problems are ones that nearly every individual can help solve in some small measure by his own individual, practical effort.

HE PROBABLY cannot take a single tangible step towards banning the bomb, but most definitely he can make some contribution toward cutting down on water pollution, smog or litter, and even toward such larger matters as better sewage disposal, preservation of wild lands, and protection of birds and other living things. He can't pass the whole buck on these matters to politicians and to industry. Not only must he do his part individually, but unless politicans and industries know he wants action and means business there will be none.

In spite of all the talk about conservation, hosts of Americans who consider themselves in sympathy with the general idea go right ahead wiping out insects both "good" and "bad". They persist in "cleaning up" brushy or swampy or weedy areas that harbor much of our dwindling wildlife, or in shooting "varmints.'

THEY BURN TRASH, toss beer cans by the roadside, flaunt great neon signs that desecrate the landscape and gobble up ever more valuable electricity. They even contaminate streams and lakes, figuring that their own small contributions of filth won't make any difference.

Obviously a tremendous education job is needed. This is where the ordinary, garden variety nature lover, or lover of humanity, can do his part. As effective as anything; perhaps, is an intelligent, word-of-mouth campaign.

Just consider that in spite of all the fine talk by Smokey Bear, forest fires touched off by careless people rage each year through millions of acres. Obviously more talk is needed.

THE CONSERVATION WAR is not one, therefore, that will be won overnight. Even its battles will be long-drawn-out. Only if the growing army of amateur environmentalists has staying power will any substantial victory be achieved. But it will be too bad for the vanquished, or their children's children, if the war is lost.

ART BUCHWALD

'Working Within The System' Makes Youth Even More Feared

WASHINGTON — For years now, our congressmen on Capital Hill have been urging students to 'work within the system.' You can imagine their surprise and consternation recently when the students took them up on it.

Congressman Halyard Hoakum were just putting some balls in his golf bag when his secretary came in and said, "Sir, there's a delegation of students outside from your district and they want to see you."

The secretary showed 10 students in.

Congressman Hoakum said, "For heaven's sakes, it's Friday. Don't they know we don't work on Friday?"

"I told them that, but they still insisted on seeing you. They said they're from Fairweather State, your alma mater."

"ALLRIGHT, show them in," Congressman Hoakum said, "But be sure and interrupt me in 20 minutes. You can say the White House is calling."

Congressman Hoakum stuck his hand out, "Well, this is a great honor . . .a great honor. How's everything at Fairweather State?"

A young girl said, "Congressman Hoakum, we've come to discuss with you what is going on in Vietnam."

CONGRESSMAN HOAKUM said, "Of course you have. Say, let's pose for a photo together." He buzzed his press man. "Jack, you want to bring in the camera and take some shots of me talking to a group of fine, dedicated Americans from Fairweather State? We could air mail it out there for Monday morning's papers. Good."

Congressman Hoakum said, "Now gather around the desk here and pretend like you have something really serious to say."

"WE DO HAVE something serious to say," a boy said. "Congressman Hoakum, the students at Fairweather State are concerned over the way the President has been . . ."

"Say, how's the football team going to be?" the congressman asked. "Coach Fogel told me he might get a bowl invitation this year."

A girl pursued the subject, "We are fed up with rhetoric and pablum. We want our representatives in Congress to do something."

"I know exactly how you feel," Congressman Hoakum said. "When I was a student I felt the same way. I said, 'Why can't we change things?' But since I've been in public life, I've taken a more realistic view. But you're too young to know that, and I envy your idealism. If I were your age, I'd be doing the same thing you're doing."

"HOW CAN WE change things, Congressman Hoakum?"

"By working through the system. That's the American way. Our government with its checks and balances provides for everyone to have a voice in this country. And no one believes in the right of peaceful dissent more than I do. You getting all this on tape, Jack?"

"Congressman Hoakum," the girl spokesman said, "you have been a great help to us and have shown us what we have to do."

"It's wonderful that we can still communicate. What are you going to do?"

"WE're GOING to get all the students at Fairweather State to work for your defeat in November."

"We'll see that it's your last one."

The students marched out singing. Hoakum, his head in his hands, said to his press man, "Jack, call J. Edgar Hoover and tell him to find the SOB who's trying to get kids to work within the system."

Fires kill more than trees. While you are camping and having fun in the forests of the Redwood Region this year, use extreme caution. The wildlands are dry.

France Has Own Vietnam Going In Far-Off Chad

By PETER WORTHINGTON

Toronto Telegram News Service

Almost unknown, and certainly unnoticed amid today's welter of problems, is a tiny war in the most backward and remote country of Africa — a war that's being called "France's little Vietnam."

For two years, Franch troops in the form of paratroopers and the Foreign Legion have been in Chad, Africa's most inaccessible landlocked country that is 1,000 miles from the nearest sea coast.

One might generously say that Chad is hurtling headlong into the 17th Century. It has had independence from France for 10 years now, and progress — political and economic — has been minimal.

Chad has no railways, no all-weather roads, and no newspapers.

Its president, Francois Tombalbaye, had never seen a white man until he was about 6 years old (he's not sure when he was born) and he once recalled that he thought his first white man was a "dead animal."

MEANING OF NAME

His name means: He Who Does Not Reveal Secrets — which isn't a bad name for a politician.

Or, as someone else once remarked wryly: "Tombalbaye believes in one man, one vote — once." Chad is a one-party country, and the only thing resembling a newspaper of public opinion is a government propaganda sheet with a daily circulation of about 700.

As far as France's involvement goes (3,500 troops and "advisers") there are disquieting parallels with Vietnam.

FEAR'S 'DOMINO'

Rightly or wrongly, Paris seems to feel that if Tombalbaye was overthrown and a rebellion successful, there might be a "domino reaction" — and the shock waves would endanger the other 10 former French colonies.

As his dependence on the French military has increased, Tombalbaby has progressively become more of a Francophile. He now says it was a "mistake" to try and replace the French administration too fast, and that once the rebellion is crushed things will be better.

Paris is concerned that the rebels gain support from Chad's Moslem — and revolutionary — neighbors to the north: Sudan and Libya. There have also been rumors of Chinese arms coming in — a rumor designed to turn on the taps of French aid.

AWKWARD QUESTIONS

In France, however, newspapers and the public have been asking awkward questions about the "unknown" war.

"The rebellion is becoming progressively more organized despite official propaganda which compares the rebels to bandits . . . it is close to civil war," says the influential newspaper Le Monde.

Doctor Plans Trip To Aid In Peru Peril

Dr. Alan J. Cooper of Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael will leave Saturday for the Peruvian Andes to help earthquake victims.

Cooper said he and 10 to 15 other Bay Area medical men will spend their vacation time in Peru at the 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition.

Most of the doctors are also mountain climbers, Cooper said, so they will be taken by helicopter to the remote eastern side of the Ordillera Blanca.

Although no accurate estimate of damage and deaths has come from the eastern region yet, the volunteers expect to use their climbing expertise to reach remote, high altitude villages, Cooper said.

Cooper, a Berkeley resident, was a member of the first group to scale Chopacalqui Notre in the Andes and used Yungay — the city buried under a slide during the May 30 quake — as a staging base.

The doctors will pay their own way and donate a month of their time.

Anyone who wishes to help pay the cost of the medical relief team should write to Nicholas Clinch, 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition, 5702 Hardwick Street, Bethesda, Md.

Cars Hit, Hurt Two Youths On Motorcycles

Two youths received minor injuries in separate motorcycle accidents yesterday, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Danny J. Smith, 13, of Woodacre, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut right knee after his scooter collided with a car driven by John Everette, of Woodacre, on private property near Hill Road, Woodacre, at 5 p.m., the patrol said.

John F. Canon, 17, of Hixson, Tenn., was treated for a scalp cut after an accident at San Pedro Road and Garden Avenue at 9:15 p.m., officers said.

Canon's motorcycle struck the side of a car driven by Richard P. Morris, 63, of 1201 Cambridge Street, Novato, which pulled out from Garden Avenue into his path, the patrol reported.

Auto Tolls To Be Reduced On Richmond Span

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

SACRAMENTO — Auto tolls on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge will be reduced from 75 cents to 65 cents starting July 1.

The California Toll Bridge Authority approved the cut Tuesday on recommendation of E. R. Foley, chief engineer of the Division of Bay Toll Crossings.

The authority had voted last Dec. 12 to cut the toll five cents effective July 1, but voted the additional cut after being told bridge traffic has increased 12 per cent in the last year.

The 30-cent commute book rate will be unchanged. However, tolls for cars pulling trailers will be reduced 10 cents, to $1.15 for a car with a single-axle trailer, $1.40 for a car and two-axle trailer, and $1.65 for a car and three-axle trailer.

Marijuana Count Denied In Court

James Hudson Lenhart, 38, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possessing marijuana and driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

A preliminary hearing was set for June 30.

Lenhart was arrested June 1 after he was seen driving erratically on Highway 101 by a California Highway Patrol officer. A search revealed a bottle of suspected marijuana.

Burton In Surprise Resignation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John Burton, in a surprise move, resigned Wednesday as president of the 10,000-member California Democratic Council because of "the press of legislative business."

The San Francisco lawmaker, who has headed the largest volunteer political organization in the state the past 15 months, siad he was stepping down because of "the press of legislative business, particularly in the areas of tax reform, the budget and adequate school financing."

Burton, in a statement issued by his office, said it would be "unfair" for him to continue as CDC president because he would not have adequate time to give to the organization in the months prior to the November election.

He said the legislative issues "will require our utmost attention between now and the end of the session. In all probability, the fall elections will be decided this summer in the legislative halls."

Burton said he sent a letter of resignation to officers and members of the CDC's board of directors.

Pit River Indians Take Wilderness Cause To TV

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pit River Indian leaders came to San Francisco for television appearances today, leaving their war with Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to simmer in the wilderness 230 miles to the northeast.

Tribal council leaders Mickey Gemmill and Raymond Lego were among the braves coming to this paleface stronghold, site of the headquarters of the mighty utilities firm which is among those the Indians accuse of occupying 3.5 million acres of land illegally taken from their ancestors during Gold Rush days.

Back along the Pit River at the "front," PG&E closed down an employes' vacation campground at Big Bend which the Indians three times have occupied at a cost of 50 people arrested.

Bail has been set at $315 each. As of Wednesday night, all but the last seven arrested had been bailed out of Shasta County Jail at Reeding or had been released on their own recognizance.

All face prosecution on charges of trespassing and entering unprotected private property.

"There are a lot of other nice campgrounds."

The spokesman, Grace Thorpe, is the daughter of famed Indian athlete Jim Thorpe. A former Phoenix, Ariz., real estate dealer, Miss Thorpe is among several "outside Indians" who have been helping the Pits in their campaign to regain former tribal lands.

Another is Richard Oakes, a Mohawk who was among the original Indian occupiers of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay last November.

Still another is Buffy Ste. Marie, the Canadian Cree folksinger who also was in Redding Wednesday to support the Pit cause.

The Pits held a council meeting Wednesday night at Hat Creek in an effort to iron out dissension that appeared in their ranks Wednesday when Ike Leaf, a 65-year-old Pit from the village of Likely in Modoc County, appeared at a Redding news conference and offered to testify against the Indians who had been arrested.

Claiming to be the tribal council chairman, Leaf told the news conference called by Shasta County Sheriff John Balma that he had been instructed by the tribal council to go on record as "opposing the action of these people and let it be known that the Pit River Indians are encouraged by its council to be peaceful, law-abiding citizens."

Shasta County Dist. Atty. Robert Baker produced a typed letter he said Leaf had written to him calling for prosecution of the arrested Indians.

Gemmill, chairman of the council at Hat Creek which has pushed the occupation of the Big Bend campground, said Leaf was council chairman six years ago, but isn't now.

Mrs. Rose McGarva, one of Gemmill's council members, said Leaf had not been a member of the council since 1964.

Leaf told reporters in broken English that the letter was typed by a judge's secretary at his village, Likely, in southern Modoc County.

British Oust U.S. Citizen For Drugs

LONDON (UPI)—A former American stockbroker identified as Roger Bonnor Lewis, 29, was ordered to leave Britain Wednesday after pleading guilty to possession of enough drugs for more than 10,000 hallucinogenic "trips."

Lewis was freed on two bonds of $1,200 each on condition he leave Britain immediately to receive medical treatment in the United States.

TV PREVIEW

Silent Majority Ranks High

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The tastes of the silent majority dominate television entertainment overwhelmingly, according to a ranking of the past season's video specials.

The ranking, in the weekly show business newspaper "Variety," goes as far down as 176th place in the ratings—and almost every top special reaffirms silent majority values.

Rated as the No. 1 show, from September to April, was Bob Hope's annual Christmas special, in which he visited American troops in Vietnam and elsewhere overseas.

Hope's specials, in fact, occupied seven of the top 11 spots.

Institutional, "respectable," old-fashioned entertainment was also emphasized in the content of the other highest-rated specials:

BEAUTY QUEENS

Beauty queens, movie stars, children's cartoons, the circus, ice shows, animal stories, football, traditional holiday tales, nature documentaries and favorite old entertainers.

Most specials aimed at the college-age audience or supposedly hip viewers finished very low in the ratings, as did most dramas and serious, topical documentaries.

A CBS special, "Draft Lottery," came in 55th—and that was high for such programming. "The Return of the Smothers Brothers," on NBC-TV, ranked 71st. Frank Sinatra's CBS-TV special was 91st, tied with the same network's Anne Bancroft musical comedy outing, which won a fistful of awards from the industry and critics.

A notable "CBS Playhouse" comedy-drama, "Sadbird," finished 116th. A special by the youthful musical heroes Simon and Garfunkel came in 122nd. Woody Allen's outstanding comedy hour ranked 150th.

LBJ'S HOUR

Lyndon Johnson's one-hour prime-time discussion of his decision to stop the Vietnam bombing rated no better than 158th. A good "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama about youthful rebellion at the time of Christ, "Neither Are We Enemies," finished 154th.

An NBC-TV hour employing classical and rock music, "The Switched-on Symphony," got much attention but came in only 159th.

Aside from six of Hope's programs, the top 10 specials included the academy Awards, the Miss America pageant, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," and the movie "Born Free," a big hit about lions.

OTHER SPECIALS

The top specials were: A Hope program, a Peggy Fleming-ice follies show, "He's Your Dog, Charlie Brown," "Frosty the Snowman" (another cartoon), "Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree" (also a cartoon), the Rowan and Martin special, "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer" (an umpteenth rerun of yet another cartoon) and, in a tie, variety shows by Jack Benny, Danny Thomas and Hope.

It is worth noting, by the way, that even when Hope tried to do something a little different—a book musical of his old Broadway hit, "Roberta"—he plunged to 77th.

Closed Session

Doctor Plans Trip To Aid In Peru Peril

Dr. Alan J. Cooper of Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael will leave Saturday for the Peruvian Andes to help earthquake victims.

Cooper said he and 10 to 15 other Bay Area medical men will spend their vacation time in Peru at the 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition.

Most of the doctors are also mountain climbers, Cooper said, so they will be taken by helicopter to the remote eastern side of the Ordillera Blanca.

Although no accurate estimate of damage and deaths has come from the eastern region yet, the volunteers expect to use their climbing expertise to reach remote, high altitude villages, Cooper said.

Cooper, a Berkeley resident, was a member of the first group to scale Chopacalqui Notre in the Andes and used Yungay — the city buried under a slide during the May 30 quake — as a staging base.

The doctors will pay their own way and donate a month of their time.

Anyone who wishes to help pay the cost of the medical relief team should write to Nicholas Clinch, 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition, 5702 Hardwick Street, Bethesda, Md.

Cars Hit, Hurt Two Youths On Motorcycles

Two youths received minor injuries in separate motorcycle accidents yesterday, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Danny J. Smith, 13, of Woodacre, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut right knee after his scooter collided with a car driven by John Everette, of Woodacre, on private property near Hill Road, Woodacre, at 5 p.m., the patrol said.

John F. Canon, 17, of Hixson, Tenn., was treated for a scalp cut after an accident at San Pedro Road and Garden Avenue at 9:15 p.m., officers said.

Canon's motorcycle struck the side of a car driven by Richard P. Morris, 63, of 1201 Cambridge Street, Novato, which pulled out from Garden Avenue into his path, the patrol reported.

Auto Tolls To Be Reduced On Richmond Span

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

SACRAMENTO — Auto tolls on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge will be reduced from 75 cents to 65 cents starting July 1.

The California Toll Bridge Authority approved the cut Tuesday on recommendation of E. R. Foley, chief engineer of the Division of Bay Toll Crossings.

The authority had voted last Dec. 12 to cut the toll five cents effective July 1, but voted the additional cut after being told bridge traffic has increased 12 per cent in the last year.

The 30-cent commute book rate will be unchanged. However, tolls for cars pulling trailers will be reduced 10 cents, to $1.15 for a car with a single-axle trailer, $1.40 for a car and two-axle trailer, and $1.65 for a car and three-axle trailer.

Marijuana Count Denied In Court

James Hudson Lenhart, 38, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possessing marijuana and driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

A preliminary hearing was set for June 30.

Lenhart was arrested June 1 after he was seen driving erratically on Highway 101 by a California Highway Patrol officer. A search revealed a bottle of suspected marijuana.

Burton In Surprise Resignation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John Burton, in a surprise move, resigned Wednesday as president of the 10,000-member California Democratic Council because of "the press of legislative business."

The San Francisco lawmaker, who has headed the largest volunteer political organization in the state the past 15 months, siad he was stepping down because of "the press of legislative business, particularly in the areas of tax reform, the budget and adequate school financing."

Burton, in a statement issued by his office, said it would be "unfair" for him to continue as CDC president because he would not have adequate time to give to the organization in the months prior to the November election.

He said the legislative issues "will require our utmost attention between now and the end of the session. In all probability, the fall elections will be decided this summer in the legislative halls."

Burton said he sent a letter of resignation to officers and members of the CDC's board of directors.

Pit River Indians Take Wilderness Cause To TV

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pit River Indian leaders came to San Francisco for television appearances today, leaving their war with Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to simmer in the wilderness 230 miles to the northeast.

Tribal council leaders Mickey Gemmill and Raymond Lego were among the braves coming to this paleface stronghold, site of the headquarters of the mighty utilities firm which is among those the Indians accuse of occupying 3.5 million acres of land illegally taken from their ancestors during Gold Rush days.

Back along the Pit River at the "front," PG&E closed down an employes' vacation campground at Big Bend which the Indians three times have occupied at a cost of 50 people arrested.

Bail has been set at $315 each. As of Wednesday night, all but the last seven arrested had been bailed out of Shasta County Jail at Reeding or had been released on their own recognizance.

All face prosecution on charges of trespassing and entering unprotected private property.

"There are a lot of other nice campgrounds."

The spokesman, Grace Thorpe, is the daughter of famed Indian athlete Jim Thorpe. A former Phoenix, Ariz., real estate dealer, Miss Thorpe is among several "outside Indians" who have been helping the Pits in their campaign to regain former tribal lands.

Another is Richard Oakes, a Mohawk who was among the original Indian occupiers of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay last November.

Still another is Buffy Ste. Marie, the Canadian Cree folksinger who also was in Redding Wednesday to support the Pit cause.

The Pits held a council meeting Wednesday night at Hat Creek in an effort to iron out dissension that appeared in their ranks Wednesday when Ike Leaf, a 65-year-old Pit from the village of Likely in Modoc County, appeared at a Redding news conference and offered to testify against the Indians who had been arrested.

Claiming to be the tribal council chairman, Leaf told the news conference called by Shasta County Sheriff John Balma that he had been instructed by the tribal council to go on record as "opposing the action of these people and let it be known that the Pit River Indians are encouraged by its council to be peaceful, law-abiding citizens."

Shasta County Dist. Atty. Robert Baker produced a typed letter he said Leaf had written to him calling for prosecution of the arrested Indians.

Gemmill, chairman of the council at Hat Creek which has pushed the occupation of the Big Bend campground, said Leaf was council chairman six years ago, but isn't now.

Mrs. Rose McGarva, one of Gemmill's council members, said Leaf had not been a member of the council since 1964.

Leaf told reporters in broken English that the letter was typed by a judge's secretary at his village, Likely, in southern Modoc County.

British Oust U.S. Citizen For Drugs

LONDON (UPI)—A former American stockbroker identified as Roger Bonnor Lewis, 29, was ordered to leave Britain Wednesday after pleading guilty to possession of enough drugs for more than 10,000 hallucinogenic "trips."

Lewis was freed on two bonds of $1,200 each on condition he leave Britain immediately to receive medical treatment in the United States.

TV PREVIEW

Silent Majority Ranks High

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The tastes of the silent majority dominate television entertainment overwhelmingly, according to a ranking of the past season's video specials.

The ranking, in the weekly show business newspaper "Variety," goes as far down as 176th place in the ratings—and almost every top special reaffirms silent majority values.

Rated as the No. 1 show, from September to April, was Bob Hope's annual Christmas special, in which he visited American troops in Vietnam and elsewhere overseas.

Hope's specials, in fact, occupied seven of the top 11 spots.

Institutional, "respectable," old-fashioned entertainment was also emphasized in the content of the other highest-rated specials:

BEAUTY QUEENS

Beauty queens, movie stars, children's cartoons, the circus, ice shows, animal stories, football, traditional holiday tales, nature documentaries and favorite old entertainers.

Most specials aimed at the college-age audience or supposedly hip viewers finished very low in the ratings, as did most dramas and serious, topical documentaries.

A CBS special, "Draft Lottery," came in 55th—and that was high for such programming. "The Return of the Smothers Brothers," on NBC-TV, ranked 71st. Frank Sinatra's CBS-TV special was 91st, tied with the same network's Anne Bancroft musical comedy outing, which won a fistful of awards from the industry and critics.

A notable "CBS Playhouse" comedy-drama, "Sadbird," finished 116th. A special by the youthful musical heroes Simon and Garfunkel came in 122nd. Woody Allen's outstanding comedy hour ranked 150th.

LBJ'S HOUR

Lyndon Johnson's one-hour prime-time discussion of his decision to stop the Vietnam bombing rated no better than 158th. A good "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama about youthful rebellion at the time of Christ, "Neither Are We Enemies," finished 154th.

An NBC-TV hour employing classical and rock music, "The Switched-on Symphony," got much attention but came in only 159th.

Aside from six of Hope's programs, the top 10 specials included the academy Awards, the Miss America pageant, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," and the movie "Born Free," a big hit about lions.

OTHER SPECIALS

The top specials were: A Hope program, a Peggy Fleming-ice follies show, "He's Your Dog, Charlie Brown," "Frosty the Snowman" (another cartoon), "Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree" (also a cartoon), the Rowan and Martin special, "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer" (an umpteenth rerun of yet another cartoon) and, in a tie, variety shows by Jack Benny, Danny Thomas and Hope.

It is worth noting, by the way, that even when Hope tried to do something a little different—a book musical of his old Broadway hit, "Roberta"—he plunged to 77th.

Sandoval Loses Bail Plea In S.F.

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO—Ex-convict Jaime Sandoval, charged with the murders of a San Francisco man and his housekeeper, has been denied bail in San Francisco Municipal Court.

Sandoval, 39, a former male-nurse in San Rafael, is accused of killing Edelmiro Huertas, a long-time friend, and Huertas' maid, Carmen Acenzio. Their bullet riddled bodies were found earlier this month at the bottome of Devil's Slide.

Sandoval was a central figure in a Peninsula death mystery 10 years ago. He was the only witness to the death of Virginia Douglas of Millbrae, who was fatally injured in a fall from a sea-cliff in Puerto Rico. Ten days later her husband, Donald, committed suicide, leaving a note saying he doubted his wife's death was an accident.

The following year Sandoval was convicted of molesting the Douglas' two young sons and served time in San Quentin State Prison.

Judge Joseph G. Kennedy on Tuesday set June 23 for a preliminary hearing.

Philosophy Talk Dated At Church

Lena Wikramaratne, director of the Montessori Teacher Training Institute in Palo Alto, will discuss the "Philosophy of Montessori" at 8 p.m. Saturday at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, 2626 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax.

Her talk will be in conjunction with the 100th anniversary of Maria Montessori's birth.

Miss Wikramaratne began working with Maria and Mario Montessori in 1941. She is a member of the pedagogical board of the Association Montessori Internationale.

Cadet Philip H. Wray of San Rafael received the Cooperative Service Medal and the Excellence in Scholarship Medal for the second highest scholastic average for the year and the Sons of the American Revolution Medal for outstanding citizenship.

Cadet Steven J. Appleby of San Rafael was awarded the Daughters of the American Revolution Medal for outstanding qualities.

Plaques were presented to Cadet Timothy H. Huber of Mill Valley for Foreign Languages and Peter Trask of Corte Madera for Mathematics.

Cadet Stephen Rayburn of San Anselmo was selected Battalion Adjutant for next year and also received the Superior Cadet Award.

The Athletic Proficiency Medal was awarded to Cadet Lance Blackburn of San Anselmo.

Recycling Drive Gets Tons Of Refuse

BERKELEY (AP) — Coordinators of the San Francisco Bay Area's first multipurpose recycling program say they have collected more than 50 tons of waste to be processed into usable new materials.

The total includes 40 tons of newsprint, 4 tons of common tin-plated steel cans, 6 tons of glass and one-half ton of aluminum cans.

Swim Program For Disabled

The Marin County Easter Seal Society will sponsor its first swim program for physically disabled adults at the Terra Linda Recreation Center, 670 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda, on Wednesdays at 11 a.m.

The swim program will be conducted along with the existing recreation program with Laurie Lanham, recreation therapist, as instructor.

Anyone interested in participating may notify society headquarters, 1601 Second Street, San Rafael.

Reed School Pupils Aid Africa Fund

A village in Africa will get a new school because of the efforts of students at the Reed School in Tiburon who raised $750 this year to donate to the School Partnership Program sponsored by the Peace Corps.

The funds will be used to purchase building construction materials, Mosconi said. The villagers will donate the land and build the school with the assistance of a Peace Corps volunteer.

The children have requested their money be used for a school in Africa, Mosconi added. The Peace Corps has promised to let the children know the location and details of their partnership school, he said.

Since the self-help program was begun in 1964, according to Mosconi, 960 schools have been built abroad with contributions from more than 1200 American participants.

Checks On Medicaid

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky has adopted what may be one of the first computerized systems in the nation to pinpoint and correct abuses in its Medicaid program.

The heart of the operation is identification of both welfare clients and medical vendors whose claims under Medicaid seem to be out of line.

Muni Fare Hike Shelved In City

The board sent the proposed measure back to the Public Utilities Commission for further study after a public hearing. The new 25-cent a ride rate had been scheduled to go into effect June 29.

Also killed outright by supervisors was a proposal to double student fares to $1 for a book of 10 rides.

SPALDING — Robin L. Spalding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Spalding of 85 Chestnut Avenue, Ross, stationed with the Navy in Saigon has been promoted to petty officer third class. Spalding will return home on leave in August before being stationed aboard the destroyer, Joseph P. Kennedy, at Newport, R.I.

AMANS — Larry Amans of 203 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, will graduate Saturday in civil engineering in the honors program at Oregon State University.

State Allocates Highway Taxes

Marin County has received $119,407 and Sonoma County $162,170 as their share of last month's $12,471,759 allotment of highway users taxes, state Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced.

Marin cities sharing $9,332,882 apportionment to cities include: Belvedere, $2,028; Corte Madera, $5,567; Fairfax, $5,018; Larkspur, $5,570; Mill Valley, $7,934; Novato, $18,512; Ross, $2,133; San Anselmo, $8,636; San Rafael, $23,258; Sausalito, $4,596 and Tiburon, $4,272.

Southern Sonoma cities receiving allotments include: Cotati, $1,347; Petaluma, $15,394 and Rohnert Park, $4,377.

East Petaluma Civic Group Elects Officers

Two new officers have been elected by the East Petaluma Civic Association.

Donald P. Petro, a Petaluman for three years, was named vice president and Marvin Hale, a one-year resident, secretary.

Petro is employed by Romac Pacific Construction of San Rafael and Hale works for Gage-Babcock and Associations, Inc.

Petro, who heads the association membership drive, said memberships still are available and can be received by contacting him or any officers.

YMCA To Aid College Frosh

A five-session course for graduating high school seniors on "How to Study in College" sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association will be held June 22-26 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Dean Robert F. Schwarz of Purdue University, an author of the course, will instruct the classes, a YMCA spokesman announced.

The course will include topics on: how people learn and forget; the art of listening; how to take lecture notes; motivation for maximum performance; basic study formula; techniques for review and preparations for tests.

Car Tow-Away Zone Ordered For Petaluma

The first tow-away zone in Petaluma goes into effect Monday on east Washington Street between Copeland Street and the Highway 101 overpass.

Signs warning against stopping will be installed on the street while the lane patterns are being changed to permit the two-lane street to be expanded to three.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins said areas now used for street parking will become moving traffic lanes and that the parking ban will be enforced beginning on Monday. Cars blocking the free flow of traffic will be towed away at the owners' expense.

Radios For Mercy

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A new $300,000 emergency radio communications network links 12 hospitals in a mountainous 11-county region of southeastern Kentucky. It is designed to provide faster and more efficient medical treatment for rural residents of a 4,500-square-mile region.

Soft Cement To Save Lives

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Vermiculite concrete cushions, so soft that they can be dented with a thumb, are being designed for highway retaining walls and bridge abutments.

Research engineers, D. L. Ivey, Eugene Buth, and T. J. Hirsch of Texas A. and M. University's Transportation Institute developed the cushions to collapse under vehicle impact.

The program was funded by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads with the aim of reducing traffic deaths caused by cars striking existing rigid obstacles. Crash tests at speeds over 60 m.p.h. have verified the functioning of the cushion's ability to prevent serious consequences when a vehicle crashes into a concrete barrier.

East Petaluma Civic Group Elects Officers

Two new officers have been elected by the East Petaluma Civic Association.

Donald P. Petro, a Petaluman for three years, was named vice president and Marvin Hale, a one-year resident, secretary.

Petro is employed by Romac Pacific Construction of San Rafael and Hale works for Gage-Babcock and Associations, Inc.

Petro, who heads the association membership drive, said memberships still are available and can be received by contacting him or any officers.

YMCA To Aid College Frosh

A five-session course for graduating high school seniors on "How to Study in College" sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association will be held June 22-26 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Dean Robert F. Schwarz of Purdue University, an author of the course, will instruct the classes, a YMCA spokesman announced.

The course will include topics on: how people learn and forget; the art of listening; how to take lecture notes; motivation for maximum performance; basic study formula; techniques for review and preparations for tests.

State Allocates Highway Taxes

Marin County has received $119,407 and Sonoma County $162,170 as their share of last month's $12,471,759 allotment of highway users taxes, state Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced.

Marin cities sharing $9,332,882 apportionment to cities include: Belvedere, $2,028; Corte Madera, $5,567; Fairfax, $5,018; Larkspur, $5,570; Mill Valley, $7,934; Novato, $18,512; Ross, $2,133; San Anselmo, $8,636; San Rafael, $23,258; Sausalito, $4,596 and Tiburon, $4,272.

Southern Sonoma cities receiving allotments include: Cotati, $1,347; Petaluma, $15,394 and Rohnert Park, $4,377.

Car Tow-Away Zone Ordered For Petaluma

The first tow-away zone in Petaluma goes into effect Monday on east Washington Street between Copeland Street and the Highway 101 overpass.

Signs warning against stopping will be installed on the street while the lane patterns are being changed to permit the two-lane street to be expanded to three.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins said areas now used for street parking will become moving traffic lanes and that the parking ban will be enforced beginning on Monday. Cars blocking the free flow of traffic will be towed away at the owners' expense.

Radios For Mercy

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A new $300,000 emergency radio communications network links 12 hospitals in a mountainous 11-county region of southeastern Kentucky. It is designed to provide faster and more efficient medical treatment for rural residents of a 4,500-square-mile region.

Soft Cement To Save Lives

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Vermiculite concrete cushions, so soft that they can be dented with a thumb, are being designed for highway retaining walls and bridge abutments.

Research engineers, D. L. Ivey, Eugene Buth, and T. J. Hirsch of Texas A. and M. University's Transportation Institute developed the cushions to collapse under vehicle impact.

The program was funded by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads with the aim of reducing traffic deaths caused by cars striking existing rigid obstacles. Crash tests at speeds over 60 m.p.h. have verified the functioning of the cushion's ability to prevent serious consequences when a vehicle crashes into a concrete barrier.

Rent Reappraisal At Meadow Club

Despite the objections of board member Leo L. Stanley, the Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday called for a new appraisal of its lease agreement with the Meadow Club. (Another water district story, page 1).

Stanley eventually said he agreed to the new appraisal, which will be conducted by Real Estate Research Corp. of San Francisco.

San Anselmo appraiser David G. Cohn reported in April that the fair rental value of the 162 acres leased to the club is $5,000 a year. The club pays $480.

Cohn's report was met with immediate public criticism.

Board President Robert G. Anderson said yesterday that in terms of public interest, the Meadow Club lease is "the most important issue before this board since fluoridation."

Stanley began the discussion by voicing his opposition to a new apyraisals. He said he thought Cohn's report was fair, and that he preferred to have a "good tenant" who pays $5,000 a year and buys large quantities of water.

(William R. Seeger, general manager of the water district, told the Independent Journal after the board meeting that the Meadow Club's water bill is about $18,000 a year.)

"We shouldn't have a controversy because some man is disgruntled because he didn't get admitted to the club," Stanley said.

The most outspoken critic of Cohn's report has been Norman P. Higby of 59 San Marino Drive, San Rafael. Higby, a former golf course operator, told the board at its last meeting that Cohn's report was "inadequate, erroneous and irrelevant."

Stanley also questioned the $2,200 Seeger said Real Estate Research was asking.

Seeger called the firm "the Cadillac of the field" and said the company originally had asked for $3,000, but had agreed to $2,200. He said after the meeting that the fee may vary from $1,800 to $2,200.

Cohn's fee was $650.

With directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and William A. Marcus joining Anderson in support of the new appraisal, the board authorized Seeger to retain Real Estate Research to determine the fair rental value of the leased land.

Improvement District Pushed For Sewerage

The Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday declared its intention to create an improvement district to provide sewerage facilities for all Southern Marin areas draining into Richardson Bay.

The board also agreed to conduct a preliminary cost study of the plan.

Gen Mgr. William R. Seeger said it would take about a year to develop cost estimates and he estimated the cost of the study at $238,000.

The board scheduled a public hearing on the study proposal for 8 p.m. July 8 at the district office.

If the plan is adopted, the water district will provide sewerage collection and trucking facilities for the area now served by 10 sanitary districts.

The districts are Tamalpais Valley, Homestead Valley, Alto, Mill Valley, Richardson Bay, Tiburon, Belvedere, Sausalito-Marin City, Almonte and Kay Park.

The districts and the Marin County Board of Supervisors have asked the district to implement the plan.

The board yesterday appointed representatives of the districts to an advisory council for the study.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

RELOCATION — Accepted the low bid of $41,997 from Maggiora and Ghilotti, Inc., of Corte Madera for relocation of water lines along College Avenue and Corte Madera Creek in conjunction with the flood control project.

TANK — Approved plans and specifications and called for bids to be opened July 8 for the construction of the Escalle water tank in Larkspur.

BILLING — Opened, but held for analysis, bids on supplies for the district's proposed automated billing system.

MARINCELLO — Passed a resolution asking the county to levy a tax on Marincello property to pay the $11,948 due the district this year from the $52,800 agreed upon when the property was annexed to the district in 1967.

STINSON — Authorized the district's attorney to prepare legal documents for a proposed merger or annexation by the district of the Stinson Beach County Water District for the purpose of having the water district provide sewer service.

PAVING — Awarded to the low bid of $7,184 from Bresnan-Dalecio, Inc., of San Rafael a contract for filling around the Indian fire trail tank and paving of the Indian fire trail and Rafael Highlands tank sites.

FIRELINE — Approved a fireline extension agreement with Larkspur for replacement of a section of watermain on Olive Avenue between Madrone Avenue and Millard Road. The district and the city will split the estimated $3,375 cost.

PAYMENTS — Approved final payment of $1,094 for relocation of water lines on Shoreline Highway near the Richardson Bay Bridge, and $2,808 for installation of a tank supply line to Maggiora and Ghilotti, and authorized filing of a notice of completion and acceptance and semi-final payment of $6,181 to Zoellner Construction Co. of Ross for construction of concrete toilets at Lagunitas picnic grounds.

PUMPS — Approved purchase of a $543 pump from Westco Pump Co. of San Francisco, and awarded to Westco's low bid of $552 the purchase of another pump.

EQUIPMENT — Accepted a low bid of $4,675 from Pacific Wood Tank Co. of Healdsburg for a 50,000-gallon redwood storage tank; a low bid of $3,204 from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co. of Santa Rosa for electrical material; a low bid of $6,452 from Trident Engineering Co. of San Francisco for six valves; a low bid of $2,410 from Byron Jackson Pumps of San Francisco for a variable speed pump, and a low bid of $3,392 from Charles M. Bailey, Inc., of Emeryville for seven control valves.

PIPE — Approved purchase of $662 worth of pipe from the American Pipe Co. of Hayward.

MEETING — Postponed its next regular meeting June 24 to June 30 and adjourned until then in memory of William C. Herup, member of the board for 28 years, who died last month.

Utilities Board Fills Vacancy

The board of the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District last night appointed Clem C. Slater to fill a vacancy created when George F. West resigned April 8, according to Jane Boyer, clerk.

Directors voted to return a $3,000 retention fee to contractor Earl Gilson for the satisfactory completion of a water pipeline along Wharf Road, Mrs. Boyer said.

The board will hold its next regular meeting July 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, 270 Elm Road.

Report Asks Tamalpais Student Aid

A long and detailed report, more evolutionary than radical, will be presented to the Tamalpais High School District board by the district discipline study committee when the committee completes its work for the school year.

A final draft of the report will be completed Wednesday and discussed at a board-committee workshop meeting tentatively scheduled for June 30.

Major steps recommended in the latest draft of the report include hiring "ombudsmen" and setting up rules committees at each school.

The ombudsmen would see that student questions or complaints reached the proper authorities for action.

The committees, composed of students, administrators, teachers and members of the community, would consider validity of existing rules and be able to recommend new rules as needed.

The report, drawn by committee chairman George C. Stone and member Ellen Binckley, notes that eliminating disruptive behavior is not the only basis for evaluating discipline; an atmosphere of openness and trust must be established without coercion or arbitrariness.

Genuine conflicts of interest may exist in the school, the report states, and means should be set up to resolve them with the least antagonism.

The report recommends the administration set out hiring criteria with more emphasis on human relations skills; hire more "nonjudgmental" employees to hear students' needs in counseling and conferences; provide campus areas where students may have privacy, and provide different varieties of education such as alternative schools, more tutoring, more independent study and freer class scheduling.

Teachers, the report recommendend should take part in in-service training on cultural trends among youth, relating subject matter to the world of student interests, new teaching techniques and personal communication.

Students, the report recommended, should be given more control over their lives in school, with means provided to let them take part in policy making, suggesting changes, and encouraging student involvement and responsibility.

The community should be brought into the process, the report suggested, by "an aggressive community relations program" to tell the district's goals and processes, by more counseling services for parents and their children, and by seeking ways to make the schools more responsive to the concerns of parents and the community.

Ross Valley-San Rafael Study Set On Sewer Outfall

The Ross Valley Sanitary District Board last night approved making a joint study with the San Rafael Sanitation District for a sewer outfall line in San Francisco Bay beyond Corte Madera Creek.

The board also invited San Quentin Prison to participate in the study, reported District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah.

The board approved a 5.5 per cent pay raise for employees for 1970-71. The raise will cost $5,760 for the year, but the salary budget will remain the same because one employee has left the district, Noah said. The board will hold a 1970-71 budget hearing at 8 p.m. July 8 in the district office, 11 Library Place, San Anselmo.

New board member George C. Davison was seated, replacing Philip F. Kendall, who did not run for reelection this year.

Rent Reappraisal At Meadow Club

Despite the objections of board member Leo L. Stanley, the Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday called for a new appraisal of its lease agreement with the Meadow Club. (Another water district story, page 1).

Stanley eventually said he agreed to the new appraisal, which will be conducted by Real Estate Research Corp. of San Francisco.

San Anselmo appraiser David G. Cohn reported in April that the fair rental value of the 162 acres leased to the club is $5,000 a year. The club pays $480.

"We shouldn't have a controversy because some man is disgruntled because he didn't get admitted to the club," Stanley said.

The most outspoken critic of Cohn's report has been Norman P. Higby of 59 San Marino Drive, San Rafael. Higby, a former golf course operator, told the board at its last meeting that Cohn's report was "inadequate, erroneous and irrelevant."

Stanley also questioned the $2,200 Seeger said Real Estate Research was asking.

Seeger called the firm "the Cadillac of the field" and said the company originally had asked for $3,000, but had agreed to $2,200. He said after the meeting that the fee may vary from $1,800 to $2,200.

Cohn's fee was $650.

With directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and William A. Marcus joining Anderson in support of the new appraisal, the board authorized Seeger to retain Real Estate Research to determine the fair rental value of the leased land.

Ross Valley-San Rafael Study Set On Sewer Outfall

The Ross Valley Sanitary District Board last night approved making a joint study with the San Rafael Sanitation District for a sewer outfall line in San Francisco Bay beyond Corte Madera Creek.

The board also invited San Quentin Prison to participate in the study, reported District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah.

The board approved a 5.5 per cent pay raise for employees for 1970-71. The raise will cost $5,760 for the year, but the salary budget will remain the same because one employee has left the district, Noah said. The board will hold a 1970-71 budget hearing at 8 p.m. July 8 in the district office, 11 Library Place, San Anselmo.

New board member George C. Davison was seated, replacing Philip F. Kendall, who did not run for reelection this year.

Lawmaker In Close Look At Crime Issue

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislators are fond of saying they need contact with the people and their problems, and Assembly Speaker Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, now has that contact with the crime problem.

A robber fled a Sacramento bank Wednesday in a car stolen from Monagan's press aide Clyde Walthall.

46 Indicted In New York Mafia Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold said today that 46 reputed Mafia figures have been indicted on contempt charges for refusing to testify before a grand jury probing the infiltration of legitimate business by organized crime.

Squads of police and Gold's investigators staged a series of raids earlier in the day and rounded up 35 of the defendants.

The grand jury began its investigation in May of 1968.

The defendants included members of reputed Mafia families identified with the names of Joseph Bonanno, Carlo Gambino and Joseph Colombo, Gold said.

He said those indicted included Paul Sciacca, said to be former boss of the Bonanno family; Natale Evola, identified as the present boss of the Bonanno group; Aniello Della Croce, underboss of the Carlo Gambino family, and Philip Rastelli, underboss in the Bonanno family.

Gold said it was believed that some of the 46 indicted were either dead or missing.

Hurl Plants At Cars

Vandals pulled three two-foot-high plants from a planter box at Credit Motors, 625 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, and threw the plants at autos on the lot, police reported today. Employee Herbert L. Lucas said the plants were not damaged and would be replanted.

'Pink Panther' Mancini Swings In Opera House

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — May the gods forgive me, but to hell with Brahms, Bach and Beethoven for a moment.

Last night it was Henry Mancini at the San Francisco Opera House.

Mancini, who had been given kind of a bum rap in his last appearance in the Bay city, completely captivated his audience as well as his ensemble.

The guest conductor, who has been kicking around film studios as a musical director for more than a decade, presented some of those tunes that we oldsters have found ever tasteful for lo, these many years, (i.e. current films and late run films on television.)

His presentation brought back such memories as "Mr. Lucky;" the song from "Charade;" the theme from the "Pink Panther;" "Days of Wine and Roses," and the unforgettable "Moon River" from the film version of Truman Capote's "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

However, the big surprise of the "pops" evening was Mancini's introspective look into his own life with his "Beaver Valley" suite which presents a musical solitude of a bleak life in Pennsylvania where Mancini grew up. While this composition may not rank with our avante garde scores, it brings back something of the struggling days of the Depression. Thanks to a great job by flutist Paul Renzi, who introduced the first of the three movements, it was a stimulating composition.

While this score represented something of a departure from the traditional Hollywood scene, Mancini probably got a bigger kick out of conducting those other things which he composed as well as those compositions from such films as "Romeo and Juliet" and the unforgettable "Laura."

Packaged in between was his "Peter Gunn" theme with guest soloist Bud Brisbois on the trumpet.

Getting just about as big a kick out of this informal evening was retiring concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick who looked as if he grooved with the Hollywood sounds.

The sonority can be forgotten for once. It was a concert geared for not the "now" generation nor the true lovers of the masters, but for those who like to relax und enjoy a nostalgic look at life.

This concert for the "short hairs" will be repeated at the Opera House 8:30 p.m. Friday. It's worth a visit.

Lack of moisture and a hot spring makes this potentially an extremely hazardous fire year. Wildfires are killers. Warn your children and use care in the woods.

San Francisco's Crime Rate Off

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Chief Al Nelder says there was a 10 per cent decline in major crimes in San Francisco for the first five months of 1970.

In May this year, 3,504 major crimes occurred, compared with 3,560 last year, for a 2 per cent drop, Nelder reported Wednesday.

Compared with the same five month figures in 1969, Nelder said forcible rape in 1970 was up 20 per cent, robbery down 17 per cent, homicide down 9 per cent, burglary down 1 per cent, assault no change and auto theft down 20 per cent.

Kennedy Seeks Reelection, Denies '72 Presidency Aim

BOSTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate Majority Whip Edward M. Kennedy, fulfilling a promise made last summer after Mary Jo Kopechne died in his car, announced today he would seek reelection for a full six-year term and ruled out a presidential bid in 1972 "for personal reasons."

The 38-year-old Democrat said he planned to fly to Washington later today to vote against an amendment by Sen. Richard Byrd, d-W.Va., which would cripple Senate efforts to cut off funds for U.S. entry into Cambodia.

Asked if he would serve the full term if elected, Kennedy told a news conference, "If elected, I will serve the six years in the Senate."

He refused to predict whether he would consider a presidential race in 1976—when his term would expire — saying, "If there's something our family has learned over the years, it is not to make long-term plans."

Asked why he ruled out any presidential race in 1972, Kennedy said, "I made that decision for personal reasons, among others."

Josiah A. Spaulding, former Republican tSate Committee chairman, is seeking the GOP Senate nomination and John J. McCarthy, onetime state administration and finance commissioner, is running as an independent.

The senator was surrounded in his Beacon Hill apartment overlooking the Charles River by his wife Joan and their three children as he made the announcement.

Kennedy called the "real issue" in the upcoming election "the quality of leadership in the 1970s."

His responsibilities as assistant majority leader whip will require his attendance in Washington throughout much of the coming months, Kennedy said, adding "I'll be back here as much as I possibly can. Every available opportunity, I'll spend back in the state."

Mark Jones: Terra Linda High's Award Winner

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Then, slowly he starts down the runway carrying the pole as though it were a weapon. His speed builds until he slams the pole into the box, and seconds later, after crossing over the bar some 13 and one-half feet above the ground, he drops to the burlap covered foam rubber in the pit.

"Mark is definitely the most competitive track athlete we have ever had at Terra Linda," says his coach, Barry Amsden. He is certainly the best pole vaulter ever produced in this county. In the Marin County Athletic League championships a month ago he soared 14 feet, 1 inch to break the old league record by slightly more than a foot.

In the finals of the California Interscholastic Federation championships last Saturday at Berkeley, he finished 1t2h in a field of 18 at the height of 13 - 6.

For these efforts, and because, as Terra Linda Principal Frank Stocking puts it, "He is an unusually fine young man and is strongly respected by both students and faculty," Mark Jones has been awarded scholarships by both the Italian Athletic Club of Marin, and the San Rafael Teachers' Association.

He will receive the $500 a year Italian A.C. award at the club's presidential dinner on June 24 at Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley. This is the first year for the award, which, ironically, is being given to a non - Italian.

The teachers' scholarship, for $200, is given annually to a student who, like Mark, plans to go into teaching.

In addition to the scholarships he was named the Trojans' top track athlete for the last two seasons. Besides his success in the pole vault, Mark was the best high hurdler in the league this season, and one of the five best high jumpers.

At 6 feet, 4 inches, he is, most coaches would say, too tall for a pole vaulter. He was considerably shorter, however, when he first vaulted at the age of 10.

The most significant turning point in Mark's career was also the single most important inovation in the sport's history—the advent of the fiberglass pole. He remembers watching during the Pacific 8 championships two years ago when Bob Seagren of USC became the first man to successfully use the then experimental pole. The following season Mark changed to fiberglass and has used it ever since.

Today he uses a 170 pound test pole, although he weights 178. At the beginning of the 1970 season, Terra Lnda bought a pole for him, with which he eventually broke the league record. Now however, that pole has lost a good deal of its original resiliancy, and he is looking for another.

If he can find one, he will take part in an invitational meet at Kezar stadium June 20.

Sometime within the next month he will undergo surgery on his right elbow, which he first injured in a football game during his freshman year. The operation will be for removal of bone chips that have bothered him off and on since that time.

When the elbow isn't working, and most of last season it wasn't, the arm swells up, and only by taping it heavily can he hold down the pain.

Hopefully the surgery will solve the problem. If it does, Mark is confident that he will vault in the neighborhood of 15 feet next year at Chico State, where he will enroll in the fall.

Baseball Umpires Really Nice Guys

I mean, to hear ballplayers and some fans talk, you wouldn't want your sister to marry an arbiter and you certainly wouldn't invite one home for mom's apple pie, right?

Umps have been the butts of more bum jokes than the Poles, Italians and Irish combined.

Cannibal: "Oh, umpires are alright but did you ever try to clean one?" That type of thing.

There just seems to be something about those little cub scout beanies, blue suits and dead pans that evokes a rhapsody in boo. Hell, by comparison, the Viet Cong would get a standing ovation in Congress.

Can't Be All That Bad

But, anyone who wears a beanie, roars things like "bah tuh" and "stee-rah" and "yerowwwww," blatantly exposes his posterior in the direction of the pitcher's mound while he cleans home plate with a whisk broom, can't be ALL bad.

No sir. That umps are warm and human and kindly gentlemen is told by Marin Catholic High School coach Gary Hughes who is helping the Knights of Columbus stage the North-South Marin County all-star high school ball game in San Rafael next Thursday.

When Hughes told Dick Code of the Northern California Umpires Association about the game and that the sponsors were trying to cut some financial corners, Code responded by announcing the NCUA would donate the services of six umpires. FREE OF CHARGE.

Six umps? Hell, that's enough to arbitrate World War III. Maybe they figure there is safety in numbers.

"Imagine that," said a grateful Hughes, who liked to have fainted. "Umps are so maligned and pictured as bad guys when they are really a decent lot."

So remember that next Thursday when the men in blue take their positions on the field. A standing ovation would seem to be in order. Save your boos for later.

From Shooting To Politics

TWO TIME OLYMPIC and World rifle champion Gary Anderson, a genuine big shot who made many friends in Marin County while studying at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo a few years back, has switched his sights to politics.

That's the word from the National Rifle Association of America, of which Anderson is a director, which reports Gary has withdrawn from international competition to campaign for the office of Kearney County (Nebraska) treasurer in the November elections. He won the Republican party nomination in the May primary.

While announcing he has "won everything I wanted to win when I began serious training, and there is nothing left to win that I have not already won," Anderson left the door ajar for a possible return to Olympic shooting in the 1972 Games.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH alumnus Rocky Shone, a catcher playing summer semi-pro ball in the Dakotas, is listening to all professional bids but won't sign until he receives what he considers a good major league offer. If none comes along, the Rock will return to Cal next season where he still has another year of eligibility. And that might not be such a bad deal because the Golden Bears have a trip to Italy scheduled.

JOHN W. FRANZMAN, 1963 graduate of San Rafael High School, has been elected president of the San Joaquin Valley Sportswriters and Sportcasters Association in Fresno where he is a news and sports announcer with Radio Station KYNO. Franzman succeds former major league baseball player Guy Zernial as head of the group.

Anglers May Lose Chance For Record

HONOLULU (AP) — The crew of the charter boat "Coreene-C" hauled in a 1,805-pound Pacific Blue Marlin, Wednesday, largest fish — other than sharks — ever caught by rod and reel.

The 15-foot marlin was landed in 45 minutes after Cornelius Choy, the captain of the charter boat, and his daughter Gail helped others aboard fight the giant fish.

The association lists the largest fish ever caught by red and reel as a 2,664-pound man-eating shark hauled in at Ceduna, South Australia, in 1959.

Peter Fithian, chairman of the Hawaii visitors bureau and founder of the Hawaii International Billfish Tournament, said the fish caught Wednesday three miles off Makaha, near Honolulu, may not qualify for an official sports fishing record since no one person landed it.

Three couples from Los Angeles had chartered the boat for the day. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Morelles and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Wachtler.

Mays Not Getting Day Off

The schedule says he can rest. But the 39-year-old outfielder flew to New York for a Boy Scout luncheon and was scheduled to return to San Francisco in time for a benefit softball game tonight.

It was suggested he might get more rest if the Giants had to play.

AGREES

"You know, I think you're right," he said after Wednesdays 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

His 14th home run of the season and the 614th of his career — leaving him 100 short of Babe Ruth's all-time record — broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Mays had only 13 homers last year, but refuses at this point to get excited over his early home run output.

"I had 52 one year," he said, "so what does it prove?"

The Giants will present southpaw Lee Pitlock in his major league pitching debut Friday night when they open a three-game series here with St. Louis.

The Pirates, also off today, plan to start Dock Ellis, 4-4, and Bob Veale, 5-5, Friday in a doubleheader that opens a series in San Diego.

TWO IN TWO NIGHTS

One Pitch And Another Save For Mudcat Grant

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant strolled to the mound for one pitch to get his second save in as many nights and another reliever, Paul Linblad, was credited with the victory as four Oakland pitchers labored to drop the Cleveland Indians, 6-4, Wednesday night.

Grant, an ex-Indian, pulled out a save Tuesday night against the Tribe. His save Wednesday night brought to three the number of saves he has made gainst the Indians this season.

'GREAT'

"You can't say anything but superlatives about Grant," said Oakland Manager John McNamara. "He's been great. He's done the job every time we've called on him."

The A's wind up a three-game stand here tonight with Chuck Dobson (5-6) facing Indians ace Sam McDowell (8-4).

Of all three relievers used in Wednesday night's game, McNamara said: "When they were called on . . .at that moment when we needed it the most . . .they all did the job, which was the important thing tonight."

Even though Linblad was awarded the victory, he was disgruntled about officiating. "I was disgusted with plate umpire Bill Kunkel. He made me throw four strikes to Duke Sims and he still walked him in the ninth inning. I was mad because I wanted a save. That's what a reliever gets paid for doing."

Linblad was pulled from the game after walking Sims. But the scorer awarded the game to Linblad for his pitching performance.

Grant came on with two out and one on and Eddie Leon flied to Rick Monday on the first pitch.

ARM ALL RIGHT

John (Blue Moon) Odom started for the A's. He didn't pitch too well, but the A's were encouraged since he didn't experience any of the arm trouble that has plagued him this season.

The A's scored four runs in the second inning as Felipe Alou, who singled with two out, advanced on Frank Feranndez' single and scored on Dick Green's single. Fernadez scored on a high throw to the plate by Vada Pinson. Odom doubled and Bert Campaneris singled for two more runs.

FLOOD CASE OVER

Decision Not Due For Some Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The hands on the clock of room 1505 in the Federal Court building stretched past 3 p.m. as Judge Irving Ben Cooper, the mustachioed jurist who has been hearing the Curt Flood case, spoke to the silent assemblage.

"We now close," said Judge Cooper, "the one and only trial record in this case."

And that, until Judge Cooper hands down his decision, is the immediate significance of the Flood case—the first court hearing in history in which the merits of baseball's controversial reserve system have been argued.

'UTMOST CARE'

Then Judge Cooper acknowledged that the proceedings, covering 21 witnesses testifying to about 2,000 pages of trial transcript in three weeks and a day, had been fought by counsel for both sides as "a cause" that compelled him "to sail with the utmost care.

"We are," said Judge Cooper, "resolved to call them as we see them as they come across the plate."

With that the judge reserved decision and the public proceedings of Flood's $3 million anti-trust suit challenging the legality of the reserve system ended Wednesday following final testimony by Bill Veeck, a hassle over several documents and a challenge to the memory of a key defense witness.

Veeck, a flamboyant, unconventional former club owner, brought laughter and several alternatives to the reserve clause to the court room as the last of the 10 witnesses to appear for Flood. But the atmosphere changed after his testimony.

DEBATE

First, there was considerable debate and protestations by baseball's defendants over several documents Flood's attorneys wanted accepted in evidence, and then there was a hush in the court room as the defense recalled John Gaherin to the stand.

Gaherin, the owners' labor negotiator, contradicted several statements made Tuesday by Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, and provoked a challenge under cross-examinion by Jay Topkis, one of Flood's attorneys.

"Did Mr. Miller deliberately tell untruths or is your memory better?" Topkis asked Gaherin.

"I guess," Gaherin replied, "my memory was better than his."

STILL IN DISPUTE

"It is conceivable isn't it," Topkis then asked, "that on certain matters his is better?"

"It's conceivable," replied Gaherin.

And with that testimony concluded—leaving in question the subject in dispute: Did the Players' Association stop bargaining on modification to the reserve clause system when Flood instituted suit? Miller said they hadn't, Gaherin contended they had.

Earlier in the day, a packed court room, including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Justice Arthur Goldberg, Flood's chief counsel, returned to the scene of the trial—although Flood did not—as the controversial Veeck took the stand.

Veeck did not disappoint the curious, appearing as usual in a wide-lapeled, open-at-the-neck shirt, quipping about his relationship with baseball's brass and refusing to directly admit that he had mellowed somewhat

Swimmers: Aquatic Club Is New Name

The merged Marin and San Rafael swim clubs hereafter will be known as the Marin Aquatic Club.

Directors of the combined organization last night selected that name from a list of approximately 35 suggested by members.

The club, active in Amateur Athletic Union age group competition; will receive its new AAU charter in time for meets at Mill Valley and San Leandro on June 26-27-28, according to coach Don Swartz .

The clubs voted to pool their combined memberships of approximately 250 youngsters last month to field a stronger team.

Mark Jones: Terra Linda High's Award Winner

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Then, slowly he starts down the runway carrying the pole as though it were a weapon. His speed builds until he slams the pole into the box, and seconds later, after crossing over the bar some 13 and one-half feet above the ground, he drops to the burlap covered foam rubber in the pit.

"Mark is definitely the most competitive track athlete we have ever had at Terra Linda," says his coach, Barry Amsden. He is certainly the best pole vaulter ever produced in this county. In the Marin County Athletic League championships a month ago he soared 14 feet, 1 inch to break the old league record by slightly more than a foot.

In the finals of the California Interscholastic Federation championships last Saturday at Berkeley, he finished 1t2h in a field of 18 at the height of 13 - 6.

For these efforts, and because, as Terra Linda Principal Frank Stocking puts it, "He is an unusually fine young man and is strongly respected by both students and faculty," Mark Jones has been awarded scholarships by both the Italian Athletic Club of Marin, and the San Rafael Teachers' Association.

He will receive the $500 a year Italian A.C. award at the club's presidential dinner on June 24 at Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley. This is the first year for the award, which, ironically, is being given to a non - Italian.

The teachers' scholarship, for $200, is given annually to a student who, like Mark, plans to go into teaching.

In addition to the scholarships he was named the Trojans' top track athlete for the last two seasons. Besides his success in the pole vault, Mark was the best high hurdler in the league this season, and one of the five best high jumpers.

At 6 feet, 4 inches, he is, most coaches would say, too tall for a pole vaulter. He was considerably shorter, however, when he first vaulted at the age of 10.

The most significant turning point in Mark's career was also the single most important inovation in the sport's history—the advent of the fiberglass pole. He remembers watching during the Pacific 8 championships two years ago when Bob Seagren of USC became the first man to successfully use the then experimental pole. The following season Mark changed to fiberglass and has used it ever since.

Today he uses a 170 pound test pole, although he weights 178. At the beginning of the 1970 season, Terra Lnda bought a pole for him, with which he eventually broke the league reccord. Now however, that pole has lost a good deal of its original resiliancy, and he is looking for another.

One Pitch And Another Save For Mudcat Grant

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant strolled to the mound for one pitch to get his second save in as many nights and another reliever, Paul Linblad, was credited with the victory as four Oakland pitchers labored to drop the Cleveland Indians, 6-4, Wednesday night.

Grant, an ex-Indian, pulled out a save Tuesday night against the Tribe. His save Wednesday night brought to three the number of saves he has made gainst the Indians this season.

'GREAT'

"You can't say anything but superlatives about Grant," said Oakland Manager John McNamara. "He's been great. He's done the job every time we've called on him."

The A's wind up a three-game stand here tonight with Chuck Dobson (5-6) facing Indians ace Sam McDowell (8-4).

Of all three relievers used in Wednesday night's game, McNamara said: "When they were called on . . .at that moment when we needed it the most . . .they all did the job, which was the important thing tonight."

Even though Linblad was awarded the victory, he was disgruntled about officiating. "I was disgusted with plate umpire Bill Kunkel. He made me throw four strikes to Duke Sims and he still walked him in the ninth inning. I was mad because I wanted a save. That's what a reliever gets paid for doing."

Linblad was pulled from the game after walking Sims. But the scorer awarded the game to Linblad for his pitching performance.

Grant came on with two out and one on and Eddie Leon flied to Rick Monday on the first pitch.

ARM ALL RIGHT

John (Blue Moon) Odom started for the A's. He didn't pitch too well, but the A's were encouraged since he didn't experience any of the arm trouble that has plagued him this season.

The A's scored four runs in the second inning as Felipe Alou, who singled with two out, advanced on Frank Ferranndez' single and scored on Dick Green's single. Fernadez scored on a high throw to the plate by Vada Pinson. Odom doubled and Bert Campaneris singled for two more runs.

FLOOD CASE OVER

Decision Not Due For Some Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The hands on the clock of room 1505 in the Federal Court building stretched past 3 p.m. as Judge Irving Ben Cooper, the mustachioed jurist who has been hearing the Curt Flood case, spoke to the silent assemblage.

"We now close," said Judge Cooper, "the one and only trial record in this case."

And that, until Judge Cooper hands down his decision, is the immediate significance of the Flood case—the first court hearing in history in which the merits of baseball's controversial reserve system have been argued.

'UTMOST CARE'

Then Judge Cooper acknowledged that the proceedings, covering 21 witnesses testifying to about 2,000 pages of trial transcript in three weeks and a day, had been fought by counsel for both sides as "a cause" that compelled him "to sail with the utmost care.

"We are," said Judge Cooper, "resolved to call them as we see them as they come across the plate."

With that the judge reserved decision and the public proceedings of Flood's $3 million antitrust suit challenging the legality of the reserve system ended Wednesday following final testimony by Bill Veeck, a hassle over several documents and a challenge to the memory of a key defense witness.

Veeck, a flamboyant, unconventional former club owner, brought laughter and several alternatives to the reserve clause to the court room as the last of the 10 witnesses to appear for Flood. But the atmosphere changed after his testimony.

DEBATE

First, there was considerable debate and protestations by baseball's defendants over several documents Flood's attorneys wanted accepted in evidence, and then there was a hush in the court room as the defense recalled John Gaherin to the stand.

Gaherin, the owners' labor negotiator, contradicted several statements made Tuesday by Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, and provoked a challenge under cross-examinion by Jay Topkis, one of Flood's attorneys.

"Did Mr. Miller deliberately tell untruths or is your memory better?" Topkis asked Gaherin.

"I guess," Gaherin replied, "my memory was better than his."

STILL IN DISPUTE

"It is conceivable isn't it," Topkis then asked, "that on certain matters his is better?"

"It's conceivable," replied Gaherin.

And with that testimony concluded—leaving in question the subject in dispute: Did the Players' Association stop bargaining on modification to the reserve clause system when Flood instituted suit? Miller said they hadn't, Gaherin contended they had.

Earlier in the day, a packed court room, including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Justice Arthur Goldberg, Flood's chief counsel, returned to the scene of the trial—although Flood did not—as the controversial Veeck took the stand.

Veeck did not disappoint the curious, appearing as usual in a wide-lapeled, open-at-the-neck shirt, quipping about his relationship with baseball's brass and refusing to directly admit that he had mellowed somewhat

Swimmers: Aquatic Club Is New Name

The merged Marin and San Rafael swim clubs hereafter will be known as the Marin Aquatic Club.

Directors of the combined organization last night selected that name from a list of approximately 35 suggested by members.

The club, active in Amateur Athletic Union age group competition; will receive its new AAU charter in time for meets at Mill Valley and San Leandro on June 26-27-28, according to coach Don Swartz .

The clubs voted to pool their combined memberships of approximately 250 youngsters last month to field a stronger team.

Lonborg Placed On Disabled List

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox announced Wednesday they have placed injury-plagued Jim Lonborg on the 21day disabled list because of recurrent pain in his pitching shoulder.

The club also changed the status of utility man George Thomas from coach to active player.

Lonborg, the 1967 Cy Young Award winner as he won 22 games in the Red Sox' drive to the pennant and two more in the World Series, suffered a serious knee injury in a skiing accident the following winter and has been bothered by injuries of one sort or another ever since.

Basketball

PITTSBURGH — Jack McMahon, dismissed in midseason as head coach of the NBA San Diego Rockets, was named head coach of the Pittsburgh Pipers in the rival ABA.

Tennis

BRISTOL, England — Dennis Ralston of Los Angeles was upset by Owen Davidson, Australia 6-1, 6-8 in the third round of the Bristol Open.

Hockey

MONTREAL — The Buffalo Sabres, making the first pick in the NHL expansion draft, selected forward Tom Webster of the Boston Bruins, then traded him to the Detroit Red Wings for goalie Roger Crozier.

SEALS LOSE 4 PLAYERS IN DRAFT

Montreal (AP) — The Oakland Seals yesterday lost the services of four players in the National Hockey League's expansion draft to stock the new Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks.

The new teams shelled out a total of $6,000,000 for 20 players.

The Bucs, on consecutive first inning singles by Richie Hebner, Roberto Clemente, Stargell and Al Oliver, led 2-0 and had runners on first and second with one away.

But when Manny Sanguillen lined to Ken Henderson in left, Stargell played it a bit too casually getting back to second and was doubled off the base on Henderson's quick relay.

Stargell, who had strayed only about six steps from the bag, said later: "I just fouled up. There's not much I can say. Mistakes like that hurt you."

Moose made few mistakes He allowed just four hits—none between the first and eighth innings—but three of them were homers. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot in the first and Henderson added a homer in the eighth after Mays'.

Mays' homer was poked to right on what Moose called a "bad pitch."

"But McCovey deserved his. It was a low fast ball just where I wanted it," he said.

The big first baseman now has 19 homers and 50 RBI on only 45 season hits.

in his appreciation of his former colleagues.

ALTERNATIVES

He suggested three alternative contracts, pro football's option clause; the movie industry's standard seven-year contract after which a performer is free to negotiate for himself; and a possible arrangement by which a club's hold on a player would be limited by contract both in the minors and the majors.

Veeck said he thought the alternatives workable and said he favored them because "everyone, at least once in his business career, should be able to determine his own future—not be held in perpetuity."

The reserve clause does exactly that.

Whether it is legal or illegal is now a question for Judge Cooper—and that answer may not be handed down for some two months.

London Firm Ready To Buy The Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerome D. Hoffman, the president of a London investment company, arrived in New York late Wednesday night, ready to purchase the New York Yankees from the Columbia Broadasting System.

Although informed that CBS has said the team is not for sale, Hoffman remained undaunted. "We'll see what happens," he said. "We don't want to embarrass anyone.

"We can go $20 million, $22 million, $25 million. It all depends on the books. If they want to sell we want to buy."

Hoffman, a former St. Louisan who is president of International Investors Group Services Ltd., said he had talked by telephone with former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who is board chairman of the investment group, and will see him today.

He also said he received a call from Michael Burke, president of the Yankees, while he was in London, but he didn't elaborate on the call.

Burke said late Wednesday "the club is not for sale."

"We are not negotiating," he said. "I don't know Mr. Hoffman. If he said he spoke with me on the telephone, he must have meant he spoke with my office. I never have met the man."

Valiant's Skipper Pleased With Yacht's Performance

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Skipper Robert W. McCullough is pleased with the way his yacht Valiant is behaving during the America's Cup preliminary trials, but he isn't so happy about the rules.

McCullough of Riverside, Conn., sailed Valiant to another victory over Intrepid Wednesday on Long Island Sound, but lost a protest ruling that he had deliberately brought on in Tuesday's second race.

After Intrepid had won the first two races Monday of this five-day series, Valiant finished in front in Tuesday's two tests against Intrepid, but Intrepid skipper Bill Ficker lodged a protest in the second race.

UPHELD

The New York Yacht Club's race committee upheld the protest Wednesday, giving the victory to Intrepid.

Ficker had protested under a right-of-way rule which says a starboard tack boat has the right of way over a port tack one, a protest prompted by manuevering six minutes before the start of the race.

McCullough, however, saw the rule in a different light.

"There is a kind of a blank spot in the rules where nobody knows the answer," he said. "We felt this was something we wanted to get a ruling on and the preliminary trials would be a good time to do it."

The question he wanted answered was: how much manuevering is a starboard tack boat allowed to do to block a port tack boat? He deliberately brought on the protest to get an answer, but he was not satisfied that the committee's ruling answered the question.

However, he was happy with the performance of Valiant.

I'm very pleased with the way the yacht is going, considering how early it is in the season," he said.

These trials continue today when Heritage, a yacht from Florida under Charles E. Morgan, joins the action to determine America's Cup defender against either a French or Australian challenger in September. Friday will conclude this set of trials, and two more trial series will be held in July and August.

Heritage, which arrived from Florida Tuesday, was expected to join the chase Wednesday, but Morgan decided he needed more time to tune up his 12 meter yacht. The race committee planned to match Heritage against Intrepid in today's first race.

DECISIVE

In Wednesday's race, Valiant turned in her most decisive victory, 2 minutes 22 seconds, over the 10.8 mile course. The race was delayed five hours in starting because of a lack of wind, but when it began, Valiant once again showed distinct superiority on every windward leg. She led by 1:47 after the first windward leg.

Soccer Bribe Rumors

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The International Football Federation has ordered a full inquiry into rumors surrounding Brazilian referee Airton Vieira de Moraes and possible bribes in the World Cup Soccer Championships.

Rene Court, press officer of FIFA said Wednesday night that "Mr. Moraes should have refereed the Uruguay vs. Sweden match at Puebla today.

RUMORS

"But because of very malicious rumors that were circulating in Puebla and also Mexico City, it was decided that he should be removed from that game.

"Sir Stanley Rous, the FIFA president, made the decision after consultation with Mr. de Moraes and also Ken Aston, vice chairman of FIFA's referee's committee.'

Instead of de Moraes, United States official Henry Landauer of San Rafael refereed the Sweden-Uraguay match won by Sweden, 1-0. Landauer had been scheduled to work the Italy-Israel match scheduled today, but changed places with de Moraes. De Moraes was on the line at Russia vs. El Salvador clash at Mexico City, won by Russia, 2-0.

In other games yesterday, Kerhard Muller scored three goals for the second time in the World Cup to lead Germany to a 3-1 victory over Peru, and Brazil defeated Romania 3-2 on two goals from ace Pele.

Asked for comment, de Moraes said he had been forbidden by FIFA to say anything about the case.

He added: however: "I can deny that anyone tried to bribe me and will be refereeing the game between Israel and Italy Thursday as FIFA has instructed me."

PROBE DUE

Court refused to elaborate on the rumors.

He said: "FIFA will investigate the situation fully. It will remain a job of the referees' committee, but if the findings deem necessary, the matter will be passed on to the FIFA Organizing Committee."

Alfredo Fernandez, president of the Uruguayn team, said the change of referees had been made because of "rumors over an intention to bribe."

He would not elaborate further.

Orioles Using That Old Rule

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Hit 'em where they ain't," said a rather ungrammatical Wee Willie Keeler in baseball's long lost past. He would have loved the job the Baltimore Orioles did with that strategy Wednesday night.

The Orioles, perhaps beginning to feel the hot breath of the surprising New York Yankees on their backs, had a couple of hits fall just beyond the reach of California fielders and it added up to the winning run in a 2-1 victory over the Angels.

That triumph kept Baltimore 4½ games ahead of the red-hot Yankees in the suddenly developing American League East race. New York nipped Minnesota 2-1 for its seventh victory in the last eight games. Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 7-5, Washington belted Kansas City 8-1, Oakland downed Cleveland 6-4 and Boston nipped Chicago 7-6 in 14 innings.

In National League action, it was Houston 5-3 over New York; Cincinnati 7, Montreal 0; Atlanta 5-1 over Philadelphia; San Francisco 4, Pittsburgh 2; San Diego 11, Chicago 8, and Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 2.

The Orioles scored a run without a hit in the first inning and Jim Palmer made it stand up until the seventh when California's Jay Johnstone homered to tie the score. Then in the bottom of the seventh, things started going Baltimore's way.

With two out, Don Buford singled in the hole between third baseman Ken McMullen and shortstop Jim Fregosi. Merv Rettenmund followed with an opposite field drive which right fielder Roger Repoz barely missed near the wall. The shot went for a triple scoring Buford with the winning run.

Buford had walked and scored in the first after being trapped off first base in an aborted attempted steal. Sandy Alomar's throwing error in the rundown allowed Buford to reach third and he came in on a ground out.

Horace Clarke's two-run homer carried Mel Stottlemyre to a four-hit victory over Minnesota and rookie Bert Blyleven.

Stottlemyre singled with two out in the fifth ininng and Clarke followed with his fourth homer to erase an early Minnesota lead. Stottlemyre 6-4, struck out seven walked one and did not allow a hit after the fourth inning when Tony Oliva opened with a triple and scored the Twins' run on Rich Reese's grounder.

Al Kaline produced two runs with a long homer and pinch hitter Gates Brown produced two more with a short single as Detroit rallied for four in the seventh to hand Milwaukee its 16th consecutive road defeat.

The Brewers tagged Earl Wilson for four runs in the second and were still leading 4-3 in the seventh when Kaline turned the game around with his two-run homer. Then, with the bases loaded later in the inning, Brown caromed a single off Mike Hegan's glove for two more runs. Dick McAuliffe had two homers for the Tigers.

Rico Petrocelli ripped his second grand slam homer in four days and Tony Conigliaro tied the score with a two-run shot in the ninth inning as Boston wiped out a five-run Chicago lead to beat the White Sox.

George Scott singled, raced to third on a passed ball and then scored on Bill Melton's error for the Red Sox' winning run in the 14th.

Frank Howard had a perfect night with two singles and three walks, driving in two runs and even stealing a base as Washington whacked Kansas City.

The Bucs, on consecutive first inning singles by Richie Hebner, Roberto Clemente, Stargell and Al Oliver, led 2-0 and had runners on first and second with one away.

But when Manny Sanguillen lined to Ken Henderson in left, Stargell played it a bit too casually getting back to second and was doubled off the base on Henderson's quick relay.

Stargell, who had strayed only about six steps from the bag, said later: "I just fouled up. There's not much I can say. Mistakes like that hurt you."

Moose made few mistakes He allowed just four hits—none between the first and eighth innings—but three of them were homers. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot in the first and Henderson added a homer in the eighth after Mays'.

Mays' homer was poked to right on what Moose called a "bad pitch."

"But McCovey deserved his. It was a low fast ball just where I wanted it," he said.

The big first baseman now has 19 homers and 50 RBI on only 45 season hits.

in his appreciation of his former colleagues.

ALTERNATIVES

He suggested three alternative contracts, pro football's option clause; the movie industry's standard seven-year contract after which a performer is free to negotiate for himself; and a possible arrangement by which a club's hold on a player would be limited by contract both in the minors and the majors.

Veeck said he thought the alternatives workable and said he favored them because "everyone, at least once in his business career, should be able to determine his own future—not be held in perpetuity."

The reserve clause does exactly that.

Whether it is legal or illegal is now a question for Judge Cooper—and that answer may not be handed down for some two months.

London Firm Ready To Buy The Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerome D. Hoffman, the president of a London investment company, arrived in New York late Wednesday night, ready to purchase the New York Yankees from the Columbia Broadasting System.

Although informed that CBS has said the team is not for sale, Hoffman remained undaunted. "We'll see what happens," he said. "We don't want to embarrass anyone.

"We can go $20 million, $22 million, $25 million. It all depends on the books. If they want to sell we want to buy."

Hoffman, a former St. Louisan who is president of International Investors Group Services Ltd., said he had talked by telephone with former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who is board chairman of the investment group, and will see him today.

He also said he received a call from Michael Burke, president of the Yankees, while he was in London, but he didn't elaborate on the call.

Burke said late Wednesday "the club is not for sale."

"We are not negotiating," he said. "I don't know Mr. Hoffman. If he said he spoke with me on the telephone, he must have meant he spoke with my office. I never have met the man."

Valiant's Skipper Pleased With Yacht's Performance

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Skipper Robert W. McCullough is pleased with the way his yacht Valiant is behaving during the America's Cup preliminary trials, but he isn't so happy about the rules.

McCullough of Riverside, Conn., sailed Valiant to another victory over Intrepid Wednesday on Long Island Sound, but lost a protest ruling that he had deliberately brought on in Tuesday's second race.

After Intrepid had won the first two races Monday of this five-day series, Valiant finished in front in Tuesday's two tests against Intrepid, but Intrepid skipper Bill Ficker lodged a protest in the second race.

UPHELD

The New York Yacht Club's race committee upheld the protest Wednesday, giving the victory to Intrepid.

Ficker had protested under a right-of-way rule which says a starboard tack boat has the right of way over a port tack one, a protest prompted by manuevering six minutes before the start of the race.

McCullough, however, saw the rule in a different light.

"There is a kind of a blank spot in the rules where nobody knows the answer," he said. "We felt this was something we wanted to get a ruling on and the preliminary trials would be a good time to do it."

The question he wanted answered was: how much manuevering is a starboard tack boat allowed to do to block a port tack boat? He deliberately brought on the protest to get an answer, but he was not satisfied that the committee's ruling answered the question.

However, he was happy with the performance of Valiant.

I'm very pleased with the way the yacht is going, considering how early it is in the season," he said.

These trials continue today when Heritage, a yacht from Florida under Charles E. Morgan, joins the action to determine America's Cup defender against either a French or Australian challenger in September. Friday will conclude this set of trials, and two more trial series will be held in July and August.

Heritage, which arrived from Florida Tuesday, was expected to join the chase Wednesday, but Morgan decided he needed more time to tune up his 12 meter yacht. The race committee planned to match Heritage against Intrepid in today's first race.

DECISIVE

In Wednesday's race, Valiant turned in her most decisive victory, 2 minutes 22 seconds, over the 10.8 mile course. The race was delayed five hours in starting because of a lack of wind, but when it began, Valiant once again showed distinct superiority on every windward leg. She led by 1:47 after the first windward leg.

Soccer Bribe Rumors

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The International Football Federation has ordered a full inquiry into rumors surrounding Brazilian referee Airton Vieira de Moraes and possible bribes in the World Cup Soccer Championships.

Rene Court, press officer of FIFA said Wednesday night that "Mr. Moraes should have refereed the Uruguay vs. Sweden match at Puebla today.

RUMORS

"But because of very malicious rumors that were circulating in Puebla and also Mexico City, it was decided that he should be removed from that game.

"Sir Stanley Rous, the FIFA president, made the decision after consultation with Mr. de Moraes and also Ken Aston, vice chairman of FIFA's referee's committee.'

Instead of de Moraes, United States official Henry Landauer of San Rafael refereed the Sweden-Uruguay match won by Sweden, 1-0. Landauer had been scheduled to work the Italy-Israel match scheduled today, but changed places with de Moraes. De Moraes was on the line at Russia vs. El Salvador clash at Mexico City, won by Russia, 2-0.

In other games yesterday, Kerhard Muller scored three goals for the second time in the World Cup to lead Germany to a 3-1 victory over Peru, and Brazil defeated Romania 3-2 on two goals from ace Pele.

Asked for comment, de Moraes said he had been forbidden by FIFA to say anything about the case.

He added: however: "I can deny that anyone tried to bribe me and will be refereeing the game between Israel and Italy Thursday as FIFA has instructed me."

PROBE DUE

Court refused to elaborate on the rumors.

He said: "FIFA will investigate the situation fully. It will remain a job of the referees' committee, but if the findings deem necessary, the matter will be passed on to the FIFA Organizing Committee."

Alfredo Fernandez, president of the Uruguayn team, said the change of referees had been made because of "rumors over an intention to bribe."

He would not elaborate further.

Tam, Terra Linda Win In Baseball

Tamalpais routed Novato 13-1 and Terra Linda whipped Toby's Truckers 10-1 last night in the Marin Division, Joe DiMaggio Baseball League.

Tam's easy romp was largely the product of Jim Bloom who had three hits in three at-bats and Cliff Hall who had a triple and three runs batted in. Mike Johnson was the winning pitcher.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles Using That Old Rule

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Hit 'em where they ain't," said a rather ungrammatical Wee Willie Keeler in baseball's long lost past. He would have loved the job the Baltimore Orioles did with that strategy Wednesday night.

The Orioles, perhaps beginning to feel the hot breath of the surprising New York Yankees on their backs, had a couple of hits fall just beyond the reach of California fielders and it added up to the winning run in a 2-1 victory over the Angels.

That triumph kept Baltimore 4½ games ahead of the red-hot Yankees in the suddenly developing American League East race. New York nipped Minnesota 2-1 for its seventh victory in the last eight games. Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 7-5, Washington belted Kansas City 8-1, Oakland downed Cleveland 6-4 and Boston nipped Chicago 7-6 in 14 innings.

In National League action, it was Houston 5-3 over New York; Cincinnati 7, Montreal 0; Atlanta 5-1 over Philadelphia; San Francisco 4, Pittsburgh 2; San Diego 11, Chicago 8, and Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 2.

The Orioles scored a run without a hit in the first inning and Jim Palmer made it stand up until the seventh when California's Jay Johnstone homered to tie the score. Then in the bottom of the seventh, things started going Baltimore's way.

With two out, Don Buford singled in the hole between third baseman Ken McMullen and shortstop Jim Fregosi. Merv Rettenmund followed with an opposite field drive which right fielder Roger Repoz barely missed near the wall. The shot went for a triple scoring Buford with the winning run.

Buford had walked and scored in the first after being trapped off first base in an aborted attempted steal. Sandy Alomar's throwing error in the rundown allowed Buford to reach third and he came in on a ground out.

Horace Clarke's two-run homer carried Mel Stottlemyre to a four-hit victory over Minnesota and rookie Bert Blyleven.

Stottlemyre singled with two out in the fifth ininng and Clarke followed with his fourth homer to erase an early Minnesota lead. Stottlemyre 6-4, struck out seven walked one and did not allow a hit after the fourth inning when Tony Oliva opened with a triple and scored the Twins' run on Rich Reese's grounder.

Al Kaline produced two runs with a long homer and pinch hitter Gates Brown produced two more with a short single as Detroit rallied for four in the seventh to hand Milwaukee its 16th consecutive road defeat.

The Brewers tagged Earl Wilson for four runs in the second and were still leading 4-3 in the seventh when Kaline turned the game around with his two-run homer. Then, with the bases loaded later in the inning, Brown caromed a single off Mike Hegan's glove for two more runs. Dick McAuliffe had two homers for the Tigers.

Rico Petrocelli ripped his second grand slam homer in four days and Tony Conigliaro tied the score with a two-run shot in the ninth inning as Boston wiped out a five-run Chicago lead to beat the White Sox.

George Scott singled, raced to third on a passed ball and then scored on Bill Melton's error for the Red Sox' winning run in the 14th.

Frank Howard had a perfect night with two singles and three walks, driving in two runs and even stealing a base as Washington whacked Kansas City.

Vince Lombardi Hasn't Mellowed

Vince Lombardi was guest speaker at a Boy Scout fund raising luncheon in Chicago. It happened to be a day off for the Giants who were in Chicago for a weekend series with the Cubs. So one of the baseball writers traveling with the Giants took in the luncheon.

Lombardi still is a man of incisive words. He still speaks in trenchant sentences. He hasn't changed even a little bit since the days he tongue-lashed the Green Bay Packers out of a decadent mediocrity.

LOMBARDI HASN'T wellowed now that he is coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins. At a press conference preceding the luncheon, this became immediately evident.

A persistent questioner tried to get Lombardi to concede a parallel between the violence of football and that on college campuses.

"I see no parallel," said Lombardi. "Football is disciplined violence."

"BUT AREN'T there occasional dirty players just as there are objectionable people on campuses?" the questioner pressed.

"I have been in the game a long, long time and I have never seen a dirty football player," said Lombardi.

Perhaps the tone of the press conference prompted Lombardi to speak about patriotism at the luncheon.

"I do not question the right of young people to dissent," he said. "I only question their right to destroy. There is a difference. Dissent is a matter of articulation. Destruction is anarchy.

"I DON'T KNOW what all this revolution stuff is about. I just know I don't like to hear such talk."

Lombardi never was a speaker who belabored a point with unnecessary words. He said what he had to say on a sticky subject and he said it succinctly. Then he spoke about football.

He declared that the average player who comes up to the pros today is no different from the young man of five years ago.

"AND THAT includes the matter of long hair," said Lombardi. "What do I care how a player wears his hair? That's none of my business unless it affects his football.

"There is only one reason that I encourage players to wear their hair short. It is strictly medical. Long hair during violent activity induces perspiration which in turn induces infection. And infection in turn brings on boils which can infect an entire squad."

There's nothing fuzzy about the way Lombardi speaks.

Salt Lake Gets ABA Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Owner Bill Daniels of the newly relocated Utah Stars says he hopes to "make Salt Lake the Green Bay of professional basketball."

Daniels and his American Basketball Association team officially pulled up stakes Wednesday and moved from Los Angeles to this Mormon-dominated community.

At a news conference announcing the move, Daniels and other team officials expressed supreme confidence for next season.

They pointed out that the Stars jelled late last year under Coach Bill Sharman into a team that took the eventual champion Indiana Pacers to six games in the finals of the ABA playoffs.

Daniels indicated the year-old Salt Palace, where the Stars will play home games, was a major factor in bringing the team to Utah.

The sports - convention center can seat between 14,000 and 15,000 fans for basketball. It also is the home of the Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League.

"In professional sports, the facility is the name of the game," Daniels said. "I feel the Salt Palace is comparable to Madison Square Garden and the Los Angeles Forum in every way—all they have is a few more seats."

He said Utah also was selected as new site for the franchise because it long has been "basketball country."

Young, Small, But Strong Describes John Farnkopf

By RALPH CHATOIAN

JOHN FARNKOPF
Teen-age title

If you can lift your own weight over your head, that's pretty darned good.

If you can lift twice your weight, that's really something.

John Farnkopf, 18-year-old senior at Drake High School, recent winner of the "Best Teen-Age Lifter In California" title, has come very close to doing just that, and he's still trying.

Standing 5-foot-u and weighting 138 pounds, the blond strongman hoisted 255 pounds in clean-and-jerk competition at the combined California State Amateur Athletic Union Teen-Age and State Junior Olympics weightlifting championships recently, in Berkeley.

CLOSER

"I've come closer to that," he said. "When I weighed 130½ pounds I lifted 255 once, so that was only missing by six pounds."

In addition to his 255 clean-and-jerk at the May 22 competition, John pressed 195 and snatched 180 pounds for a 630 total, winning the 148 pound division. One of the lightest performers in that division, Frankopf feels he may eventually advance to the 165-pound group. He still has a few years to grow. He won the state teen-age title on a pound-for-pound basis with the other winners.

Farnkopf has been lifting weights for the MarVel Ahletic Club for about two and one-half years, after lifting weights only as a hobby while a sophomore at Drake High.

"I didn't think of lifting in competition when I began lifting weights," said Farnkopf. "But I started lifting in competition and I just like it."

For John, one of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Farnkopf of 122 Calumet Avenue, San Anselmo, weightlifting is a full year of training, although the actual lifting season is from October through June.

His older brother, Frank, 20, tried weightlifting for a while but is now out of it. Jim, 16, isn't a weightlifter but Ned, 12, lifts weights and won the 93-pound division of the Junior Olympics. The boys' father is an engineer at the Marin Municipal Water District.

John does his weightlifting practice at the MarVel A.C., which is really the basement of coach Jack MacPhee's home in San Rafael. He practices six days of the week, about three hours each session. He says about 75 per cent of his practice is actual lifting and the other 25 per cent in conditioning. Other hobbies for the youth include tennis and water skiing.

John plans to attend College of Marin next September, and eventually hopes to study at a state college or university.

"TREMENDOUS"

In speaking of MacPhee, Marin County's foremost weightlifting enthusiast, John says "He's a tremendous coach . . . he really impresses me. Whether things go right or wrong, he just sticks with it."

Farnkopf doesn't think he'll be in any major competition until next season, beginning with the Central California championships in Fresno, in October. But his year-round training program of three hours lifting a day will continue until that time. And by then, he just might be lifting twice his weight.

COLLEGE WORLD SERIES

USC, Texas Vs. Upstarts

OMAHA (AP) — The Texas Longhorns and Southern California Trojans, old hands in baseball tournament competition, take on a pair of strong upstarts to open the College World Series Friday night.

The double-elimination tourney, drawing eight NCAA district winners throughout the nation, will stretch about a week, including scheduled play for the first time on Sunday. There will be a new champion since Arizona State failed to win a return trip.

After Friday's doubleheader, there will be three afternoon-night games Saturday and the same slated for Sunday. By this time, a winners-losers bracket should be firmed up and two teams eliminated by absorbing their second losses.

Texas (36-6) opposes the Delaware Blue Hens (22-4) at 5:30 p.m. CDT Friday in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, followed at 8:30 p.m. by Southern California (47-12) facing the Ohio University Bobcats (31-4).

The two lossers will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. That night, the Florida State Seminoles (45-7) play the Arizona Wildcats (44-16) and the Dartmouth Indians (23-8) engage the Iowa State Cyclones (18-9).

Sunday's timetable calls for games between Saturday's loser as well as games between Friday and Saturday's winners.

Vince Lombardi Hasn't Mellowed

Vince Lombardi was guest speaker at a Boy Scout fund raising luncheon in Chicago. It happened to be a day off for the Giants who were in Chicago for a weekend series with the Cubs. So one of the baseball writers traveling with the Giants took in the luncheon.

Lombardi still is a man of incisive words. He still speaks in trenchant sentences. He hasn't changed even a little bit since the days he tongue-lashed the Green Bay Packers out of a decadent mediocrity.

LOMBARDI HASN'T wellowed now that he is coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins. At a press conference preceding the luncheon, this became immediately evident.

A persistent questioner tried to get Lombardi to concede a parallel between the violence of football and that on college campuses.

"I see no parallel," said Lombardi. "Football is disciplined violence."

"BUT AREN'T there occasional dirty players just as there are objectionable people on campuses?" the questioner pressed.

"I have been in the game a long, long time and I have never seen a dirty football player," said Lombardi.

Perhaps the tone of the press conference prompted Lombardi to speak about patriotism at the luncheon.

"I do not question the right of young people to dissent," he said. "I only question their right to destroy. There is a difference. Dissent is a matter of articulation. Destruction is anarchy.

"I DON'T KNOW what all this revolution stuff is about. I just know I don't like to hear such talk."

Lombardi never was a speaker who belabored a point with unnecessary words. He said what he had to say on a sticky subject and he said it succinctly. Then he spoke about football.

He declared that the average player who comes up to the pros today is no different from the young man of five years ago.

"AND THAT includes the matter of long hair," said Lombardi. "What do I care how a player wears his hair? That's none of my business unless it affects his football.

"There is only one reason that I encourage players to wear their hair short. It is strictly medical. Long hair during violent activity induces perspiration which in turn induces infection. And infection in turn brings on boils which can infect an entire squad."

Yacht Race For Cal-20s Scheduled

The Paradise Harbor Yacht Club will host a Cal — 20 Yacht Racing Association qualifying race Saturday off the club's marina at Paradise Cay, near Tiburon.

At least 35 Cal — 20 boats are expected to compete in the 10 mile race, which the Tiburon club is sponsoring for the San Francisco Bay Cal — 20 Association.

The race will be in the area bounded by Red Rock, Southhampton, Pt. Chauncey and Paradise Cay, where it will begin at noon.

The club also announced its spring series trophy winners. First place went to Mark Stock of San Rafael, who piloted an Excalibur 26. Warren Pollock of Mill Valley took a Coronado 25 to second, Walt Foster of Corte Madera won third in an Islander Bahama, Tiburon's Stan Behrens took fourth in an Alden 36, and in fifth place was Vic Piltch of Novato in a Santana 22.

Salt Lake Gets ABA Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Owner Bill Daniels of the newly relocated Utah Stars says he hopes to "make Salt Lake the Green Bay of professional basketball."

Daniels and his American Basketball Association team officially pulled up stakes Wednesday and moved from Los Angeles to this Mormon-dominated community.

At a news conference announcing the move, Daniels and other team officials expressed supreme confidence for next season.

They pointed out that the Stars jelled late last year under Coach Bill Sharman into a team that took the eventual champion Indiana Pacers to six games in the finals of the ABA playoffs.

Daniels indicated the year-old Salt Palace, where the Stars will play home games, was a major factor in bringing the team to Utah.

The sports - convention center can seat between 14,000 and 15,000 fans for basketball. It also is the home of the Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League.

"In professional sports, the facility is the name of the game," Daniels said. "I feel the Salt Palace is comparable to Madison Square Garden and the Los Angeles Forum in every way—all they have is a few more seats."

He said Utah also was selected as new site for the franchise because it long has been "basketball country."

Young, Small, But Strong Describes John Farnkopf

By RALPH CHATOIAN

If you can lift your own weight over your head, that's pretty darned good.

If you can lift twice your weight, that's really something.

John Farnkopf, 18-year-old senior at Drake High School, recent winner of the "Best Teen-Age Lifter In California" title, has come very close to doing just that, and he's still trying.

Standing 5-foot-u and weighting 138 pounds, the blond strongman hoisted 255 pounds in clean-and-jerk competition at the combined California State Amateur Athletic Union Teen-Age and State Junior Olympics weightlifting championships recently, in Berkeley.

JOHN FARNKOPF
Teen-age title

CLOSER

"I've come closer to that," he said. "When I weighed 130½ pounds I lifted 255 once, so that was only missing by six pounds."

In addition to his 255 clean-and-jerk at the May 22 competition, John pressed 195 and snatched 180 pounds for a 630 total, winning the 148 pound division. One of the lightest performers in that division, Frankopf feels he may eventually advance to the 165-pound group. He still has a few years to grow. He won the state teen-age title on a pound-for-pound basis with the other winners.

Farnkopf has been lifting weights for the MarVel Ahletic Club for about two and one-half years, after lifting weights only as a hobby while a sophomore at Drake High.

"I didn't think of lifting in competition when I began lifting weights," said Farnkopf. "But I started lifting in competition and I just like it."

For John, one of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Farnkopf of 122 Calumet Avenue, San Anselmo, weightlifting is a full year of training, although the actual lifting season is from October through June.

His older brother, Frank, 20, tried weightlifting for a while but is now out of it. Jim, 16, isn't a weightlifter but Ned, 12, lifts weights and won the 93-pound division of the Junior Olympics. The boys' father is an engineer at the Marin Municipal Water District.

John does his weightlifting practice at the MarVel A.C., which is really the basement of coach Jack MacPhee's home in San Rafael. He practices six days of the week, about three hours each session. He says about 75 per cent of his practice is actual lifting and the other 25 per cent in conditioning. Other hobbies for the youth include tennis and water skiing.

John plans to attend College of Marin next September, and eventually hopes to study at a state college or university.

"TREMENDOUS"

In speaking of MacPhee, Marin County's foremost weightlifting enthusiast, John says "He's a tremendous coach . . . he really impresses me. Whether things go right or wrong, he just sticks with it."

Farnkopf doesn't think he'll be in any major competition until next season, beginning with the Central California championships in Fresno, in October. But his year-round training program of three hours lifting a day will continue until that time. And by then, he just might be lifting twice his weight.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
IGNACIO BOULEVARD RECONSTRUCTION
ALAMEDA DEL PRADO TO PALMER DRIVE
PROJECT 69-001
CITY OF NOVATO
MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Finance Director, City of Novato, California, until 4:00 o'clock p.m., on Thursday, June 25, 1970, for the furnishing of all plant, labor, materials, tools, equipment and machinery necessary for the construction of Ignacio Boulevard Reconstruction - Alameda - Del Prado to Palmer Drive Project 69-001.

The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the office of the Finance Director on the date and at the time mentioned above. Plans and specifications and proposal forms, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer upon payment of a non-refundable printing and service charge in the amount of Six Dollars ($6.00). Other fee documents available from the City which may be applicable to this project are as follows: Novato Standard Specifications - $3.00, Uniform Standard Drawings of all Cities and County of Marin - $1.00. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Novato, and should be mailed to the Public Works Department, City of Novato.

The work to be done includes, but is not necessarily limited to: clearing and grubbing, roadway grading and construction, P.C.C. curbs, gutters and sidewalks, asphalt concrete resurfacing and all appurtenances necessary for the successful completion of the project as shown on the plans and specifications.

Notice is hereby given that on June 9, 1970, the City Council adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of wages applicable to the work to be done, which shall be the minimum rates paid on this project, a copy of which wage scale is attached hereto.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make award as the interests of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Novato, California.

No bid will be received unless it is made on proposal form furnished by the City Engineer. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance, and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. Each of said bonds shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the price stated in the proposal. In addition to the above, and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

The contractor shall complete the construction of the total project within forty-five (45) working days, the first day of which shall be the date of the City Engineer's notice to proceed.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bone Marrow Failure Causes Variety Of Problems In Blood

Blood is manufactured mainly in the bone marrow where it is passed along into the bloodstream. Red and white cells live about 120 days; platelets have a short life expectancy, 3 to 6 days.

The production and destruction of blood are vital functions, and serious complications occur when either mechanism is disrupted.

Several related diseases occur when the bone marrow goes on strike and refuses to manufacture one or all types of cells. The existing cells soon die, and unless transfusions are given or bone marrow is reactivated, death ensues. Hematologists (blood specialists) now pin their hopes on marrow transplantation.

MARROW TRANSPLANT is done only when medical treatments with corticosteroids fail, and there is no chance of reactivating the bone marrow. As in all transplants, rejection is the old bugaboo, and considerable time is spent selecting the donors and giving immunosuppressives.

Tests show that when the marrow is injected it settles in the bone and works until it is rejected.

Bone marrow failure occurs when the tissue is "insulted" or exposed to a variety of chemicals, medicines, antibiotics, X-rays, radioactive agents, and viruses. Chloramphenicol is currently blamed for many cases. Now and then the cause escapes detection.

THE MANIFESTATIONS of a bone marrow breakdown may appear abruptly or slowly. When the formation of red cells lags (aplastic anemia), the victim becomes pale, weak, and tires easily. With further lowering of the hemoglobin (iron), shortness of breath, pounding of the heart, headache, and fever ensue. Involvement of the platelets induces bleeding.

White blood cells (leukocytes) are the body's first defense against infection. When in short supply, resistance is impaired and infections of the skin, urinary tract, lungs, and blood present serious problems.

Ulcers develop in the oral cavity, nose, and rectum.

A serious and disabling disorder ensues when all of the marrow elements are involved.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLD WORD, OLD TREATMENT

W. W. writes: Will X-ray cure catarrh?

REPLY

Thirty years ago X-ray was used to treat catarrh of the head and lungs. Occasionally it was successful. This type of therapy no longer is used because the results do not justify the risks attending too much radiation. Futhermore, the antibiotics do a better job in chronic respiratory infections. Incidentally the term catarrh has been practically eliminated from scientific terminology.

CRAMPED ESOPHAGUS

P. H. writes: How can a person with a cramped esophagus eat?

REPLY

Sitting up. If X-rays show that cramping does not represent narrowing due to tumor, stricture, or diverticulosis, your physician can prescribe an antispasmodic to be taken before meals. Avoid ice cold liquids and harsh dry foods. Marked spasm may require mechanical dilation.

OVEREATING

REPLY

Yes, if the hearty appetite leads to obesity or diabetes. Overeating also may indicate nervous tension. On the other hand, appetite improves when a person is free of stress. When he feels good, he enjoys food and is tempted to eat more.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
IGNACIO BOULEVARD RECONSTRUCTION
ALAMEDA DEL PRADO TO PALMER DRIVE
PROJECT 69-001
CITY OF NOVATO
MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Finance Director, City of Novato, California, until 4:00 o'clock p.m., on Thursday, June 25, 1970, for the furnishing of all plant, labor, materials, tools, equipment and machinery necessary for the construction of Ignacio Boulevard Reconstruction - Alameda - Del Prado to Palmer Drive Project 69-001.

The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the office of the Finance Director on the date and at the time mentioned above. Plans and specifications and proposal forms, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer upon payment of a non-refundable printing and service charge in the amount of Six Dollars ($6.00). Other fee documents available from the City which may be applicable to this project are as follows: Novato Standard Specifications - $3.00, Uniform Standard Drawings of all Cities and County of Marin - $1.00. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Novato, and should be mailed to the Public Works Department, City of Novato.

The work to be done includes, but is not necessarily limited to: clearing and grubbing, roadway grading and construction, P.C.C. curbs, gutters and sidewalks, asphalt concrete resurfacing and all appurtenances necessary for the successful completion of the project as shown on the plans and specifications.

Notice is hereby given that on June 9, 1970, the City Council adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of wages applicable to the work to be done, which shall be the minimum rates paid on this project, a copy of which wage scale is attached hereto.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make award as the interests of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Novato, California.

No bid will be received unless it is made on proposal form furnished by the City Engineer. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance, and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. Each of said bonds shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the price stated in the proposal. In addition to the above, and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

The contractor shall complete the construction of the total project within forty-five (45) working days, the first day of which shall be the date of the City Engineer's notice to proceed.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bone Marrow Failure Causes Variety Of Problems In Blood

Blood is manufactured mainly in the bone marrow where it is passed along into the bloodstream. Red and white cells live about 120 days; platelets have a short life expectancy, 3 to 6 days.

The production and destruction of blood are vital functions, and serious complications occur when either mechanism is disrupted.

Several related diseases occur when the bone marrow goes on strike and refuses to manufacture one or all types of cells. The existing cells soon die, and unless transfusions are given or bone marrow is reactivated, death ensues. Hematologists (blood specialists) now pin their hopes on marrow transplantation.

MARROW TRANSPLANT is done only when medical treatments with corticosteroids fail, and there is no chance of reactivating the bone marrow. As in all transplants, rejection is the old bugaboo, and considerable time is spent selecting the donors and giving immunosuppressives.

Tests show that when the marrow is injected it settles in the bone and works until it is rejected.

Bone marrow failure occurs when the tissue is "insulted" or exposed to a variety of chemicals, medicines, antibiotics, X-rays, radioactive agents, and viruses. Chloramphenicol is currently blamed for many cases. Now and then the cause escapes detection.

THE MANIFESTATIONS of a bone marrow breakdown may appear abruptly or slowly. When the formation of red cells lags (aplastic anemia), the victim becomes pale, weak, and tires easily. With further lowering of the hemoglobin (iron), shortness of breath, pounding of the heart, headache, and fever ensue. Involvement of the platelets induces bleeding.

White blood cells (leukocytes) are the body's first defense against infection. When in short supply, resistance is impaired and infections of the skin, urinary tract, lungs, and blood present serious problems.

Ulcers develop in the oral cavity, nose, and rectum.

A serious and disabling disorder ensues when all of the marrow elements are involved.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLD WORD, OLD TREATMENT

W. W. writes: Will X-ray cure catarrh?

REPLY

Thirty years ago X-ray was used to treat catarrh of the head and lungs. Occasionally it was successful. This type of therapy no longer is used because the results do not justify the risks attending too much radiation. Futhermore, the antibiotics do a better job in chronic respiratory infections. Incidentally the term catarrh has been practically eliminated from scientific terminology.

CRAMPED ESOPHAGUS

P. H. writes: How can a person with a cramped esophagus eat?

REPLY

Sitting up. If X-rays show that cramping does not represent narrowing due to tumor, stricture, or diverticulosis, your physician can prescribe an antispasmodic to be taken before meals. Avoid ice cold liquids and harsh dry foods. Marked spasm may require mechanical dilation.

OVEREATING

REPLY

Yes, if the hearty appetite leads to obesity or diabetes. Overeating also may indicate nervous tension. On the other hand, appetite improves when a person is free of stress. When he feels good, he enjoys food and is tempted to eat more.

Teen-Agers Toiling In Dope Crusade

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — More than 2,000 Phoenix high school pupils have been going back to their elementary schools this year to tell fifth through eighth graders why teen-agers shouldn't use drugs.

The program is called Dope Stop and it's run by a 22-year-old former drug user named Norman Hovda.

It started last fall when officials of the Phoenix Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control became concerned with increased use of drugs by teen-agers.

Then came along Hovda, fresh from a bad trip on the hallucigen LSD which climaxed four years of using drugs including marijuana.

He joined John French, the idea's originator, on loan for a year from a computer research company.

They acquired a secretary and a publicity director and set up shop in the Maricopa County Mental Health Association building.

"School administrators were the biggest problem in setting up the program," French said, "Some in the grade schools were afraid to start something they thought the parents may not like."

But Hovda went to the high schools, working through guidance counselers to recruit pupils who wanted to learn about drugs and go back to their elementary schools to tell the fifth through eighth graders about the harm that drugs could do.

Hovda conducts monthly training sessions at 33 high schools with about 2,500 teen counselors. The emphasis is on "doing your own thing."

The teen volunteers are asked:

"Just why are you involved? Why don't you use drugs? Just what are you turned on to in this life?" When they have thought out those questions and answered them honestly, Hovda feels they are ready to go into the elementary school classrooms once a month with a message.

The volunteers are taught about the things young people experiment with and the drugs police say they will ineviatably be tempted to try.

"The student's return to the same elementary class month after month saddles him with a responsibility for that class," French says." He knows he either will succeed or fail. He feels he's really got a purpose.

"We haven't lost any teen counselors who've got off on drugs because of boredom."

The students are responsible for learning about drugs, selling the schools on the program, scheduling their own appearances, providing their own transportation and telling the younger pupils about drug dangers.

Their involvement has led to reflection among the volunteers on why young people turn to drugs. "Society presents problems, so people turn to dope. We must solve the problem, but we know we can't do it, so we educate."

Phoenix Police Chief Lawrence Wetzel paralleled the thought. "Dope Stop allows policemen to be policemen and takes care of the drug education aspect," he said. "It's hard to evaluate the effectiveness of the program, because it's hard to know how much didn't happen because of it."

Wetzel said arrests for marijuana and drugs are running about the same as last year in Phoenix, "but arresting these kids isn't going make them stop doing it. I don't think a kid will stop until he realizes what he's doing to himself."

The program has not been universally praised. Even some of the elementary pupils have criticized it. They are invited to.

"I think the Dope Stop program is a waste of time," a fifth grader wrote. "However, if you came more often, had some photographs, and had more than just talking I think it would be successful."

Teen counselors will meet this summer "to find out what their hassles have been and to try for more saturation," Hovda said. "They're already reaching about 30,000 kids a month," he added.

Pot Raid Is A Pleasant Social Event

A West Marin man who termed two sheriff's officers "the nicest cops I've ever met" yesterday led them on a search of his house and, then after posing in his thriving marijuana patch, willingly pulled up all 400 plants.

For all his politeness, Michael Lee McCoy, 25, of Valley Ford, ended up in Marin County Jail, where he was booked on suspicion of possessing and growing pot and having narcotics paraphernalia.

Joining him in jail was Joel Richard Duckett, also 25, who lives with him.

Constable Michael McLean said that he and deputy Joseph Kelly went to McCoy's rural residence yesterday after neighbors had reported there was a lot of suspected pot growing in plain view from the road.

After McCoy answered the door, he told McLean that "the last time I was busted, the cop kicked in the door." He then offered to take the officers on a tour of his house and when this was completed, he picked up a hoe and watering can and posed for pictures in the marijuana garden.

Still not wanting to trouble the officers, McCoy offered to pull up the plants himself. McLean described the confiscated plants as ranging from seedlings to four feet tall.

"He was a good farmer," McLean concluded about his new acquaintance.

Both McCoy and Duckett were held in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Nixon Getting Tough: Wants Crime Package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told Congress today to "get off dead center" on his crime legislative package and said the lawmakers may face retaliation from the voters in November if new anticrime laws are not passed.

"The major failure of this Congress has been its failure to act on any of these bills," Nixon said. "Partisanship is no excuse."

As the President was calling for action on Capitol Hill, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said in a speech on crime that criminal elements, whether Mafia leaders or dishonest repairmen, "must be fought with every weapon available and consistent with our Constitution."

Nixon, speaking informally to a group of U. S. attorneys visiting the White House, said Congress should "get off the dead center on which it has been operating, get these bills out of committee and get these laws passed."

There are 13 measures before Congress, ranging from drug control to pornography to control of explosives, he said.

"I understand partisan politics, I understand dragging feet on some issues," Nixon said. "That's the way the game is played. But crime is not a partisan issue."

Nixon said he has been receiving letters from around the country demanding action on crime legislation. He said crime is a top issue in public opinion polls taken around the country.

"Failure of Congress to act will be something for the people to remember," he said.

Nixon said the rate of increase of crime has declined recently and gave credit to Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who stood at his side during the meeting in the White House rose garden.

But he said law enforcement authorities need more effective tools and that they would be provided with passage of the administration's anti-crime program.

Nixon also called for "even-handed enforcement" of laws already on the books as a step toward re-establishing public confidence in the law.

"When a law is not enforced, that creates a disrespect for law," he said. "But when a law is unfairly enforced it also creates disrespect for law."

Nixon's audience was a delegation from the annual conference of federal attorneys, being held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, where Agnew in a prepared speech said that "criminal elements" are "truly the enemies of our country."

Bill That Caused Schrade Uproar Goes To Floor

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The legislation involved in a controversy over Senate leader Jack Schrade's acceptance last year of a $5,000 campaign contribution was approved Wednesday by the Assembly Finance and Insurance committee.

The measure, sponsored by Chairman Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, was sent to the floor on a voice vote with no audible dissents. It would permit thrift and loan companies, also called industrial loan firms, to com- industrial loan firms, to compete in the lucrative home loan market.

Schrade, R-San Diego, accepted the campaign contribution last June from the California Association of Thrift and Loan Companies shortly after he voted for the bill in a Senate committee. The measure died on the Senate floor. Schrade also supported virtually identical legislation at previous sessions.

Cong Raiders Massacre 75 Civilians

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas throwing grenades into bunkers filled with terrified villagers overran a South Vietnamese hamlet today and killed 75 civilians and injured 83 others.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the incident killed the most civilians since the massacres at Hue during the Communist 1968 Tet offensive.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops today seized part of the ancient ruins of Angkor Wat and attacked the Siem Reap Airport, from which Communist forces were driven last weekend.

The slaying of the civilians in South Vietnam was at Phu Thanh, a hamlet 16 miles south of Da Nang.

UPI correspondent Robert EM Sullivan reported from Phu Thanh that many of the civilians slain were wives and children of South Vietnamese soldiers or were war refugees.

The Vieg Cong attacked at 1:30 a. m. with mortar fire against a bridge.

"The real target was the civilian area," said Maj. Thomas J. Pentacost of Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Nearly every one of the homes in the village of 3,410 residents had an underground shelter. But the attackers lobbed grenades into them and U. S. officials said 34 persons were killed in one bunker alone. An old man, weeping, pointed to a level hut that had been his home. He said a single grenade killed his friend, Nguyen Tuan, his pregnant wife and their four children.

"There were dead people all over the place," said Pfc. Joseph Cusick, 21, a Marine from St .Paul, Minn.

Village chief Nguyen An said there were other bodies in collapsed bunkers.

Foes Hit Reagan's Tax Plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan's tax reform plan has hit bitter opposition from school officials who say it will cripple their ability to provide quality education.

School spending controls in the measure amount to a "built-in guaranteed mediocrity for education in California," complained Robert E. Kelly, superintendent of Los Angeles city schools.

Rich districts will get richer and poor ones poorer, he told the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee during the measure's first Senate hearing. No action was taken during the lengthy hearing Wednesday and another hearing scheduled in two weeks.

BAGLEY UPSET

"They never came around until last Tuesday. They stood around and laughed at us until last Tuesday. Hordes of them," Bagley said.

He referred to ballot Prop. 8 on the June 2 primary election ballot, backed by most of the school establishment, which would have forced the state to pay 50 per cent of the cost of local public education. Prop. 8 lost by a 2-1 margin.

Bagley said his measure had to have controls over school spending in order to guarantee property tax relief.

Kelly said the bill raises taxes by $1 billion when is full operation in 1973 — "not one penny of which will be used for new state aid for schools."

"Surely we can do better for the children of this state," he said.

CHALLENGES BILL

And he challenged whether the bill actually would cut property taxes. Kelly said it would take a tax rate of $5.10 for each $100 assessed valuation of property "to maintain our present curtailed program" compared with a current rate of $4.80.

The Reagan plan passed the Assembly only after Democrats got a pledge that every effort would be made by the Republican administration to find new state aid for hard-pressed schools this year. Reagan and Bagley insist that school aid must come in a separate bill.

The tax bill would raise about $1 billion in new revenue by 1972-73 to finance large scale property tax relief. The major tax hike is a one penny increase in the five per cent state sales tax.

It would freeze school spending allowing only for increases justified by higher cost of supplies and salaries or more pupils. The tax rate could be boosted only by a vote of the district voters.

The educators bitterly complained that this would do away with current tax overrides allowed for special programs such as adult education and local costs of school lunch programs.

Russell Kent, superintendent of schools in San Mateo County, said administrators do not oppose the idea of spending controls but he said, "We believe these expenditure controls will fall capriciously on districts."

ATTACKS FREEZE

Kelly complained that the freeze, based on 1969-70 spending levels, would hit large urban districts "at low ebb." His massive district, largest in the state with an annual budget of $687 million, has had to pare spending by $67 million the past two years to meet available funds.

He and others said the controls would only aggravate a system where wealthy school districts can get by with a lower tax rate than poor districts with a smaller tax base.

Bagley said this situation would have been corrected by the statewide property tax feature he had in his bill, but was forced to delete in the Assembly.

"Many of the people crying about this disparity are the same people who opposed the statewide property tax," Bagley said. "It would have achieved equalization. But we haven't had one iota of assistance from school people to achieve equalization." Other amendments are planned to make up an estimated $40 million deficit in the bill of proposed spending over increased income. This is caused by the current fiscal trend of higher welfare costs and less income from tax sources because of the economical down turn.

Meeting Postponed

Popular Novato Teacher Putting Away Her Texts

By THERON A. NEWELL

At Lu Sutton school in Novato, there is a first grade teacher so popular that parents request that their children be put in her class, especially if older brothers and sisters have had her for a teacher.

That will end with this school year when Johnnie Guthrie retires after 16 years teaching in the Novato schools. It will be the end of a teaching career that began more than 40 years ago.

But teaching has been only one of her careers. Her life has also encompassed defense work in Detroit, Mich., and work in the atomic bomb plant at Oakridge, Tenn.

Born Johnnie Dodson in Athens, Tenn., and graduated from the McMinn County High School in Athens, she took the state teacher's examination and began teaching the first four grades in a two-room school at Marshall Hill, outside of Athens.

She also taught at Idlewild Junior High School there and coached the girl's basketball team as well.

"I have pictures to prove it," said Mrs. Guthrie, seeming to suspect her mature dignity might make it hard to believe that she ever ran around a gymnasium.

After schol was out for summer in 1942, she visited Detroit, where she took a job with Packard Motor Car Co., which put her through blueprint school. She became supervisor of blueprint reading for precision machinists, starting at $70 per week, compared to the $92.50 per month she had been getting as a teacher.

In 1943 she went to work as a cubicle supervisor for Tennessee Eastman Co. "Everything was top secret; we didn't know what we were doing," she said of her work. "All we had to do was watch a big series of dials in a room; we couldn't even visit other parts of the plant."

JOHNNIE GUTHRIE
Well taught children, her legacy

A highlight of this part of her career — though it gave no clue to what she was doing — was when Dr. Robert Oppenheimer once visited her cubicle in the plant, she said.

It was only after the bomb fell on Hiroshima on August 6, 1945, that they knew.

"It doesn't bother my conscience because we were working for the defense of our country that had been attacked," she said on inquiry. She said that she used to tell her classes of her work at first, but has not done that in recent years.

Her section of the plant was closed down in 1949, and in 1950 she married Harry Guthrie, a boy with whom she had attended school in Athens. They moved to Novato and lived at Second Street and Vallejo Avenue for a year while Harry built the house they still live in at 1205 Olive Avenue. He is a retired steel construction worker.

During these years, she had not neglected her own education. She graduated from Tennessee Wesleyan College and later took her master's degree in counseling and guidance from San Francisco State College.

It is the Novato school children that are her biggest legacy. During her 16 years teaching, nearly 500 students have felt her warm personality and charm in their daily lessons at school.

"I try to get them to think in addition to learning their lessons," she gave as one reason for her success with the children.

"Whenever a family has had a child in her class, they want their other children to have her for a teacher," said Alfred Rivasplata, principal of Lu Sutton school.

Not having any children of her own, she has given her students her love and attention. She is really devoted to them, Rivasplata said.

She has taught her first grade students the love of flowers. They have planted flowering bulbs outside her classroom. Now they can observe nature beautify a corner of the school grounds.

Another of her hobbies, folk dancing, she has shared with the students at the school. At home, her hobbies include playing the electric organ and piano for her own enjoyment.

Her retirement has not gone unnoticed. She was given a life membership by the California Parent-Teacher Congress. The Lu Sutton Parent-Teacher Association presented her with a silver bowl.

Of her future plans, she said:

"I want to live the rest of my life in my home, I love it so much."

"Failure of Congress to act will be something for the people to remember," he said.

Nixon said the rate of increase of crime has declined recently and gave credit to Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who stood at his side during the meeting in the White House rose garden.

But he said law enforcement authorities need more effective tools and that they would be provided with passage of the administration's anti-crime program.

Nixon also called for "even-handed enforcement" of laws already on the books as a step toward re-establishing public confidence in the law.

"When a law is not enforced, that creates a disrespect for law," he said. "But when a law is unfairly enforced it also creates disrespect for law."

Nixon's audience was a delegation from the annual conference of federal attorneys, being held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, where Agnew in a prepared speech said that "criminal elements" are "truly the enemies of our country."

Bill That Caused Schrade Uproar Goes To Floor

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The legislation involved in a controversy over Senate leader Jack Schrade's acceptance last year of a $5,000 campaign contribution was approved Wednesday by the Assembly Finance and Insurance committee.

The measure, sponsored by Chairman Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, was sent to the floor on a voice vote with no audible dissents. It would permit thrift and loan companies, also called industrial loan firms, to compete in the lucrative home loan market.

Schrade, R-San Diego, accepted the campaign contribution last June from the California Association of Thrift and Loan Companies shortly after he voted for the bill in a Senate committee. The measure died on the Senate floor. Schrade also supported virtually identical legislation at previous sessions.

Cong Raiders Massacre 75 Civilians

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas throwing grenades into bunkers filled with terrified villagers overran a South Vietnamese hamlet today and killed 75 civilians and injured 83 others.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the incident killed the most civilians since the massacres at Hue during the Communist 1968 Tet offensive.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops today seized part of the ancient ruins of Angkor Wat and attacked the Siem Reap Airport, from which Communist forces were driven last weekend.

The slaying of the civilians in South Vietnam was at Phu Thanh, a hamlet 16 miles south of Da Nang.

UPI correspondent Robert EM Sullivan reported from Phu Thanh that many of the civilians slain were wives and children of South Vietnamese soldiers or were war refugees.

The Vieg Cong attacked at 1:30 a. m. with mortar fire against a bridge.

"The real target was the civilian area," said Maj. Thomas J. Pentacost of Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Nearly every one of the homes in the village of 3,410 residents had an underground shelter. But the attackers lobbed grenades into them and U. S. officials said 34 persons were killed in one bunker alone. An old man, weeping, pointed to a level hut that had been his home. He said a single grenade killed his friend, Nguyen Tuan, his pregnant wife and their four children.

"There were dead people all over the place," said Pfc. Joseph Cusick, 21, a Marine from St .Paul, Minn.

Village chief Nguyen An said there were other bodies in collapsed bunkers.

Meeting Postponed

The Kentfield Fire District Board has postponed its June meeting to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the main fire station because one board member is out of the county and Chief Kenneth T. Kamp is on vacation.

FOR THE YOUNG AT HEART

Home owners at Greenbrae Marina not only live near the water but also live on it. Any clear day is a valid excuse for sailing and youngsters with their small craft and lots of canvas are quick to take advantage of it. This is a scene on the main lagoon. Some homes face on Corte Madera Creek with access to the bay.

An Injustice To Fawns

Meaning no harm whatsoever, certain tenderhearted travelers in the outdoors spot seemingly abandoned fawns and adopt them.

As to the truth of the matter, such a traveler actually does the fawn a great injustice, for its mother probably wanders nearby, soon to return and take care of her undisturbed offspring.

You might ask why. And the answer lies largely in the fact that the average person can't provide the special care and feeding needed by young deer for survival.

Even if a young deer survives under the hands of humans, it can hardly be called an ideal pet, often becomes bothersome and sometimes downright dangerous.

As the young fawn grows up, it learns to kick vigorously. And its sharp hooves can inflict serious injury on children or adults.

Observe Laws For Safe ,Happy Riding

Bicycling just for thrills ends in some nasty spills. Enjoyment shouldn't come first, with bike riders in traffic — safety should.

Obey all traffic laws to the best of your ability and you'll live for many more days of happy bicycling.

Check Sleeping Bag Weights

There are sleeping bags in weights insuring just the right amount of warmth for the camping climate you expect will greet you.

There are also king-size bags for Paul Bunyans, accessory liners to supplement insulation, and a special marine sleeping bag for boat and stormy weather camping. The marine sleeping bag boasts a water-repellent outer covering, pre-shrunk fabrics used throughout and a rust- and corrosion-proof nylon zipper.

The United States Forest Service has 400 smokejumpers who parachute to remote fires.

Family Airplane Can Be A Real Vacation Aid

Hundreds of new weekend vacation sports, formerly inaccessible due to distance and driving time, and the fun of the great outdoors can be easily within your grasp via the family airplane.

To a private pilot, a 500-mile jaunt is only a few enjoyable hours flying time. The personal satisfaction of learning to fly a modern "private" airplane is something you will carry with you all your life . and the cost is surprisingly nominal.

Learning to fly is basically relatively simple and certainly requires no superhuman skills. Last year, nearly 150,000 people began flying lessons. They will soon be joining the 750,000 who now enjoy its benefits and convenience. Most had never before even seen the inside of a private aircraft before they started.

So, if you've always envied the man who steps confidently from his car, boards a private airplane and flies away, and if you happen to have the urge to fly, here is how to go about it:

Thousands of schools throughout the country teach flying. Many offer a special "get acquainted" introductory flight lesson for a minimal charge of $5.00.

This is an excellent way to start, since it gives you an opportunity to actually fly an airplane yourself, accompanied by a government-licensed instructor, and base your decision to continue on actual experience.

Your instructor will begin with an introduction to the airplane, explaining what makes it fly and how it is controlled.

After only one lesson, it will be difficult to believe that most student pilots make their first solo flight after just 10-12 hours of dual instruction time; but, it's true.

Very soon, all those "meaningless" dials and switches begin to form a pattern, just as automobile instruments do when you learn to drive. As this becomes clear and you can make consistently accurate landings, your instructor will step from the aircraft on some pretext and nonchantly tell you to "take her around the pattern a few times."

Litterbugs Spoil Much Pleasure In The Outdoors

Being in the outdoors revitalizes you with its refreshing change from normal routine.

Sad to say, many individuals spoil this outdoors for others by joining litterbugs or potential firebugs. If they do this consciously or unconsciously, it makes no difference.

Look around you. Do you see the unwholesome sight of litter? Chances are you do. And how do you handle your matches?

Don't you add to the mess. Keep the land clean by tossing your litter in the proper receptacles, not on the ground. Keep the land green by being careful with fire.

Join the good citizens, not the litterbugs or potential firebugs.

Forest fires have no respect for property boundaries, our environment — or your own future.

Cook-Out Secret: Easy Does It

"Easy does it" is the secret of "cook-outs" and successful patio parties. Take steps to save work before and after the meal. The clue to cutting down on cleaning up is new cookware that does double duty for cooking and serving.

Planning ahead will save time and work; you can prepare food, freeze it in this cookware and then place the utensil directly over a flame when you're ready to cook and serve. Detachable handles facilitate cooking, twist off for table-service to reveal elegant-looking casserole dishes.

Here are two quick and easy variations on familiar barbecue recipes you may enjoy serving:

SPECIALBURGERS

½ cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon ground mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1½ lbs. ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
dash Tabasco sauce
8 slices salami (about ½ lb.)
1 large sweet onion, sliced
8 buttered sandwich rolls

Blend mustard, Worcestershire and Tabasco sauce and catsup in 1-pint mixing bowl. Work salt into ground beef with a fork. Shape into 8 flat patties. Brown lightly in melted fat in a skillet placed directly on the grill over glowing heat. Arrange 4 slices salami in a well-greased Pyroceram brand saucepan. Place a browned hamburger on top of each salami slice. Put 1 tablespoon of barbecue sauce on each hamburger. Top each with a slice of onion. Repeat, making a second layer directly over bottom layer. Cover and place on grill for about 25 minutes; uncover and continue cooking an additional 10-15 minutes, until sizzling. Serve in buttered rolls.

SAUTEED TOMATOES

Sprinkle thick-cut tomato slices with salt, pepper, basil, to taste. Place in fat remaining in skillet used to brown hamburgers, and sear quickly. Keep hot on back of grill.

Include People In Pictures

One good rule for vacation pictures is to include people. You can add interest if you have them doing something. Action makes a picture something special, and there are plenty of natural situations to be found while camping that will make the pictures easy to take and fun to look at later on.

There are innumerable camp-life scenes: mother cooking breakfast on the gas stove; father and the children putting up the tent; the kids getting washed in a stream.

The important thing is to have them fit naturally into the theme of the picture. They are your models; use them imaginatively.

Family Airplane Can Be A Real Vacation Aid

Hundreds of new weekend vacation sports, formerly inaccessible due to distance and driving time, and the fun of the great outdoors can be easily within your grasp via the family airplane.

To a private pilot, a 500-mile jaunt is only a few enjoyable hours flying time. The personal satisfaction of learning to fly a modern "private" airplane is something you will carry with you all your life . and the cost is surprisingly nominal.

Learning to fly is basically relatively simple and certainly requires no superhuman skills. Last year, nearly 150,000 people began flying lessons. They will soon be joining the 750,000 who now enjoy its benefits and convenience. Most had never before even seen the inside of a private aircraft before they started.

So, if you've always envied the man who steps confidently from his car, boards a private airplane and flies away, and if you happen to have the urge to fly, here is how to go about it:

Thousands of schools throughout the country teach flying. Many offer a special "get acquainted" introductory flight lesson for a minimal charge of $5.00.

This is an excellent way to start, since it gives you an opportunity to actually fly an airplane yourself, accompanied by a government-licensed instructor, and base your decision to continue on actual experience.

Your instructor will begin with an introduction to the airplane, explaining what makes it fly and how it is controlled.

After only one lesson, it will be difficult to believe that most student pilots make their first solo flight after just 10-12 hours of dual instruction time; but, it's true.

Very soon, all those "meaningless" dials and switches begin to form a pattern, just as automobile instruments do when you learn to drive. As this becomes clear and you can make consistently accurate landings, your instructor will step from the aircraft on some pretext and nonchantly tell you to "take her around the pattern a few times."

Litterbugs Spoil Much Pleasure In The Outdoors

Being in the outdoors revitalizes you with its refreshing change from normal routine.

Sad to say, many individuals spoil this outdoors for others by joining litterbugs or potential firebugs. If they do this consciously or unconsciously, it makes no difference.

Look around you. Do you see the unwholesome sight of litter? Chances are you do. And how do you handle your matches?

Don't you add to the mess. Keep the land clean by tossing your litter in the proper receptacles, not on the ground. Keep the land green by being careful with fire.

Join the good citizens, not the litterbugs or potential firebugs.

Forest fires have no respect for property boundaries, our environment — or your own future.

Cook-Out Secret: Easy Does It

"Easy does it" is the secret of "cook-outs" and successful patio parties. Take steps to save work before and after the meal. The clue to cutting down on cleaning up is new cookware that does double duty for cooking and serving.

Planning ahead will save time and work; you can prepare food, freeze it in this cookware and then place the utensil directly over a flame when you're ready to cook and serve. Detachable handles facilitate cooking, twist off for table-service to reveal elegant-looking casserole dishes.

Here are two quick and easy variations on familiar barbecue recipes you may enjoy serving:

SPECIALBURGERS

½ cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon ground mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1½ lbs. ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
dash Tabasco sauce
8 slices salami (about ½ lb.)
1 large sweet onion, sliced
8 buttered sandwich rolls

Blend mustard, Worcestershire and Tabasco sauce and catsup in 1-pint mixing bowl. Work salt into ground beef with a fork. Shape into 8 flat patties. Brown lightly in melted fat in a skillet placed directly on the grill over glowing heat. Arrange 4 slices salami in a well-greased Pyroceram brand saucepan. Place a browned hamburger on top of each salami slice. Put 1 tablespoon of barbecue sauce on each hamburger. Top each with a slice of onion. Repeat, making a second layer directly over bottom layer. Cover and place on grill for about 25 minutes; uncover and continue cooking an additional 10-15 minutes, until sizzling. Serve in buttered rolls.

SAUTEED TOMATOES

Sprinkle thick-cut tomato slices with salt, pepper, basil, to taste. Place in fat remaining in skillet used to brown hamburgers, and sear quickly. Keep hot on back of grill.

Include People In Pictures

One good rule for vacation pictures is to include people. You can add interest if you have them doing something. Action makes a picture something special, and there are plenty of natural situations to be found while camping that will make the pictures easy to take and fun to look at later on.

There are innumerable camp-life scenes: mother cooking breakfast on the gas stove; father and the children putting up the tent; the kids getting washed in a stream.

The important thing is to have them fit naturally into the theme of the picture. They are your models; use them imaginatively.

QUICK CHANGE SET

Volkswagen's campmobile for 1970 can be an everyday car or an instant resort featuring sleeping quarters, kitchen, dinette and living room for weekend and vacation trips. Optional "pop top" provides standing room, an inside luggage rack and an upper berth for a child.

Some Timely Tips On Towing

Do you own a travel trailer, occasionally tow a horse trailer or tow a boat on a trailer? Engineers offer these timely tips on towing. The same principles apply, no matter how long, how heavy, or how well designed the trailer.

Load a trailer a bit more carefully. Keep the weight centered as near the rear axle as possible. Remember these two rules about trailer loads:

Heavy cargo in the forward section of the trailer will substantially increase the tongue-load. That in turn is harder on spring bars, rear car suspension and general handling.

Too much cargo placed in the extreme rear section of a trailer lightens tongues loads, but this is not a beneficial treatment. Tail-heavy trailers have a tendency to whip violently, to pitch down into chuckholes then to fling back up roughly. They'll fish-tail dangerously.

Distribute your load evenly, but with most of the heavy gear placed slightly ahead of the axle and as close to the floor as practical to store it.

After normal loading is completed, check the attitude of the car-frame and trailer-frame.

They should be riding in a horizontal-level position for smoothest towing results. Don't believe that old nonsense about towing with a "rake" (tongue high). Load-equalizer hitches are a real boon. They function most efficiently when the car and trailer, in a fully-loaded condition, are both riding level.

After a season of storage the little 12-volt dry-cell battery used to power the safety break-away switch is probably weak. Discard it and replace with a new one. It's a few dollars wisely spent. Why take chances? No power, no stop.

Tighten the hitch-ball before leaving home, then check it again after the first 50 miles or so of towing.

Remove the hub caps from the trailer wheels and tighten the lug bolts. If they work loose, the trailer may wobble dangerously.

Stop at the first gas-station on your way out of town and inflate tires to three or four pounds over the usual load. Don't forget the spare tire!

The safety break-away device cannot work unless attached. Double-check to make sure the end of the cable is firmly fastened to some part of the towing vehicle.

After dropping trailer onto hitch-ball, always latch the coupler handle and bolt it for security. (There is usually a hole drilled through coupler for this purpose.)

Couple the wiring systems together, car to trailer. While you stand behind trailer watching have your wife test the turn signal lamps, tail lights, brake stop-light, and trailer running lights. Replace any defective bulbs now.

Adjust side-view mirror for new season.

Pre-trip check list insures against forgotten items when preparing for vacation with camper, travel trailer or motor home.

Keep a check list of all pre-trip services and of the gear you plan to take. This will save time, provide an organized method of remembering things to do before setting out and build enjoyable anticipation for the trip.

Most families start with a basic list and then add to or subtract from it according to the nature of the vacation. The basic list comprises mandatory items for any trip, be it for a day or a month. Subsidiary lists can be divided into specific special-purpose areas.

There is an added bonus to adopting a plan such as this in that you can assign different specialty lists to various members of the family, putting each one in charge of a separate category. This will ease the work load for the head of the household, and will instill a sense of pride, responsibility and accomplishment in even the youngest child.

For instance, you might turn over the check list for pre-trip service of the recreational vehicle to your teenaged son. He would be responsible for seeing to it that the unit was in good traveling condition; the motor tuned, tires safe and correctly inflated, oil, water and battery in order, and the tank filled with gas.

If you will be going fishing, a younger son might see to it that the fishing tackle was collected and ready to load. A daughter might be put in charge of checking cooking utensils, sleeping gear and disposables, such as paper plates, napkins, towels and bathroom tissue.

Another daughter might help her mother plan the food and beverage list. One of the younger members of the family might have the responsibility of food for pets that go along.

You, as "captain of the ship," are in charge of the itinerary, planning the stops and fiugre the best routes. Your job is to coordinate all lists with the children in your "crew," when everything is accomplished.

Specialty lists will vary considerably according to the nature of the vacation. You wouldn't take the same gear to the seashore that you would take skiing, for instance.

As you take different types of trips, keep your old check lists. They will come in handy next time and you will be able to add items you discovered you needed and leave off items which you didn't use.

Keeping a log of your trips is helpful for the same reason.

It will be a reminder of things you might forget over the course of a year, and you can plan your future trips by going over your old ones.

If you make check lists, and follow them, you will eliminate the possibility of forgetting essential items. Keeping a log and check lists should be fun and shared by the entire family. This procedure will teach youngsters order and responsibility, enhancing the enjoyment of your trip.

Camper Components Should Match

To get the maximum enjoyment from a camper, special care must be taken in matching the two major elements: the camper coach that houses the eating, sleeping and bathroom facilities — and the vehicle that carries the coach itself. In most cases each must be purchased from separate dealers.

Perhaps the best way to handle the situation is to decide on the type of camper coach you want, and then look for the proper vehicle to carry it.

Some dealers, for example, offer camper-carrying models with units available in both rear and all-wheel drive.

Each carries a decal that states its limitations in terms of the combined weight of camper coach, gear and passengers.

In addition to this, the camper dealer can provide the facts on specifying the proper special equipment and necessary heavy-duty components in order to assure that the vehicle will operate properly.

Forest fire prevention costs nothing but a little thought. This is the year to think fire safety all of the time.

Heating System Can Stretch Swimming Season

Do you swim in spite of the weather or because of it?

A well designed pool heating system can stretch or even double the swimming season. There are two types: continuous and intermittent. The first holds water at the desired temperature for the full season.

But intermittent pool heaters can save 30 percent of fuel costs or more.

Experts advise heating the water only when the pool is in use. And buy a heater carefully sized to your pool, they say, explaining that the extra cost of a heater that's large enough for your pool will soon be made up by lower fuel costs.

An accurate temperature control is a must, as fuel bills can increase up to ten percent when water temperature rises one degree.

Natural gas pool heaters maintain water temperature accurately.

Lack Of Campgrounds Is Critical

Single most serious obstacle in the growth of the recreation vehicle industry has been the shortage of public and private campgrounds for use by owners of motor homes, truck campers and travel trailers.

Studies of the people who use recreation vehicles show that the vast majority rarely seek out the wilds, much preferring an established camping area where they have access to such niceties as water, electricity, sewage hookup, picnic tables, fireplaces and paved parking areas.

Since most of the new breed of campers are people who have been raised in urban and suburban areas, it is logical that their tastes in travel camping run toward communal comfort rather than toward the more solitary and rough hewn type of wilderness camping.

It has been only recently that there have begun to be enough campsites of all sorts to satisfy public demand. While the number of recreation vehicles has grown at an average rate of 25 per cent annually in each of the last eight years, growth of parks and campgrounds has hovered at the 10 per cent level over the same period. The year 1969 saw a marked improvement in the number of campsites, mostly from the increased number of private campgrounds which have opened, plus the expansion of already existing facilities. The stimulus has been in the private sector, as the investor has become aware of the profit potential of campground ownership and operation.

Last year the total number of campsites accepting recreation vehicles in the U.S. grew from 44,424 to 578,342, an increase of 30 per cent. This growth was mostly in private campgrounds.

The federal budget, otherwise occupied, has not included monies for adequate expansion and construction of new public and national campaing and park facilities.

The boom in use of recreation vehicles shows no signs of abating, however. Therefore, even more must be done to provide additional campsites. With an estimated 2.5 million recreation vehicles on the road today, plus an estimated 7.5 million by 1980, it is obvious that there will have to be continuous growth in both public and private camps and parks in order to keep up with demand.

The day of the campground being 100-per cent booked months in advance is almost over as of now, but it will return if campgrounds and parks do not continue to grow as fast as, or faster than, the recreation vehicle industry.

The burden for this development will continue to fall largely on the private sector to realize the need, and then fill it.

Outdoor Room

There is considerable interest in the home that is designed to combine indoors and outdoors year-round. An "outdoor living room" may be enclosed like a greenhouse, by glass or clear plastic, and air conditioned so that it is always comfortable and plants and flowers thrive winter and summer. In such a room, outdoor activities like gardening can be enjoyed anytime of the year.

During 1969 there were more than 90 thousand wildfires — more than 80 thousand of them were caused by man and his activities.

Shoji Screens

If you plan shoji screens in your garden shelters, modern translucent plastic materials can be substituted for rice paper. Pebbles of varying sizes and colors are often used for decorative ground color, as is raked white sand. Small pools and running water traditionally add interest to oriental gardens. As a final touch, oriental sculptures or such accessories as stone lanterns can be used sparingly.

Be your own fire lookout. Keep a sharp eye out for careless habits that could lead to a wildfire. Think critically of the way your campfire is built, the way you refill a lantern, your vehicle's exhaust system if you are near dry grass or brush.

Can Fill Long Summer Day

The warm-weather months can be the point of no return for busy moms with a vacationing brood of listless youngsters.

"What can we do now, Mom?" is the all too frequent question put to the woman of the house.

Be ready for that query when it comes. Suggest a "Paint-In!" Provide the kids with one or two galvanized steel garbage pails, a can of any exterior cement base or latex paint, and decals, stencils and design cutouts in contrasting colors. Then turn your budding artist loose to decorate the trash pails.

Chances are you'll have the most imaginative "decorator cans" in the neighborhood. Challenge the kids by offering prizes for the most elaborate, funniest, most original, most colorful . . . or have categories such as geometrics and cartoon characters and turn the Paint-In into an all-neighborhood project.

From Bodega Bay To Jenner—Every Mile Is An Adventure

"By the sea, By the sea, By the beautiful sea."

Nowhere on that picturesque nine-mile strip from Bodega Bay to Jenner at the mouth of the Russian River, on the Sonoma County Coast, does the scesery lose its appeal. Quite the contrary. Every mile brings new adventure.

Go north on U. S. 101 until you reach the Washington Street turnoff in Petaluma, which leads west to Bodega Avenue. Follow the latter 27 miles to State Highway 1 and Bodega Bay.

Start at the south end of this almost landlocked bay. A road sign saying "Doran Park" clues you in on leaving State Highway 1 for a pleasant little excursion down a country road. Enjoy skirting the bay's edge, seeing unusual things. Crushed oyster shells and mud flats lie to the right of you, dunes and European beachgrass to the left.

At Doran Beach, which is a sandspit that makes the bay safe for fishing boats, you'll find some of the best rockfishing on our state's north coast.

Back on State Highway 1, you'll soon be impressed by a little village stringing out along it, by Bodega Bay and its small buildings set against rolling hills. Some call it the spitting image of a Mediterranean village. Brightly colored roofs heighten this illusion.

Notice, however, all the fathers and sons on the short piers that jut into the bay and you'll quickly get the message that you're in what is primarily a fishing village.

Now you're on your way to that looming, moss-green, and black-granite promontory, to gigantic Bodega Heard.

Once there, you'll really be feeling on top of the world. You'll be standing on land sighted nearly 200 years ago by the young Spaniard, Juan Francisco de Bodega, aboard the Sonora.

From this great vantage point, do take some pictures. Those of the crescent-shaped inlet make fine trophies for any album.

At the bottom of the scenic hills, enter Salmon Creek, headquarters of Sonoma Coast Beach State Park, the park with all those beaches. A typical one of these displays fantastic cliffs and coves that took angry waves and winds long centuries to carve. And Salmon Creek's south beach provides about the best beachcombing stretch in the whole area.

To your delight, the sight of the sea stays right with you almost until you reach Jenner. Discover the northwest point at Duncans Landing, where at least 25 anglers lost their lives because of unpredictable, towering waves. But stay inside the fence.

Pass beautiful and wide Wrights Beoch, make a side trip to Goat Rock, and again return to State Highway 1. Shortly thereafter the bridge over the Russian River spreads out before you. Turn left at the other end to arrive in Jenner. Note the unique way this town clings to the hillside.

Try this trip some fine sunny day. You'll be happy you did.

Group Flying Clubs Are Becoming 'In'

Group flying clubs are rapidly becoming one of the most popular roads to learning to fly and private airplane travel.

While a great majority of Americans who learn to fly do so on an individual basis through approved flying schools, an increasing number are finding advantages in club participation — namely, each airplane owned by the club gets maximum use by members, substantially reducing operating costs.

Basically, a flying club allows people interested in flying and in learning to fly — through a pooling of organizational and managerial skills — to establish a program that provides high-quality, well-equipped new aircraft at a surprisingly low cost per member.

Guidelines for establishing a flying club may be obtained from several sources. Well researched booklets, such as "Airplane Co-Ownership" (the Cessna Foursome Plan), provide helpful hints on how to get started and what to expect in the way of costs, etc. Some clubs are organized by employees of large companies and others by groups with special common interests.

By organizing a new club or participating in an existing group, learning to fly and continuing to fly compares, costwise, to learning and continuing with other activities such as skiing or golf.

Flying clubs vary from very small groups with only one two-passenger trainer-type airplane to large, businesslike organizations employing a full-time manager who supervises a membership of hundreds with 20 or more aircraft — including high performance six-passenger models for cross-country vacation travel.

After learning to fly, continued club membership makes it economical for a pilot to utilize his well-earned license to bring weekends alive for himself and family.

Age is certainly no barrier. Club members range from 17 (the youngest age that one can obtain a pilot's license) to men and women in their 60's.

ADDS ZEST TO THE PATIO

The outdoor enthusiast with a flair for fun will find that portable electronic entertainment brings the music of a sidewalk cafe to a barbecue dinner. Later, the big bands or combo recordings set the mood for dancing under the stars.

Surfing Is 'Mad' World Of Its Own

"Here it finally comes," yell excited surfers truly devoted to their sport. With a mad dash, they're off to catch the king, the prized wave of the day, before it breaks.

Others merely watch, supposedly contented, their surfboards simply lying in the sand for show. Go ahead and just sprawl out in the sand, soaking up the rays and daydreaming. Go ahead and just wiggle your toes, sitting back and watching the waves. But you're missing out on unimaginable thrills.

Know what it's like to come really alive? Head for some beach with the proper coastline, one where surf breaks onto a point of land, where reef or rock formations run out from the shore, and you'll find out. But only if you work hard on learning how to surf.

Sure, surfing appears simple. Still, you'll take many spills and nurse many sores before you're ready for the real thing, that of zooming down a fierce eight-foot wave.

Since California waters prove colder than Hawaiian waters, where surfing originated, experienced surfers find paddling on their knees more comfortable. But you, the wise beginner, know enough to first lie down on the board and get the feel of the surf.

Other novices realize the advantage of this, the safety aspects. And they follow through by paddling ahead of a wave that has already broken, the bubbly white foam catching them and carrying them to shore.

Several days, even weeks, may pass before you're capable of passing beyond this "guppy" stage. Someday, though, you too will dash off to catch the king-sized wave of the day. Begin trying your hand at surfing and that prize will be yours before you know it.

Forests mean recreation, jobs, beauty, hunting, fishing, hiking, camping, and a feeling of individual satisfaction and peace to those who enter them. Keep them green and growing. Conditions this year make the threat of wildfires even more ominous than usual.

Water One Of The Vital Resources

Water is one of our most vital natural resources. We can drink it, cruise on it, fish in it, swim in it — and we use vast quantities for industry — to say nothing of commercial navigation. But we can also pollute it so that none of the above may be possible. Let the boatmen of America join the crusade to prevent pollution. Better still, lead it.

High temperatures, winds and low humidity make an explosive combination in our foretss. Don't light the fuse of disaster. This year calls for extreme care.

By organizing a new club or participating in an existing group, learning to fly and continuing to fly compares, costwise, to learning and continuing with other activities such as skiing or golf.

Flying clubs vary from very small groups with only one two-passenger trainer-type airplane to large, businesslike organizations employing a full-time manager who supervises a membership of hundreds with 20 or more aircraft — including high performance six-passenger models for cross-country vacation travel.

After learning to fly, continued club membership makes it economical for a pilot to utilize his well-earned license to bring weekends alive for himself and family.

Age is certainly no barrier. Club members range from 17 (the youngest age that one can obtain a pilot's license) to men and women in their 60's.

ADDS ZEST TO THE PATIO

The outdoor enthusiast with a flair for fun will find that portable electronic entertainment brings the music of a sidewalk cafe to a barbecue dinner. Later, the big bands or combo recordings set the mood for dancing under the stars.

From Bodega Bay To Jenner— Every Mile Is An Adventure

"By the sea, By the sea, By the beautiful sea."

Nowhere on that picturesque nine-mile strip from Bodega Bay to Jenner at the mouth of the Russian River, on the Sonoma County Coast, does the scesery lose its appeal. Quite the contrary. Every mile brings new adventure.

Go north on U. S. 101 until you reach the Washington Street turnoff in Petaluma, which leads west to Bodega Avenue. Follow the latter 27 miles to State Highway 1 and Bodega Bay.

Start at the south end of this almost landlocked bay. A road sign saying "Doran Park" clues you in on leaving State Highway 1 for a pleasant little excursion down a country road. Enjoy skirting the bay's edge, seeing unusual things. Crushed oyster shells and mud flats lie to the right of you, dunes and European beachgrass to the left.

At Doran Beach, which is a sandspit that makes the bay safe for fishing boats, you'll find some of the best rockfishing on our state's north coast.

Back on State Highway 1, you'll soon be impressed by a little village stringing out along it, by Bodega Bay and its small buildings set against rolling hills. Some call it the spitting image of a Mediterranean village. Brightly colored roofs heighten this illusion.

Notice, however, all the fathers and sons on the short piers that jut into the bay and you'll quickly get the message that you're in what is primarily a fishing village.

Now you're on your way to that looming, moss-green, and black-granite promontory, to gigantic Bodega Heard.

Once there, you'll really be feeling on top of the world. You'll be standing on land sighted nearly 200 years ago by the young Spaniard, Juan Francisco de Bodega, aboard the Sonora.

From this great vantage point, do take some pictures. Those of the crescent-shaped inlet make fine trophies for any album.

At the bottom of the scenic hills, enter Salmon Creek, headquarters of Sonoma Coast Beach State Park, the park with all those beaches. A typical one of these displays fantastic cliffs and coves that took angry waves and winds long centuries to carve. And Salmon Creek's south beach provides about the best beachcombing stretch in the whole area.

To your delight, the sight of the sea stays right with you almost until you reach Jenner. Discover the northwest point at Duncans Landing, where at least 25 anglers lost their lives because of unpredictable, towering waves. But stay inside the fence.

Pass beautiful and wide Wrights Beoch, make a side trip to Goat Rock, and again return to State Highway 1. Shortly thereafter the bridge over the Russian River spreads out before you. Turn left at the other end to arrive in Jenner. Note the unique way this town clings to the hillside.

Try this trip some fine sunny day. You'll be happy you did.

Surfing Is 'Mad' World Of Its Own

"Here it finally comes," yell excited surfers truly devoted to their sport. With a mad dash, they're off to catch the king, the prized wave of the day, before it breaks.

Others merely watch, supposedly contented, their surfboards simply lying in the sand for show. Go ahead and just sprawl out in the sand, soaking up the rays and daydreaming. Go ahead and just wiggle your toes, sitting back and watching the waves. But you're missing out on unimaginable thrills.

Know what it's like to come really alive? Head for some beach with the proper coastline, one where surf breaks onto a point of land, where reef or rock formations run out from the shore, and you'll find out. But only if you work hard on learning how to surf.

Sure, surfing appears simple. Still, you'll take many spills and nurse many sores before you're ready for the real thing, that of zooming down a fierce eight-foot wave.

Since California waters prove colder than Hawaiian waters, where surfing originated, experienced surfers find paddling on their knees more comfortable. But you, the wise beginner, know enough to first lie down on the board and get the feel of the surf.

Other novices realize the advantage of this, the safety aspects. And they follow through by paddling ahead of a wave that has already broken, the bubbly white foam catching them and carrying them to shore.

Several days, even weeks, may pass before you're capable of passing beyond this "guppy" stage. Someday, though, you too will dash off to catch the king-sized wave of the day. Begin trying your hand at surfing and that prize will be yours before you know it.

Forests mean recreation, jobs, beauty, hunting, fishing, hiking, camping, and a feeling of individual satisfaction and peace to those who enter them. Keep them green and growing. Conditions this year make the threat of wildfires even more ominous than usual.

Water One Of The Vital Resources

Water is one of our most vital natural resources. We can drink it, cruise on it, fish in it, swim in it — and we use vast quantities for industry — to say nothing of commercial navigation. But we can also pollute it so that none of the above may be possible. Let the boatmen of America join the crusade to prevent pollution. Better still, lead it.

High temperatures, winds and low humidity make an explosive combination in our foretss. Don't light the fuse of disaster. This year calls for extreme care.

Outdoor Activities Growing Faster Than Available Places

Do you grumble when your favorite beach is overcrowded, or you can't find a pad at the campground of your choice: Does it seem there ought to be a ski lift or a boat launching ramp closer to home? Or a ballfield, or a swimming pool, or a trail?

Most people do complain about such things these days. The numbers of outdoor activists are growing at a fantastic rate while the areas and facilities for them to enjoy are limited and their growth rate is way below pressures for expansion.

Recent legislation such as the National Scenic Rivers and Trails Acts, and the growing involvement of states and communities with the program of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, indicate determination at the top to enhance the Nations' environment and outdoor recreation opportunities. Implementation of these laws evolves at State and local, as well as at the Federal level.

The Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation suggests that outdoorsmen (and women) can help themselves by getting involved in these and other local and national efforts to balance outdoor recreation supply and demand.

Rarely before in our history have citizen groups been so encouraged to participate in matters of environmental concern, and rarely have their accomplishments been so encouraging.

Citizen victories in preserving open space in our countryside as well as our cities are due, at least in part, to the fact that a wealth of assistance and information is available for everyone who wants to act instead of grumble.

There are some 35 federal agencies with more than 90 specific programs that in some way affect outdoor recreation. Citizen awareness of these programs often spurs both private and public interest in preserving or developing outdoor recreation areas and facilities.

These are briefly explained in a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation publication called "Federal Assistance in Outdoor Recreation," which is available for 35c from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The programs covered range from financial and technical assistance that might be available for cleaning up a lake, for converting farmland to public or private outdoor recreation areas, or for creating playgrounds in inner cities.

The Nationwide Outdoor Recreation Plan, "The Recreation Imperative," discusses the Nation's outdoor recreation estate, and recommendations to improve it. "From Sea to Shining Sea" suggests many possibilities for citizen action in a broad range of environmental programs. These also are available through the Government Printing Office.

The Safe Way To Tow A Trailer

The vacation season, with its accompaniment of cars towing trailers, is upon us. And with it comes the threat of trailer "whipping," a hazardous series of hard-to-control events that can virtually throw a car and its passengers off the road.

The safe way to control the threat is to make sure, before you start out, that you've done everything you can to keep an emergency from developing.

Two precautions are especially critical:

1. Make sure the total trailer weight isn't more than half the weight of the towing car, and
2. Make sure the trailer tires are kept properly inflated.

Whipping is when the trailer steers violently from side to side and jerks at the car. The fishtailing motion comes from the normal lateral vibration of the car in conjunction with an overtaking force on the car from the trailer.

As the car slows down the trailer tries to push it. The combination tends to jackknife a bit to one side of the other and the car tires and suspension system 'stretch' slightly toward that side. As they rebound, the partial jackknife begins in the other direction.

Depending on the car's natural lateral frequency, its weight, and the trailer weight, there will be some specific speed for the combination at which resonance is most likely. And as the car slows through that critical speed range, the side-to-side motions become more and more violent and can soon throw a car totally out of control.

Without separate trailer brakes, the car's brakes hold the only solution. But they must be used carefully and well. Slow down sharply to get through that critical speed range as quickly as possible. But don't lock up the brakes under any circumstances. You'll lose all steering control and the whipping trailer will mean disaster.

To prevent whipping in the first place, it's easy and important to keep tires well inflated. For the car, cold pressures of up to 32 pounds aren't too high. One common size of trailer tires needs up to 45 pounds of air, and boat-trailer sizes take as much as 65 pounds or even more.

Boat trailers themselves pose a special problem. While they're often light enough to be hauled safely, vacationers may find the inside of the boat offers appealing space for lots of extra cargo — and load it far beyond the safe limit.

Keeping the trailer weight below half that of the car and insuring that there's no unnecessary slack in the hitch linkage are major measures against whipping. A separate brake system for the trailer is similarly helpful.

What To Call The Fixed Reel

The fantastic but certainly justified popularity today of fixed-spool reels has caused confusion as to what they should be called. There are open-face reels and closed-face reels; and ones that mount above rod handles and ones that mount below.

The open-face reel, mounting under the rod, is a spinning reel. The closed-face reel, having a nose-cone and a push-button, is a spin-cast reel — and while most are mounted on top of the rod some are mounted below.

So you spin with open-face reels, but you spin-cast with closed-face reels.

For Children

When you travel with youngsters, it's wise to take along food and beverages from home. Use a cooler and a beverage jug, for children will be happier eating food they're used to.

Update Furniture

If you have accumulated an assortment of unmatched lawn furniture over the years, tie it all together by painting it all the same color.

Tips On Taking Dog On Trip

Take your dog on a recreation vehicle vacation? Why not? Steinbeck did it. If you would travel with your own "Charlie," or Fido, or Rex, here are a few pointers that may help to make yours and his trip more enjoyable.

Plan to stay in privately operated recreation vehicle parks and campgrounds, or else check to be sure that public facilities in a particular state will accept your dog. Many will not. Most require that your dog be kept on leash at all times. In any case your dog should be kept under control and never allowed to run at large.

Make sure that your dog's rabies immunization is up to date. Immunization booster shots are required on an annual basis in some states and in Canada. It is best to comply with this minimum to be safe if you plan to cross state lines or international borders. Be sure to carry the dog's immunization certificate with you. Merely displaying the "rabies tag" on his collar is not enough.

Designate a place for your dog in your motor home or travel trailer that he can "call his own." Put his bed there, if he is used to this comfort. Your pet will feel much more secure and you will be more comfortable when you tell him to go to bed and he knows where to go.

Often a spot under a dinette table is a suitable one. One owner of a 22-foot motor home added a child's expandable safety gate across the back bedroom area, put the dog's bed under the expanded divan. Dog stays in his place and is happy. His folks are happier too.

Don't forget, your dog needs rest stops too. Whenever you stop for fuel, or in a rest area, take your dog for a walk. Not around the service station or rest area landscaping, please, but on the designated dog walks or a nearby vacant lot; not around expensive shrubbery.

Don't leave your dog tethered and unattended in camp; stake him out only when you are nearby. A retractable tether with ground stake is a valuable pet accessory that costs only a few dollars. It allows the pet a bit of freedom, yet reduces the inconvenience of his becmoing entangled in vehicle wheels or nearby trees.

If your dog is a nervous type when traveling, your veterinarian may recommend a mild tranquilizer. Use such medication sparingly.

The motion sickness drug Dramamine ofter works well as a mild tranquilizer and nausea remedy. Your veterinarian can tell you the proper dose for your dog, according to body weight.

To maintain your dog's health and well-being, make every attempt to feed him and walk him at his regular "home" times. Even if you decide to push on for that last two or three hours of driving to your destination, take time to feed Fido when his mealtime comes. He will be happier and so will you.

Keep your dog on his regular diet. A change of food and eating habits is much harder on your pet than it is on you. If you want to try new or different pet foods on your dog, do it at home and let him decide which one he prefers for eating on the road.

Provide drinking water for your dog at all times. A straight sided mixing bowl is ideal for this purpose.

If yours is a big working dog: setter, pointer, Labrador or similar, you'll find he tracks a lot of mud into your "house" after a day afield. No problem. Keep a vegetable brush handy near the vehicle door. A little warm water, a few strokes with the brush on the soles of his feet, a quick wipe with a paper towel or two and your pup is presentable in any company.

Never leave your dog alone in your vehicle unless some ventilation is provided. Electric current may fail and allow inside temperatures to soar in even a well-insulated vehicle. There is always the possibility of gas leaks which could have dire results if some fresh air is not allowed to enter the vehicle.

In summer, or in warm winter climates, protect your dog against insect pests: fleas, ticks, mites, etc. Your veterinarian may recommend a dusting powder or one of the newer pest collars. Flea and tick pills are also available and are said to be very effective.

Your house pet type will be a lot more contented if you take along one or two of his favorite toys. A nylon bone, a ball or a squeaky rabbit may be great for calming canines in unaccustomed surroundings.

Most dogs take enthusiastically to recreation vehicle travel after the first or second trip. One Doxie has added the word "camping" to his vocabulary. Just say the word and he is ready to go. Once out of the house he makes straight for the big rig, yapping for the family to hurry it up and get the show on the road. He knows he will get a lot more attention from his people when all are on vacation, relaxed and enjoying a trip together.

Normally a rather loud-mouthed hound, this daschshund leaves many of his guarding responsibilities at home. He rarely utters a sound unless someone fools around the vehicle after all have retired for the night. Obviously, dogs enjoy vacations too.

Kings Canyon Park Offers Plenty Of Outdoor Freedom

Born free? At any rate you'll feel free as the winddows at Kings Canyon National Park.

Nature really outdid herself at Kings Canyon in Fresno County, transforming an area unfit for man or beast into an area drawing flocks of hikers and campers. She scooped out steep canyons. She created high mountain meadows.

You'll feel free as the trees grow anywhere in the park. But when you first enter the canyon, the majesty of giant sequoias holds you captive. Your mind can't seem to wander away from them.

Equally engrossing, an array of picturesque mountains takes your breath away, with some of the peaks rising to 14,000 feet. And among the peaks are those sparkling mountain lakes and tumbling mountain streams of Kings Canyon.

You'll feel free as the river flows near the park's entrance. Stop by these lovely silver cascades of Kings River. And if you've a mind to, plunge in and take a refreshing dip. Swimmers just love these waters. So do fishermen. Kings River hosts an abundant supply of large trout.

If you're a camper at heart, the spacious Cedar Grove campgrounds in the vicinity of Kings River certainly won't disappoint you. Here man gave the modern touch in the accommodations that suit each individual's taste, from open grounds to cabins.

See the rest of the park on foot or on horseback. Numerous riding and hiking trails wind upward and upward into the High Sierra. Along the way, a real treat might be in store for you. Bear, deer, mountain lions, and other wildlife frequently roam the desolate areas.

Jumping-off place for pack trips and hikes into the High Sierra is Cedar Canyon. Rugged trail pounders risk getting calluses by venturing along the Copper Creek or Granite Pass trails, carrying about 35 pounds of supplies on their backs.

Gateway to the High Sierra wilderness is General Grant Grove. Before the 1940 creation of Kings Canyon National Park, this grove made up the former General Grant National Park plus the Redwood Mountain area. Today tourists rate it among the most scenic wilderness areas.

Want to be free? Then from Fresno take Highway 180 east for about 90 miles until you reach Kings Canyon National Park.

The Safe Way To Tow A Trailer

The vacation season, with its accompaniment of cars towing trailers, is upon us. And with it comes the threat of trailer "whipping," a hazardous series of hard-to-control events that can virtually throw a car and its passengers off the road.

The safe way to control the threat is to make sure, before you start out, that you've done everything you can to keep an emergency from developing.

Two precautions are especially critical:

1. Make sure the total trailer weight isn't more than half the weight of the towing car, and
2. Make sure the trailer tires are kept properly inflated.

Whipping is when the trailer steers violently from side to side and jerks at the car. The fishtailing motion comes from the normal lateral vibration of the car in conjunction with an overtaking force on the car from the trailer.

As the car slows down the trailer tries to push it. The combination tends to jackknife a bit to one side of the other and the car tires and suspension system 'stretch' slightly toward that side. As they rebound, the partial jackknife begins in the other direction.

Depending on the car's natural lateral frequency, its weight, and the trailer weight, there will be some specific speed for the combination at which resonance is most likely. And as the car slows through that critical speed range, the side-to-side motions become more and more violent and can soon throw a car totally out of control.

Without separate trailer brakes, the car's brakes hold the only solution. But they must be used carefully and well. Slow down sharply to get through that critical speed range as quickly as possible. But don't lock up the brakes under any circumstances. You'll lose all steering control and the whipping trailer will mean disaster.

To prevent whipping in the first place, it's easy and important to keep tires well inflated. For the car, cold pressures of up to 32 pounds aren't too high. One common size of trailer tires needs up to 45 pounds of air, and boat-trailer sizes take as much as 65 pounds or even more.

Boat trailers themselves pose a special problem. While they're often light enough to be hauled safely, vacationers may find the inside of the boat offers appealing space for lots of extra cargo — and load it far beyond the safe limit.

Keeping the trailer weight below half that of the car and insuring that there's no unnecessary slack in the hitch linkage are major measures against whipping. A separate brake system for the trailer is similarly helpful.

For Children

When you travel with youngsters, it's wise to take along food and beverages from home. Use a cooler and a beverage jug, for children will be happier eating food they're used to.

What To Call The Fixed Reel

The fantastic but certainly justified popularity today of fixed-spool reels has caused confusion as to what they should be called. There are open-face reels and closed-face reels; and ones that mount above rod handles and ones that mount below.

The open-face reel, mounting under the rod, is a spinning reel. The closed-face reel, having a nose-cone and a push-button, is a spin-cast reel — and while most are mounted on top of the rod some are mounted below.

So you spin with open-face reels, but you spin-cast with closed-face reels.

Tips On Taking Dog On Trip

Take your dog on a recreation vehicle vacation? Why not? Steinbeck did it. If you would travel with your own "Charlie," or Fido, or Rex, here are a few pointers that may help to make yours and his trip more enjoyable.

Plan to stay in privately operated recreation vehicle parks and campgrounds, or else check to be sure that public facilities in a particular state will accept your dog. Many will not. Most require that your dog be kept on leash at all times. In any case your dog should be kept under control and never allowed to run at large.

Make sure that your dog's rabies immunization is up to date. Immunization booster shots are required on an annual basis in some states and in Canada. It is best to comply with this minimum to be safe if you plan to cross state lines or international borders. Be sure to carry the dog's immunization certificate with you. Merely displaying the "rabies tag" on his collar is not enough.

Designate a place for your dog in your motor home or travel trailer that he can "call his own." Put his bed there, if he is used to this comfort. Your pet will feel much more secure and you will be more comfortable when you tell him to go to bed and he knows where to go.

Often a spot under a dinette table is a suitable one. One owner of a 22-foot motor home added a child's expandable safety gate across the back bedroom area, put the dog's bed under the expanded divan. Dog stays in his place and is happy. His folks are happier too.

Don't forget, your dog needs rest stops too. Whenever you stop for fuel, or in a rest area, take your dog for a walk. Not around the service station or rest area landscaping, please, but on the designated dog walks or a nearby vacant lot; not around expensive shrubbery.

Don't leave your dog tethered and unattended in camp; stake him out only when you are nearby. A retractable tether with ground stake is a valuable pet accessory that costs only a few dollars. It allows the pet a bit of freedom, yet reduces the inconvenience of his becmoing entangled in vehicle wheels or nearby trees.

If your dog is a nervous type when traveling, your veterinarian may recommend a mild tranquilizer. Use such medication sparingly.

The motion sickness drug Dramamine ofter works well as a mild tranquilizer and nausea remedy. Your veterinarian can tell you the proper dose for your dog, according to body weight.

To maintain your dog's health and well-being, make every attempt to feed him and walk him at his regular "home" times. Even if you decide to push on for that last two or three hours of driving to your destination, take time to feed Fido when his mealtime comes. He will be happier and so will you.

Keep your dog on his regular diet. A change of food and eating habits is much harder on your pet than it is on you. If you want to try new or different pet foods on your dog, do it at home and let him decide which one he prefers for eating on the road.

Provide drinking water for your dog at all times. A straight sided mixing bowl is ideal for this purpose.

If yours is a big working dog: setter, pointer, Labrador or similar, you'll find he tracks a lot of mud into your "house" after a day afield. No problem. Keep a vegetable brush handy near the vehicle door. A little warm water, a few strokes with the brush on the soles of his feet, a quick wipe with a paper towel or two and your pup is presentable in any company.

Never leave your dog alone in your vehicle unless some ventilation is provided. Electric current may fail and allow inside temperatures to soar in even a well-insulated vehicle. There is always the possibility of gas leaks which could have dire results if some fresh air is not allowed to enter the vehicle.

In summer, or in warm winter climates, protect your dog against insect pests: fleas, ticks, mites, etc. Your veterinarian may recommend a dusting powder or one of the newer pest collars. Flea and tick pills are also available and are said to be very effective.

Your house pet type will be a lot more contented if you take along one or two of his favorite toys. A nylon bone, a ball or a squeaky rabbit may be great for calming canines in unaccustomed surroundings.

Most dogs take enthusiastically to recreation vehicle travel after the first or second trip. One Doxie has added the word "camping" to his vocabulary. Just say the word and he is ready to go. Once out of the house he makes straight for the big rig, yapping for the family to hurry it up and get the show on the road. He knows he will get a lot more attention from his people when all are on vacation, relaxed and enjoying a trip together.

Normally a rather loud-mouthed hound, this daschshund leaves many of his guarding responsibilities at home. He rarely utters a sound unless someone fools around the vehicle after all have retired for the night. Obviously, dogs enjoy vacations too.

Kings Canyon Park Offers Plenty Of Outdoor Freedom

Born free? At any rate you'll feel free as the winddows at Kings Canyon National Park.

Nature really outdid herself at Kings Canyon in Fresno County, transforming an area unfit for man or beast into an area drawing flocks of hikers and campers. She scooped out steep canyons. She created high mountain meadows.

You'll feel free as the trees grow anywhere in the park. But when you first enter the canyon, the majesty of giant sequoias holds you captive. Your mind can't seem to wander away from them.

Equally engrossing, an array of picturesque mountains takes your breath away, with some of the peaks rising to 14,000 feet. And among the peaks are those sparkling mountain lakes and tumbling mountain streams of Kings Canyon.

You'll feel free as the river flows near the park's entrance. Stop by these lovely silver cascades of Kings River. And if you've a mind to, plunge in and take a refreshing dip. Swimmers just love these waters. So do fishermen. Kings River hosts an abundant supply of large trout.

BONAIR II

LIGHTWEIGHT BOATING — This model, complete with seats, wooden transom and windshield is typical of the remarkable inflatable boats on the waterways today. This is a case of instant boating. This sport has long been popular in Europe.

Rough It With Mink Sleeping Bag

Long before the American camping craze began, the great outdoors belonged to that hardy minority willing to endure the hardships which go hand in hand with the rewards of a camping holiday. Comforts were to be shunned at any cost, under penalty of disgrace to those who refused to "rough it" all the way.

That kind of camping might have been great for Tarzan or Nanook of the North, but for the majority of Americans it was just plain uninviting — for many a "tenderfoot" it was much too real.

So American ingenuity went to work on a transformation of camping. As a result, now even the little lady of the house — traditionally camping's loudest critic — can be almost as comfortable in Yellowstone National Park as in a luxury hotel in New York City.

For the large family planning a trip, there's a mobile unit that sleeps eight and can be constructed with just a few turns of a crank. It can contain, depending on what you can afford to pay, electrical outlets, a daybed and a self-storing screen door.

But if you'd prefer to rough it modern, there's a mink-lined sleeping bag for Mother. And for Dad, there's a metal match that strikes against almost any rough surface.

Be sure to take an adequate supply of essentials. Start with a can of insect repellent and ointments for burns and scratches. And bandages, iodine and, just in case, a snakebite antidote.

Hot Air Is Latest Rage In The Pleasure Boating Field

Those salty seagoing yarns aside, hot air is the latest rage in pleasure boating.

This air, used to inflate nonrigid boats that are at most distant cousins of the famous life rafts of World War II, provides "instant boating" that has added new convenience and fun to millions of recreation-minded citizens.

Inflatable boats (never call them "rafts," experts caution) have been long popular in Europe. There they are used for everything from cruising to water skiing, from racing to hauling cargo.

European inflatable manufacturers (most of them French) have cast their collective eye on the tremendous North American recreational market. Such brand names as Zodiac, Lidair and Avon are now becoming commonplace on our waterways.

Today's "rubber" boat is no longer made of rubber, but rather of hard wearing synthetics capable of withstanding the unique stresses and strains dished out to the typical pleasure craft.

In size, they vary from one-man rowboats to the 20-man carriers favored by armed forces. Most popular models range from five to about 12 feet, and carry up to three people.

All inflatable boats get their go-power from outboard motors. Most take the smaller engines (25 horsepower and less), although the larger models, often with a windshield and remote steering controls as standard equipment, can accommodate outboards up to 85 h.p.

Great advantage of the inflatables (beside their low maintenance costs) is their compactness. Most of these hulls weigh from 20 to 100 pounds, and when deflated fold into small carrying cases not much larger than a typical suitcase.

Radio Needs Little Care

You can dry your transister radio out and get tip-top performance if you use a little care and a few simple steps recommended by radio engineers.

First, don't turn the receiver on! Take out the batteries and quickly sponge out as much water as possible. Rinse out any salt water with fresh clean water to guard against oxidation of the electronic components. A sponge or towel will help get out excess water.

Now fan the radio and place it in a warm place or in the open sunlight where a light breeze might blow, just until it's dry. Watch out for intense heat which can cause damage to the case or components.

When all the battery contacts are clean, return the batteries to the radio, snap it shut and turn the set on!

How To Enjoy Indoor Picnic

Forget the fear of the weatherman spoiling your picnic. Here's a picnic for indoors or outdoors: picnic ham steak as the main course, with country style peach pie for dessert.

Counting one thick slice of boneless, ready-to-eat ham (about ½ or ¾ inch thick) and about ½ cup crushed potato chips for each serving, spread ham slices lightly with mustard, then sprinkle generously with crushed potato chips.

Wrap each ham steak in a double thickness of heavy foil; seal tightly with double folds. Refrigerate until ready to grill. At picnic time, heat wrapped ham steaks on grill until steam begins to escape, about 15 or 20 minutes. Open wrap before serving. Serve with additional potato chips and pickles.

'Highway Hypnosis' Is A Major Worry

Summertime, and the driving isn't so easy.

Like most everyone, you're probably counting on covering more territory this summer, on cutting travel time by using superhighways. Sad to say, these newfangled highways can make motorists victims of certain diseases, those ruthless, devious, and catastrophic diseases that boost our traffic death toll.

"Highway hypnosis" falls in this category, bringing trouble to many motorists. Superhighway engineers plan much to break the monotony of long-distance driving, building gentle curves, posting markers to stimulate the eye. Still, the humming of tires and the purring of the motor play with a motorist's state of mind, close it to quick emergency thinking, open it to "highway hypnosis."

Keep your mind active, the main way to fight this disease and to cure it as well. Do so by turning the radio to lively music that defies anyone to become drowsy. Some simple games allowing clear concentration on driving, perhaps counting cars with the current fad of daisies pasted on their bodies, should prod your alertness. Never fix your eyes on the road.

Another disease, "velocitis," alarms drivers on superhighways, arises from the fact that continual high-speed driving dulls one's judgment of how fast one's car is really going. Should a driver suffer from "velocitis," he may be doomed to smashing into another car's tail end or to rolling over on a soft shoulder.

Don't you be doomed. Take those preventive measures of glancing frequently at the speedometer and varying your speed occasionally. Reduce that speed gradually, too, for a stop or turn. Whatever you do, don't think you're too big or too strong for taking periodic rest halts along the way.

On long trips, our standard rules of the road, including passing with care, no jumping of lanes, and following at a safe distance, take the strain out of your shift behind the wheel. Summertime, and the driving on superhighways can be easier, the diseases nil. But you must help yourself.

Wash And Ware

Best wash and wear results, at home and when using coin-operated machines during your travels, come from following instructions. Wash whites in hot water, colored things in warm water. If you prefer, take along your favorite detergent.

Next Time Try A Leisurely Picnic

Perhaps you would like a sandwich-and-fruit menu. Put the children in charge. They'll enjoy packing th breat container. Try raisin, pumpernickel, whole wheat, rye or French bread to give cold cuts a lift. Lettuce, sliced tomatoes and relishes, can go along, too, in separate containers.

This air, used to inflate non-rigid boats that are at most distant cousins of the famous life rafts of World War II, provides "instant boating" that has added new convenience and fun to millions of recreation-minded citizens.

Inflatable boats (never call them "rafts," experts caution) have been long popular in Europe. There they are used for everything from cruising to water skiing, from racing to hauling cargo.

European inflatable manufacturers (most of them French) have cast their collective eye on the tremendous North American recreational market. Such brand names as Zodiac, Lidair and Avon are now becoming commonplace on our waterways.

Today's "rubber" boat is no longer made of rubber, but rather of hard wearing synthetics capable of withstanding the unique stresses and strains dished out to the typical pleasure craft.

In size, they vary from one-man rowboats to the 20-man carriers favored by armed forces. Most popular models range from five to about 12 feet, and carry up to three people.

All inflatable boats get their go-power from outboard motors. Most take the smaller engines (25 horsepower and less), although the larger models, often with a windshield and remote steering controls as standard equipment, can accommodate outboards up to 85 h.p.

Great advantage of the inflatables (beside their low maintenance costs) is their compactness. Most of these hulls weigh from 20 to 100 pounds, and when deflated fold into small carrying cases not much larger than a typical suitcase.

Radio Needs Little Care

You can dry your transister radio out and get tip-top performance if you use a little care and a few simple steps recommended by radio engineers.

First, don't turn the receiver on! Take out the batteries and quickly sponge out as much water as possible. Rinse out any salt water with fresh clean water to guard against oxidation of the electronic components. A sponge or towel will help get out excess water.

Now fan the radio and place it in a warm place or in the open sunlight where a light breeze might blow, just until it's dry. Watch out for intense heat which can cause damage to the case or components.

When all the battery contacts are clean, return the batteries to the radio, snap it shut and turn the set on!

How To Enjoy Indoor Picnic

Forget the fear of the weatherman spoiling your picnic. Here's a picnic for indoors or outdoors: picnic ham steak as the main course, with country style peach pie for dessert.

Counting one thick slice of boneless, ready-to-eat ham (about ½ or ¾ inch thick) and about ½ cup crushed potato chips for each serving, spread ham slices lightly with mustard, then sprinkle generously with crushed potato chips.

Wrap each ham steak in a double thickness of heavy foil; seal tightly with double folds. Refrigerate until ready to grill. At picnic time, heat wrapped ham steaks on grill until steam begins to escape, about 15 or 20 minutes. Open wrap before serving. Serve with additional potato chips and pickles.

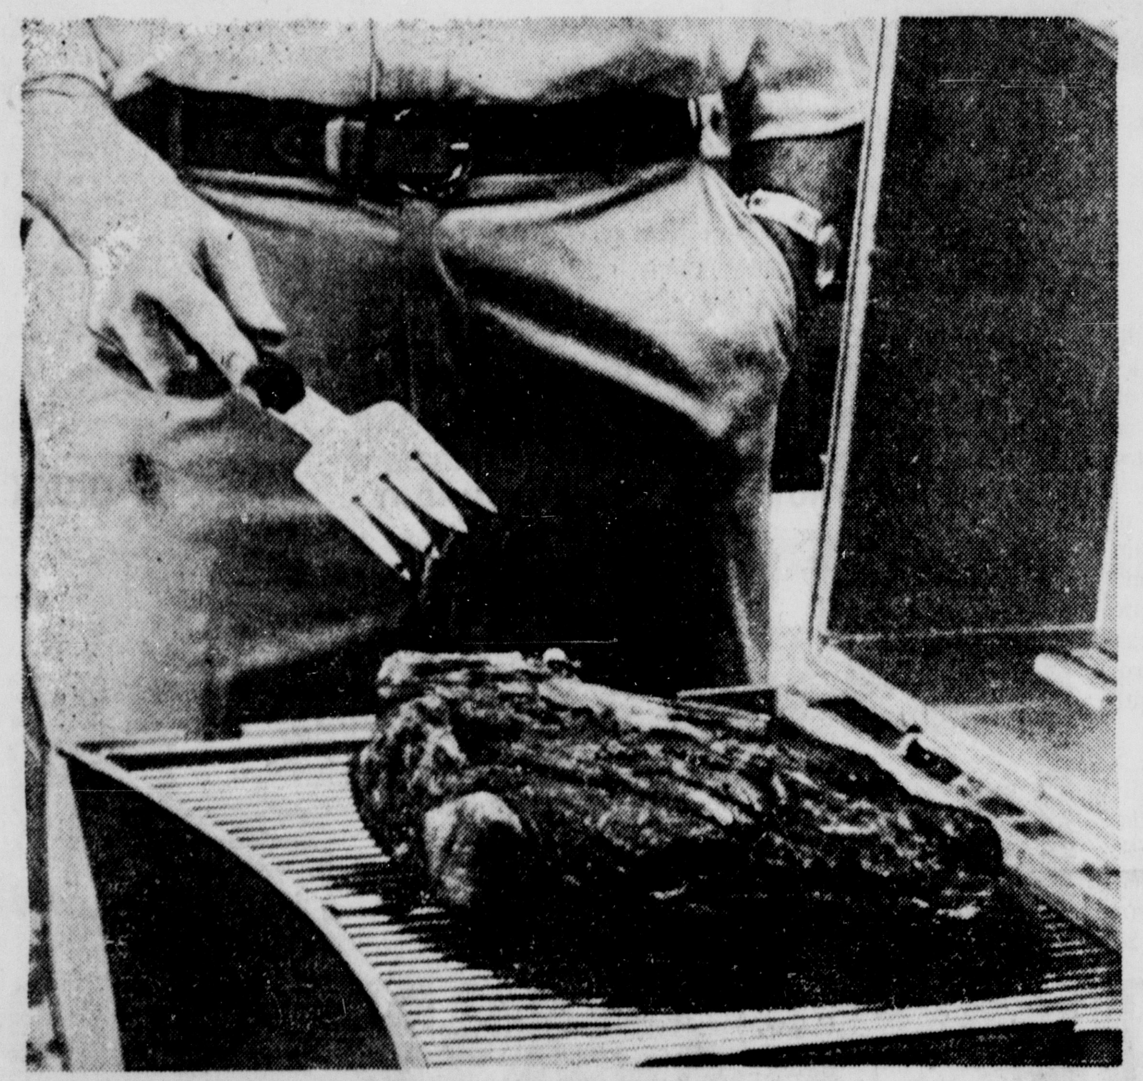
FLOATING AIR STATION

This air buoy follows swimmers as they move throughout the underwater world. Engine runs more than 40 minutes on each tank of gas and oil, eliminating back tanks requiring periodic refills.



MINIMUM BARBECUE FUSS — A juicy steak can be broiled outdoors without charcoal problems. New gas-fired grills with ceramic briquets give even heat and are easily cleaned.

Changes At Last In Outdoor Cooking

Cooking outdoors has been an American tradition for the past 10,000 years.

The first All-American Cookout was held by the Indians who migrated to this continent more than 100 centuries ago.

The reason for cookouts 10,000 years ago was simple. There just wasn't any indoors.

Today, however, as the nation strives to preserve its natural resources from being overwhelmed, cookouts become an ever more popular way for people to enjoy the great outdoors.

Millions of modern-day Americans are participating in the pleasure of eating outdoors (and more are being added to these numbers each year) in their own backyards as well as on picnics and while on fishing, hunting and camping trips.

What modern home today is complete without provision for a cookout on the patio?

Although outdoor cooking has been with us for centuries, methods changed little from those used in primitive times, until recent years.

Where the Indians used hardwood fire, so too have many latter day outdoor chefs. The first outdoor chefs used flint to ifnite their fires. Until recently the only improvement over the flint was a match.

All of this has changed with the introduction of the gas-fired outdoor grill — a model that can be permanently set up in the backyard, or one that can be taken afield.

The one in the backyard may be hooked up to the gas line that serves the home. The model that goes afield is operated by natural L-P gas fed directly to its burners.

Many gas grills also have pilot lights similar to those on modern kitchen ranges for instant ignition of fire.

In addition to these modern convenience improvements, gas grills have the ability to begin cooking after a warm-up period of less than five minutes.

The primary reason is even infra-red radiant heat. The heat is produced when ceramic or firebrick briquets are heated by the gas fire producing an intense, even heat to provide the infra-red waves that create the searing action associated with grilled meat, fowl and fish.

Now's Time To Clean Up Family Pool

With warm weather not too far off, swimming pool owners should do a bit of advance thinking about assuring that the coming season be one of all enjoyment in the pool with no maintenance problems. Few swimming pool owners, however, know as much as they should about pool maintenance. Yet this knowledge can save time and money, and increase fun and safety.

Probably the most important single aspect of swimming pool maintenance is proper filtration. That crystal clear, tantalizingly cool-looking water most people picture when they think about pools simply can't be achieved any other way. Fortunately, today's filters operate with ease and economy — if you know a bit about maintenance.

Two basic types of pool filters are used: Sand and diatomite. Both are effective, though the diatomite units are more compact, offering greater efficiency in less space and more operational flexibility.

Also, during World War II, the U.S. Army learned that diatomite filters remove many undesirable organisms from water. Diatomite filters may be portable or installed permanently. Proper maintenance of either type revolves around three fundamentals: Care of filter and elements, proper use of filter aids and chemicals, regular, thorough cleaning.

Diatomite filters must be precoated with a filter aid to prevent clogging of the filter elements. This is done by calculating a slurry, or mixture of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a coating about one 16th of an inch thick on the filter screens. The slurry should contain one 10th of one pound of diatomite for each square foot of filter area.

During the filtration cycle, which lasts from three to ten days, it is desirable that diatomite be regularly added to prevent slimes and other dirt from clogging the precoat layer. This can be done by placing a supply of diatomite into the filter's body feed apparatus, which will "dole it out" as needed during the filtration cycle.

The third step, cleaning the filter can be done by backwashing, sluicing, or spraying.

Backwashing is the most common method for cleaning the pressure type of diatomite filter. In backwashing, water is pumped in a reverse direction through the elements and discharged to waste.

Sluicing or spraying is the usual method for cleaning vacuum-type diatomite filters. The filter is drained and the caked material is then washed off the elements by spraying or sluicing with a hose and nozzle.

Proper precoating, cleaning, and chlorination will prevent short filter cycles and high filter pressures caused by the clogging of the element. When the elements do get plugged up, they are cleaned in one of two ways: by hand-scrubbing or by pumping a suitable solution into the filter and soaking the elements.

TAKE A PICTURE OF IT — Memories as fresh as the fish caught on that last camping trip are preserved if a camera is along to record the details. In the past 10 years or so the camera has become one of the most important items to pack for the family vacation whether it be to the mountains or to a big city for a day's outing.

Take Camera Along To Record That Fish

They didn't have to. A century later a producer showed up to dramatize their deeds for television.

While your camping trip may also go down in history, there's no need to wait 100 years to relive it.Take a camera.

Remembering your trip without pictures is like sight-seeing in a fog — blurry at best. What better vacation souvenir than a photo story of your trip? When camping in a national park or in your own discovered wilderness, remember the advice of the National Park Service — "take nothing but pictures, leave nothing but footprints."

Picture-taking also enables the family to enjoy the trip more — not just its memories. It is a creative outlet for the whole family. With automatic cameras requiring no more skill than a click of the shutter, even children can capture the beauty of the moment — a squirrel and his acorn, a flower in bloom, or dad landing a prize catch from the lake.

The best way to bring your camping trip back on film is to pick high spots of your trip and integrate them into a picture-story of fun in the Great Outdoors.

Other shots in your picture story could be the family setting up camp, children doing the chores, bathing in the stream, and day-to-day activities like hiking through the park, swimming, boating, etc.

One last bid of advice: Take as many pictures as you like, and then add to the number. The picture you don't take will never be seen again. When shooting an especially interesting scene, take at least three shots — one from a distance, another from middle distance and a third from up close, as close as you can get.

Keep shooting in any weather. There are going to be days when the sun doesn't shine, but don't let this stop you. Picture-taking opportunities seldom repeat themselves. Take that picture even on a dismal day.

Messrs. Crockett and Boone couldn't take cameras along to record their adventures. You can. Do!

Don't Neglect Barbecue Grill

Don't neglect your barbecue grill. Grease, left on will harden. Scrub it with a solution of three tablespoons of sal soda concentrated per bucket of hot water. Accumulations of grease can be removed if you use sal soda dry as a scourer, applying it with a damp brush. Then rinse.

Make Cubes Early

If you're planning a patio party and want to hedge against running out of ice, make cubes ahead of time and put them in plastic bags in your freezer.

PLINKING CAN BE FUN — An air rifle and Dad's steadying hand will help Junior score a hit. Around camp, plinking can be fun for the entire family. For those not in the know — plinking is an informal brand of marksmanship that provides as much fun from chosing unusual targets as hitting them.

The Patio Deserves Your Best

Life goes on indoors in winter and, in fact, a special area inside each home is traditionally set aside for its pursuit: the living room.

In spring and summer, however, living becomes more of an outdoor endeavor, logically practiced in an "outdoor living room," better known as a patio.

Just as in the foul-weather family gathering place inside, the patio deserves decorative attention. It should have a motif all its own that, at the same time, fits in with the over-all decor of your home.

However, unlike its indoor counterpart, an "outdoor living room" is subject to the constant and gruelling punishment of the elements, making the choice of durable, weather - resistant surfacing materials a must.

Unglazed ceramic mosaic tiles and quarry tiles are among the most popular patio surfacings. Ceramic mosaics and quarries are available in such a wide variety of designing colors, sizes, shapes, textures and designs that an endless number of imaginative decors is possible. At the same time, these rugged fired clay surfacing materials are completely weather-resistant. Their colors won't fade under the ice of winter or the heat of summer.

Check Clothing

If your camping clothes and sleeping bags were put away clean but need freshening before you hit the road this year, fluff them up in your gas dryer at medium heat. This will help rid them of wrinkles and any musty smell from winter storage.

Plinking Is An Outdoor Favorite

Despite an endless variety of activities to occupy the camper, there is one that, once discovered, always proves a favorite.

Plinking — that informal brand of marksmanship that provides almost as much fun from choosing unusual targets as hitting them — is as natural a part of camping as sleeping bags and mess kits.

Few veteran campers, especially those who venture from the beaten paths, consider their gear complete without some sort of "plinking" gun — usually a 22-caliber rifle — and several boxes of target ammo.

Yet, plinking, far from being a pastime reserved for the wilderness, is also enjoyed by countless family campers. Even at community campsites, where the use of a 22-caliber rimfire rifle would be inadvisable, an air gun will serve as an excellent substitute for the plinker.

Single-shot types are best for beginners and youngsters. Practically noiseless and virtually recoil-free, these pellet-firing air guns can be used for close-range plinking around camp, without disturbing neighboring campers.

Anything from tin cans and paper cups to bottle caps and pine cones will suffice for targets. With a little inventiveness, a fascinating array of progressively smaller targets, set up in gallery fashion, can challenge the skill of every plinker in the family for hours on end.

Whether plinking around camp with a 22-caliber or an air rifle, a few simple rules should be followed: Always select a suitable backstop, such as a hill or earthen bank, to set targets against; never shoot over water, and never use bottles, jars or anything made of glass for targets.

Plinking will fill those spare hours in camp with loads of relaxing and satisfying fun. Once you try it, you'll make plinking a must for all your camping trips.

Gas Grill Cooking

The average family cooking outdoors on a gas grill will use one or two 20-pound cylinders of LP gas during the summer.

Protect Home If You Travel

"There's no place like home." If you want to avoid the shock of returning to a burglarized home or one that has gone up in smoke, follow these simple tips:

Before you leave on your extended motoring trip, inform the police where you can be reached in an emergency and how long you'll be gone. Inform a friendly neighbor, too, and ask him to do you the favor of watching for prowlers loitering suspiciously near your home.

Do stop regular deliveries, such as milk and newspapers. Have the post office hold or redirect your mail. And don't forget to arrange for regular lawn mowing, either.

Now for the shutting off of gas and water at the main valves, of electricity at the master switch, unless you plan to keep the refrigerator running.

Lock all windows and doors, too, but don't lower shades. Make sure that what you return to will really be "home, sweet home."

Common Sense

A little common sense and courtesy go a long way toward keeping farmlands free of posted signs; hunt like the gentleman every sportsman should be.

Some Undisturbed Beauty Is Still Left Within California

Wherever countless tourists go, they throw their hands up in despair and complain of how man has spoiled the former beauty around him, has replaced lovely trees and other scenic sights with those modern structures of steel.

In spite of commercialism sinking in on many once charming sites, there's still some undisturbed beauty left in California. Countless tourists just don't know where to do.

Man does visit the wilderness areas. But man never stays.

Whenever you have a hankering for unspoiled nature at her best and time on your hands as well, go to one of the 16 wilderness areas located in California's 17 national forests, areas that have been preserved for your enjoyment.

Like most people, you probably desire challenge. Without a doubt, the wilderness challenges your outdoor skills to the fullest.

There are no roads in the state's wilderness areas, making motorized travel out of the question. So better look elsewhere in the national forests for taking those leisurely sightseeing trips by car. Some designated sections even have auto tours.

To get around in the wilderness areas, however, you have to use your own two legs or the four legs of a horse. If you prefer the latter, you can rent a horse at any of the 50 pack stations in the national forests.

Either way, on foot or horseback, you'll have the time of your life in these last frontiers of America. All the solitude you want can be found there, not to mention the enlightening experience.

Choose the Minarets Wilderness on the boundary of the Inyo and Sierra national Forests, for example, and it's truly a sight to behold, what with its majestic trees swaying ever so gently and its picturesque mountains standing ever so proudly. Batter Peak lies to the right of it and Mount Ritter to the left.

As if that's not enough territory for you to cover, over half a million other acres of national forest land have come into consideration as possible additions to the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Man does visit the wilderness areas. But man never stays.

PLINKING CAN BE FUN — An air rifle and Dad's steadying hand will help Junior score a hit. Around camp, plinking can be fun for the entire family. For those not in the know — plinking is an informal brand of marksmanship that provides as much fun from chosing unusual targets as hitting them.

Plinking Is An Outdoor Favorite

Despite an endless variety of activities to occupy the camper, there is one that, once discovered, always proves a favorite.

Plinking — that informal brand of marksmanship that provides almost as much fun from choosing unusual targets as hitting them — is as natural a part of camping as sleeping bags and mess kits.

Few veteran campers, especially those who venture from the beaten paths, consider their gear complete without some sort of "plinking" gun — usually a 22-caliber rifle — and several boxes of target ammo.

Yet, plinking, far from being a pastime reserved for the wilderness, is also enjoyed by countless family campers. Even at community campsites, where the use of a 22-caliber rimfire rifle would be inadvisable, an air gun will serve as an excellent substitute for the plinker.

Single-shot types are best for beginners and youngsters. Practically noiseless and virtually recoil-free, these pellet-firing air guns can be used for close-range plinking around camp, without disturbing neighboring campers.

Anything from tin cans and paper cups to bottle caps and pine cones will suffice for targets. With a little inventiveness, a fascinating array of progressively smaller targets, set up in gallery fashion, can challenge the skill of every plinker in the family for hours on end.

Whether plinking around camp with a 22-caliber or an air rifle, a few simple rules should be followed: Always select a suitable backstop, such as a hill or earthen bank, to set targets against; never shoot over water, and never use bottles, jars or anything made of glass for targets.

Plinking will fill those spare hours in camp with loads of relaxing and satisfying fun. Once you try it, you'll make plinking a must for all your camping trips.

The Patio Deserves Your Best

Life goes on indoors in winter and, in fact, a special area inside each home is traditionally set aside for its pursuit: the living room.

In spring and summer, however, living becomes more of an outdoor endeavor, logically practiced in an "outdoor living room," better known as a patio.

Just as in the foul-weather family gathering place inside, the patio deserves decorative attention. It should have a motif all its own that, at the same time, fits in with the over-all decor of your home.

However, unlike its indoor counterpart, an "outdoor living room" is subject to the constant and gruelling punishment of the elements, making the choice of durable, weather - resistant surfacing materials a must.

Unglazed ceramic mosaic tiles and quarry tiles are among the most popular patio surfacings. Ceramic mosaics and quarries are available in such a wide variety of designing colors, sizes, shapes, textures and designs that an endless number of imaginative decors is possible. At the same time, these rugged fired clay surfacing materials are completely weather-resistant. Their colors won't fade under the ice of winter or the heat of summer.

Check Clothing

If your camping clothes and sleeping bags were put away clean but need freshening before you hit the road this year, fluff them up in your gas dryer at medium heat. This will help rid them of wrinkles and any musty smell from winter storage.

Gas Grill Cooking

The average family cooking outdoors on a gas grill will use one or two 20-pound cylinders of LP gas during the summer.

Protect Home If You Travel

"There's no place like home." If you want to avoid the shock of returning to a burglarized home or one that has gone up in smoke, follow these simple tips:

Before you leave on your extended motoring trip, inform the police where you can be reached in an emergency and how long you'll be gone. Inform a friendly neighbor, too, and ask him to do you the favor of watching for prowlers loitering suspiciously near your home.

Do stop regular deliveries, such as milk and newspapers. Have the post office hold or redirect your mail. And don't forget to arrange for regular lawn mowing, either.

Now for the shutting off of gas and water at the main valves, of electricity at the master switch, unless you plan to keep the refrigerator running.

Lock all windows and doors, too, but don't lower shades. Make sure that what you return to will really be "home, sweet home."

Common Sense

A little common sense and courtesy go a long way toward keeping farmlands free of posted signs; hunt like the gentleman every sportsman should be.

Some Undisturbed Beauty Is Still Left Within California

Wherever countless tourists go, they throw their hands up in despair and complain of how man has spoiled the former beauty around him, has replaced lovely trees and other scenic sights with those modern structures of steel.

In spite of commercialism sinking in on many once charming sites, there's still some undisturbed beauty left in California. Countless tourists just don't know where to do.

Whenever you have a hankering for unspoiled nature at her best and time on your hands as well, go to one of the 16 wilderness areas located in California's 17 national forests, areas that have been preserved for your enjoyment.

Like most people, you probably desire challenge. Without a doubt, the wilderness challenges your outdoor skills to the fullest.

There are no roads in the state's wilderness areas, making motorized travel out of the question. So better look elsewhere in the national forests for taking those leisurely sightseeing trips by car. Some designated sections even have auto tours.

To get around in the wilderness areas, however, you have to use your own two legs or the four legs of a horse. If you prefer the latter, you can rent a horse at any of the 50 pack stations in the national forests.

Either way, on foot or horseback, you'll have the time of your life in these last frontiers of America. All the solitude you want can be found there, not to mention the enlightening experience.

Choose the Minarets Wilderness on the boundary of the Inyo and Sierra national Forests, for example, and it's truly a sight to behold, what with its majestic trees swaying ever so gently and its picturesque mountains standing ever so proudly. Batter Peak lies to the right of it and Mount Ritter to the left.

As if that's not enough territory for you to cover, over half a million other acres of national forest land have come into consideration as possible additions to the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Man does visit the wilderness areas. But man never stays.

FRESH AND COOL

This crisp, white single-breasted knit blazer has all the latest fashion features but is ready for the out-of-doors. For a casual look it's worn with an open-neck shirt and cotton-polyester pants.

Mendocino Offers An Ideal Vacation

On a northern California promontory where Big River meets the Pacific Ocean at State Highway 1, stands the town of Mendocino with its many sharp contrasts to the modern structures of the big city.

With old New England-type homes complete with gables and dormer windows, Mendocino displays little of what you can call modern, but bears a striking resemblance to Atlantic seaboard towns.

Of particular interest here are the many fine examples of Victorian architecture, especially the well-preserved MacCallum House.

Note also the quaint places of worship, such as one of the oldest Protestant churches still in continuous use in California.

No matter if it's your first or tenth visit to Mendocino, you'll enjoy its scenic vistas, its rugged coastline. Most of all, however, you'll be impressed by its weathered homes that provide such a sharp contrast to modern big-city structures.

During 1969 there were 91,843 wildfires in California with 80,753 of them caused by man and his activities.

Youngsters Lure Their Parents Into Outdoors

The combination of outdoor recreation's booming popularity and the urgings of adventurous young sons — and daughters too — are luring more and more "stay-at-home" parents out of the living room and into the woods, along stream banks, and to the shoreline.

And whatever the duration of the trip, whether it be a day's outing, a week-end, or a glorious long vacation, every trip into the great outdoors works up hearty appetites.

This means take along food is required. Almost every meal in the outdoors is either a picnic or a cookout. How best and most conveniently and safely to take the food along — and what foods — is mostly a problem for mom.

Salads and gelatin desserts prepared at home in advance, for example, can be taken out of an ice chest for instant serving.

Pickles, carrot sticks, celery, and olives, add touches of flavor to any outdoor lunch or dinner. The condiments require only a little space in the ice chest.

The weekend woodsman can start the day off with a tasty breakfast of pancakes, bacon, and hot coffee. Dry pancake mix carried from home can be prepared in an instant. Just add eggs, milk, and oil, pour directly into the skillet, and you have a breakfast to get father and son up and away.

For light breakfast eaters, be sure to take along a variety of dry cereals. Add milk and sugar — instant breakfast!

Veteran woodsmen and first-time pioneers agree that an ice chest is a recreation item that is a necessity. Utilizing the ice chest most efficiently involves some interesting techniques.

It's an easy task to simply load the ice chest with a sack or two of ice under or on top of perishables. The food will keep fresh . . .but it can become soggy from melted ice. Pools of water can form in the bottom of the chest creating the task of emptying out first the food, then the chest, cleaning the chest, and then putting everything back together again.

Instead of dumpting loose ice, put in a separate container or use several small containers and place them in different positions. Save yourself the trouble of moving loose ice around until everything fits by keeping the ice in special containers.

The cold air necessary to keep food fresh can be positioned where you want it — without the fuss and bother of shifting melting ice cubes about.

In Dishwasher

Easiest way to clean the grids of your gas grill is in the dishwasher, but don't let them go through the drying cycle. If food particles remain after washing, they will bake on.

Take The TV Set Along This Vacation Trip

You don't have to miss your favorite program, history making news or television specials if you take your TV set on vacation this year.

Television sets today are compact enough to fit into luggage compartments, and keep you in touch whether you are at a lodge, lake cottage or in a trailer-camper.

Most campers are fitted with an outdoor cable that hooks up to outlets in our trailer parks. Marinas also have AC current outlets within reach of a boat's berth.

Save your radio or TV packing box as protection from salt mist and road bumps.

Fish And Photography Make Very Fine Team

Almost everyone remembers the old fisherman's tall tale that goes something like this: when the fisherman up in the north woods was asked about the biggest fish he had ever caught, he said, "Well, we never really weighed the fish — but the picture, alone, weighed six pounds!"

There is no prouder fishing trophy than a good snapshot of the day's catch. Closeups work best (and if you want to fudge a little on the size of the fish you can hold the stringer of fish close to the camera and they'll appear larger).

For Cooking Only

A modern gas range in your camper, trailer or mobile home is a blessing, but remember it's for cooking only. Never use any gas range for heating, whether you're at home or out camping.

Doves In Senate Score A Victory

Cambodia Proposal Defeated

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Antiwar forces seeking to curb future U.S. actions in Cambodia scored a crucial victory in the Senate today.

They turned back an administration-supported amendment by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., to spell out presidential authority to take whatever action he found necessary to protect U.S. forces in Vietnam.

The roll call vote was 52 to 47.

Foes of Byrd's proposal, including Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, charged that it could lead to a second U.S. assault into Cambodia without congressional approval.

PROMPT MOVE

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield moved promptly to seal the victory by offering language to specify that the pending Cooper-Church amendment to restrict U.S. actions in Cambodia after July 1 did nothing to restrict the President's constitutional powers as commander-in-chief.

But Mansfield told the Senate that the President has "unilateral powers" to protect American citizens, including servicemen, "Anywhere in the world." On this basis, he said, the Byrd amendment was not needed.

Mansfield added that the President does not have unilateral power to launch a "continental input of money and men" into one country. He said the Byrd amendment would give Nixon "authorization in advance" for a "broad and indefinite undertaking" wtihout any check by Congress.

BYRD AMENDMENT

The vote on Byrd's amendment came after the West Virginia Democrat was blocked in a last-minute effort to "sweeten" his amendment to attract additional support.

Byrd's proviso would have permitted a new incursion into Cambodia after U.S. troops are withdrawn if Nixon deemed it necessary to protect U.S. forces in South Vietnam or being withdrawn from there.

RULERS URGE PEACE

Battles, Tourist Threat In Jordan

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reports of renewed and heavy fighting in Amman reached Beirut today, contradicting claims by the Jordanian government that the bloody civil strife in the capital had all but ended.

Palestinian guerrilla sources in Beirut said heavy fighting broke out today, with Jordanian army tanks moving against refugee camps, shelling neighboring streets and the camps themselves.

The source said the main target appeared to be the teeming Wahdat camp, where many guerrilla organizations have their headquarters.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser og Egypt called for an immediate cease-fire between warring army troops and Arab guerrillas in Jordan Thursday night.

Speagink in Cairo, Nasser neutrally urged both sides "to stop this plunge into destruction."

Earlier, King Hussein said the situation in his divided nation was "improving rapidly" after three days of fighting. Amman radio said "normal life has returned completely."

"We shall do our utmost to bridge the gap and bury dissension," the king said in another broadcast appealing for peace. "The members of the armed forces and the guerrillas are our sons."

In a broadcast at noon his Interior Ministry urged all Jordanians to return to work, indicating that there was still considerable disruption.

Most communications links with the Jordanian capital were still out but reports reaching Beirut said about 500 persons were killed or wounded in fighting in Zerka Monday and Amman the following two days.

"It is terrifying in Amman at the moment," a traveler said. "All the shops are closed. Here and there you see some bands of youths, aged perhaps 10 to 15, carrying submachine guns and wearing guerrilla outfits."

The travelers also said an army loudspeaker truck that came to Sweilah, near Amman, to announce a truce was fired upon by guerrillas. They said guerrillas controlled all roadblocks inside Amman but the army controlled the roads to the capital.

In the course of the civil strife Wednesday, guerrillas killed a U.S. military attache in front of his wife and two children and held 14 Americans and 18 other foreigners hostage in the Amman Intercontinental Hotel. Two of the Americans, both newsmen, escaped.

Twenty-two foreigners were reported taken hostage Wednesday night at the Philadelphia Hotel in Amman. The new hostages included two West Germans—a journalist and a businessman. The nationalities of the 20 others were not immediately known.

The Palestinian guerrillas holding the hostages threatened today to blow up the Intercontinental and Philadelphia hotels unless the Jordanian army stops shelling refugee camps in and around Amman.

Hussein's broadcast was di-

Bumper Strips In Today's I-J

An orange and black bumper strip which is inserted today in all home-delivered I-J's may win readers daily cash prizes and a chance for a luxury trip for two to Hawaii in the I-J's new LUCKY LICENSE fun game which starts Monday.

Readers may enter simply by placing the bumper strip near the rear license plate.

An I-J roving photographer will be taking pictures in all communities of cars with I-J bumper strips. Winning licenses will be published daily for an 18-day period, Monday through July 4. Each daily winner will receive $15 in cash and automatically qualify for the grand prize drawing for the trip to Hawaii. The license numbers will appear in a special Lucky License format which may be found by turning each day to "Where To Find It", the Table of contents on the I-J front page.

The grand prize winner will fly via Western Airlines and will visit three islands, staying at Sheraton luxury hotels, the Sheraton Kauai, Sheraton Maui and Princess Kaiulani. Bumper strips will also be available at I-J offices in San Rafael, Mill Valley, Novato and Petaluma for those who may have missed the one in today's paper or who may wish extra strips for other cars.

Johnson Has Change Of Heart About Post

Nathaniel Johnson, who resigned last week as president of the Sausalito School District board, announced last night he has decided to keep his board post.

Johnson electrified an audience of 300 persons attending graduation ceremonies at Martin Luther King School when he told them: "I'm not quitting; I rescind my resignation."

The audience applauded and cheered wildly as Johnson explained that "five years ago I made a commitment to this school district and these children and I am not letting anybody turn me around."

The board president who, with trustees C. Gerald Clear and James E. Muldoon, quit the board after the successful June 2 recall of trustees David E. Freedheim and Martha Freebairn-Smith, told the Independent-Journal his change of heart came last weekend.

"I did a lot of thinking," he said, "and I have come to the conclusion that the issue is not just Marin City Sausalito anymore; it is whether integrated schools are going to survive in this Bay Area."

In taking back his seat, Johnson pleaded with all residents of the conflict-ridden district to "unite and lay down their arms and start working for the good of these kids."

Johnson's resignation would have been effective today.

He told the I-J he plans to call a meeting of the district board, which includes newly-elected Trustees Jerry L. Whitcomb and Delta Christ, "soon," but could not specify a date.

The board has not met since May 4, when Freedheim, Clear and Muldoon voted to fire Sidney F. Walton Jr., King principal.

Merchants Suing City On Sandbags

A group of Sausalito businessmen today filed suit in Marin Superior Court asking for a writ of mandate to force the Sausalito City Council to remove sandbags on a two-block portion of Bridgeway.

Thirteen owners and operators of stores on Bridgeway between Anchor and Princess streets claim that the sandbags are a public nuisance and are damaging their business.

They also said that they intrude into the public right-of-way three feet on each side of the street.

The council ordered the bags installed on May 25 for a three-month trial period in an effort to improve "looks and cleanliness."

The sandbags prevent parking on either side of the street.

Merchants who brought the suit were Harold Hobbs, Gene Hiller, Fred Saebel, Frederick S. Mayer, Jon Waycott, Gerald Olson, Joyce M. Curry, Ruby Cullinan, Dorothy Fritter, Richard E. Mackes, Rosemary Russell, Wayne Hauner and Harold Puharich.

They are represented by attorney Gordon C. Wright of San Francisco.

Assembly Votes Check Of Vote-Count Setups

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly voted 55-0 to give the secretary of state authority to review in advance computer vote counting plans of county clerks.

Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades, said the legislation was needed "to prevent the debacle of Fresno" again at the November general election. Computer problems delayed counting of ballots in the June 2 election in Fresno County until late Friday.

Higher Water Rates Loom In Two Areas

Southern and Central Marin residents may be paying 25 per cent more for water by the end of the year if the Marin Municipal Water District board adopts the recommendation of Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger. (Other water district stories, page 23.)

Seeger told the board yesterday that if the district carries out planned improvements during the 1970-71 fiscal year it will result in a $726,484 deficit.

He said the 25 per cent rate increase would bring in an additional $1 million.

The water district's last rate increase was 15 per cent in 1965.

Seeger also asked the board to consider calling five separate bond elections in the next 20 years to finance a $21,533,600 improvement program and the district's $30,378,000 share of the Russian River water plan.

The reason for having five elections instead of one, he said, is that it is impossible to estimate increasing construction costs and interest rates. In addition, staggering the elections over a period of years would allow the district to review its needs depending upon increases in water demand and population.

Seeger suggested the first bond election be held in November to ask for $4 million for the first stage of the Marin aqueduct for the Russian River water plan, a $7.5 million for the improvement program.

Subsequent elections, according to Seeger's proposal, would ask for $15 million for the Sonoma-Marin aqueduct next year; $3.5 million for the second stage of the Marin aqueduct and $3 million for improvements in June, 1974; another $8 million for the third stage of the aqueduct and $4.5 million for improvements in June, 1976, and $6.5 million for improvements sometime after 1985.

The board, which did not discuss the proposals yesterday, will consider them at its next meeting June 30.

Alexander Kerensky, Russ Premier In 1917, Succumbs

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Kerensky, Socialist premier of Russia briefly before Lenin's Bolsheviks took power in 1917, died today. He was 89.

Death came at St. Luke's Hospital.

Kerensky, who headed Russia for 3½ months before losing out to the Bolsheviks, had been hospitalized since April.

He leaves two sons, Oleg, of London, and Gleb, of Southport, both in England.

Nearly blind and ailing in recent years, Kerensky nevertheless cherished a hope that he could return to the Soviet Union and was optimistic that the Russians could eventually "begin to breathe without fear."

But the Soviet government never indicated a desire to have Kerensky back and he made no real effort to return.

Kerensky had lived for a quarter of a century in the upper East Side town house of a friend, Mrs. Kenneth Simpson.

He moved there after the death in Australia in 1944 of his second wife, the former Lidia Therese Tritton, daughter of an Australian industrialist. His first wife, Olga, had divorced him in Paris some years earlier.

Mill Valley Loses Bid To Annex 110 Acres

Mill Valley lost its bid last night to annex the tax-rich Strawberry Town and Country Village Shopping Center by a 3-2 vote of the Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission. (Another commission story, page 10.)

The annexation was opposed by Tiburon, which has plans of its own to annex the area, and three special districts which would lose tax revenue.

There was strong support during a three-hour hearing from property owners in the annexation area, 110 acres east of Highway 101 between Reed Boulevard and Ricardo Road.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. moved for denial saying such action wouldn't be "closing the barn door" and Mill Valley could reapply after working out accommodations with the three special districts.

Arrigoni and Commissioner Roy Farrington Jones voted for denial and Commissioners Louis H. Baar and J. Wayne Womack voted against denial, creating a 2-2 vote. Chairman Hugh G. Marchant then voted for denial, breaking the tie.

Tiburon's application wasn't before the commission last night, but Councilman Branwell D. Fanning said it was in preparation and would include the entire Strawberry area, not merely the shopping center.

Commissioners weighed the financial impact that annexation would have on the Strawberry Recreation District, Richardson Bay Sanitary District and Alto-Richardson Bay Fire District, which serve the shopping center.

Annexation would cut 5 to 6 per cent of the tax base from the sanitary district, 6 to 7 per cent from the fire district and 15 per cent from the recreation district.

Atlantic Reunion Set

OSLO (AP) — Thor Heyerdahl's wife says she is flying to America next week to board a yacht that will meet her husband and his papyrus boat in the Atlantic.

Mrs. Heyerdahl told the newspaper Aftenposten she will leave her home in Italy June 16 and fly via New York to the West Indies. She said she will board the Danish sailing yacht Ring Anderse at Barbados or Antigua.

A Swedish television crew has chartered the yacht to film the last part of Heyerdahl's voyage from Africa to America in the RA II.

Heyerdahl and his seven-man crew left Morocco May 17 and have passed the Cape Verde islands. The reed boat is reported to have averaged 65 miles a day for the last six days, and all aboard are reported in fine shape.

Red Spaceship Silent

BOCHUM, West Germany (AP) — The Bochum observatory said today that it had received no radio signals from the Soviet spaceship Soyuz 9 for 24 hours. But it said the satellite did not appear to be in trouble and that the silence was probably related to experiments being carried out by its two-man crew.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the two cosmonauts had completed their work program for their 10th day of flight, were in good condition and were having a rest.

Want GIs To Stay

BRUSSELS (AP) — Defense ministers from 14 nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met today amid talks of a European cash offer to stave off threatened U.S. troop withdrawals from Europe.

A high-ranking West German source said his government was pressing other European NATO members to make a joint payment to the United States to help defray the cost of keeping 300,000 troops in Europe.

The source indicated that the idea was still in its infant stage, with nothing decided as to what nations might participate or how much they might put up.

Anti-U.S. Campaign

TOKYO (AP) — The Tokyo police say they have tips extreme leftists plan to bomb embassies , government buildings and U.S. military bases and to kidnap diplomats in an attempt to force the Japanese government to scrap the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

The treaty, signed in Washington Jan. 19, 1960, will be extended automatically June 23.

The police said they had mobilized 70,00 men to guard U.S. and other foreign facilities in Tokyo. They said they would increase this security force to 20,000 men, half the city's police force, in the next two weeks to combat 50,000 leftists expected to demonstrate against the treaty.

Yanks Leave Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Several hundred Libyans stood silent today as the American flag came slowly down for the last time at Wheelus Air Base and a Libyan band played the Star Spangled Banner.

Then they applauded and cheered as the green, black and red flag of Libya rose briskly to the top of the pole to the roar of a 21-gun salute.

The ceremony ended 16 years of U.S. Air Force operations at Wheelus, the last major American military base in Africa. Forty-five minutes later, the 47 American airmen who handed over the huge facility had left for West Germany to get new assignments.

Russ Boast Of Wheat

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet farmers have sowed 101.7 million acres of wheat so far this year, exceeding the government's spring quota by 4 per cent, Tass reported today.

The official Soviet news agency said a third of the area designated for spring crops is devoted to wheat.

Tass also said that "the plan of sowing sunflower and cotton seeds has been overfulfilled" and that more than 704,000 acres of irrigated land are taken up by rice.

Quake Near Chile?

NEW YORK (AP) — A "fairly strong" earthquake, probably off the coast of Chile, was recorded on the Fordham University seismograph early today the university reported.

The Rev. Joseph Lynch, director of the Fordham Seismic Observatory, said the first shock was recorded at 3:13 a.m., EDT, and a second at 3:22.

He gave the location as 4,300 miles south of here, probably off Chile.

Rousselot Wins 53-Vote Margin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Rousselot, former congressman and former national publicist for the John Birch Society, won the Republican nomination for the 24th Congressional District by 53 votes, it was announced Wednesday night.

Ray Lee, Los Angeles County registrar - recorder completed his tally of returns from the two-county district — a tally delayed eight days after the June 2 primary because of damaged computer punchard ballots.

Final returns from Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties showed Rousselot with 30,622 votes against 30,569 for his closest opponent, Dr. William McColl, a West Covina orthopedic surgeon and former Stanford University and professional football star.

Mormon Youth Aid Black Church

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)— Mormon teens have responded to criticism of their church's Negro policy by raising more than $33,000 to aid the local Church of God in Christ, a black congregation.

A banquet Wednesday night climaxed "Operation Good Samaritan," which started when Bishop M. A. Givens Jr. asked officials if the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints for help in completing his congregation's Deliverance Temple.

"I may disagree with some of your teachings," Bishop Givens told 200 representatives of the two churches, "but that doesn't mean we have to pick up bricks and throw them at each other or that we have to start talking black power."

375 Park Arrests In Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Riot police using nightsticks and a gas-spewing truck broke up a chanting crowd of 500 persons who refused to leave an Isla Vista park after the start of a dusk-to-dawn curfew.

Officers reported making 375 arrests Wednesday night and early today.

Numerous witnesses interviewed said between 150 and 200 persons suffered cuts and bruises but that none were in serious condition. A half-dozen were treated in hospitals and most in nearby residences.

Capt. Joel Honey of the Santa Barbara County sheriff's department said there were "quite a lot of student injuries but there were no officers injured that I know of."

The arrest total was the highest since seven straight nights of unrest started last Thursday after 17 persons were indicted in connection with rioting last February in which the Bank of America branch was burned by demonstraters. About 300 had been arrested in the first six nights.

Sherrif's deputies from Santa Barbara and Los Angeles counties along with highway patrolmen charged into the demonstrators and "kicked and clubbed them out of the park," witnesses said.

Witnesses said those arrested included older people who had joined in the protest at Perfect Park against police violence on the preceding six nights and that some taken into custody were women with small children.

"Some of those being arrested were being beaten and kicked. Cops moved in on the longhairs first and dragged them off by their hair," a coed withness said.

R.L.King, Santa Barbara County undersheriff, said of the brutality charges: "We are thoroughly investigating every charge of excessive force that is filed with our office. If there is any proof that an officer used brutality in making an arrest, then he will, of course, be punished."

In a letter to the U.S. Justice Department, 12 faculty members from the adjoining University of California campus said they hold signed complaints from three dozen persons charging officers with forcible entry, brutality, threats, indiscriminate tear gassing and excessive use of force.

Bob Dullea, a Santa Barbara furniture store operator who described himself as being "well past 30" with a son at UCSB, said "it's really shocking. Even people in private homes were being harassed."

Carl Lindros, 35, who said he was a "very establishment stockbroker," said "it's absolutely terrifying. Innocent private citizens are being harassed in their homes."

Saigon To Send Home 86 N. Viet Prisoners

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnam announced today that it will repatriate 86 sick and wounded North Vietnamese prisoners on July 11.

He said 62 soldiers and 24 fishermen captured by South Vietnamese naval units would be returned by sea to North Vietnam.

He said the prisoners would be taken in South Vietnamese naval vessels to a point north of the demilitarized zone, and escorted to shore in three boats of a "humanitarian organization" — presumably the International Red Cross.

Lam made clear that the operation would take place regardless of whether North Vietnam gave its approval. South Vietnam has tried for almost a year to persuade Hanoi to agree to joint arrangements for the return of sick and wounded prisoners.

The North Vietnamese delegation at the peace talks has refused to enter into any such arrangement, but said the Saigon government should release any "patriots" it holds without any conditions or prior agreement.

North Vietnam claims it has no troops fighting in the South, and Hanoi spokesmen have earlier qualified the Saigon attempts to make arrangements for releasing prisoners as a "trick."

At last week's session, Lam said Saigon was ready to release 343 North Vietnamese prisoners for humanitarian reasons. There was no response from the Hanoi delegation.

Today, Lam no longer sought North Vietnamese approval.

"I now wish to inform the representative of the Hanoi administration of a decision taken by the government of the Republic of Vietnam," he said.

If the initial repatriation is accomplished successfully, Lam said, the other sick and wounded prisoners would be returned by the same method.

If weather conditions on July 11 are unsuitable, the operation will be postponed from day to day until July 16 at the latest.

"During this period, in order to insure the safety of the prisoners of war, the fishermen and the escort personnel, we request the Hanoi administration to refrain from all military activities on the ground, at sea and the air space of the area chosen for the release."

LOUISE THORESON
Held in slaying

Thoresen's Wife Held

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Sheets hung across windows today at the big white stucco and brick house where federal agents joined police in investigating the shooting death of William E. Thoresen III, a millionaire gun collector.

In jail, booked for investigation of murder, was Thoresen's slim, brunette widow, Louise, 33, who ran to a neighbor's home Wednesday saying: "Bill has been shot. Call an ambulance."

The handsome Thoresen, 32, his nude body punctured by two or three pistol bullets in the chest, was found on a bed in a second floor room.

Police Chief H. R. Morton said FBI agents and agents from the U.S. Treasury Department firearms division are "interested in the circumstances."

Fresno police officer Jess Ortiz said 25 2½-pound canisters of marijuana was found in some of numerous boxes and cartons stored in the Thoresen home.

Ortiz said agents also found a white powdery substance believed to be hashish, along with equipment used for marijuana smoking, growing and sifting.

Earlier: 6th graf.

Earlier Police Capt. A. J. Bilbo said the shooting came "as climax to a family quarrel." The Thoresens had started divorce proceedings in Phoenix, Ariz., last year, prior to moving here in November.

Mrs. Thoresen was taken to Valley Medical Hospital before she was jailed, but police would not say whether she had been injured. The Fresno County jail matron said she had no outward signs of injury.

The couple's son, Michael, 8, was on his way to school at the time of the shooting.

Thoresen, who inherited from his grandfather a trust estimated at $70 million, once said he had spent most of it, mainly on his gun collections. His father is president of the Great Western Steel Co., Chicago.

Gun collecting, which Thoresen said had been his hobby since he was 9, led to his conviction in March 1969 on a federal charge of illegal interstate shipment of firearms. The charge followed a 1967 raid on the Thoresens' San Francisco mansion and a warehouse.

Peruvian Mercy Efforts Picking Up Speed As Planes Swarm In

ANTA, Peru (AP) — Earthquake relief operations were slow getting started, but they are moving along now, and a dirt strip at this village in the Huaylas Canyon has become the busiest airport in South America.

From dawn to dusk every day, planes haul food, medicine and other supplies into the canyon from Lima and the port city of Chimbote. They fly out with survivors —injured or unhurt— of the May 31 quake, which killed 50,000 persons.

CARDINAL FLIES IN

Juan Cardinal Landazuri-Ricketts flew to Anta Wednesday to see the relief operation and to comfort the survivors. Officials said his visit was "worth a ton of medicine."

Peruvian authorities reported the third loss of an aircraft in a week of relief flights. The National Information Office said a Peruvian air force helicopter crashed near the town of Cajacay and three persons aboard were killed.

Earlier in the day, an Argentine Fokker F27 with seven persons aboard was reported missing en route from Lima to Anta. Last Saturday an American helicopter flying into the canyon was smashed against a hillside by a strong downdraft. The two crewmen and nine passengers were not injured, but the helicopter was destroyed.

BIG CHOPPER LANDS

One of the big twin-rotor Chinook helicopters sent from the United States made its first flight into the canyon Wednesday, hauling in relief supplies and carrying out stretcher cases to Lima.

Also participating in the airlift are U.S. Air Force C123 transports, Canadian twin-engine Caribou transports, Peruvian air force DC3s, a number of single-engine planes, and helicopters from Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Peru and the United States.

Teams of U.S. Army engineers are in the valley looking for places to open up more airstrips. They built one strip Wednesday by patching up a piece of highway just outside Carhuaz.

CHURCH TOWER LEANS

Nearby a church tower leaned precariously, cracked down the middle by the quake.

Luis Rivera, an employe of the national electric company, worked on the power line to Carhuaz.

"I think by tomorrow we'll have light in the plaza and the hospital," he said.

"I cannot tell you enough how much we appreciate what you Americans are doing," he added.

Rivera and his family were at their home at Huaraz when the quake hit. A daughter was buried and died in the rubble.

"I was half buried," said Rivera, "but happily it was not my time to see St. Peter."

Busy Fiscal Evening: Pay Nods, Outlays

Expenditures totaling $960,953 for fiscal 1970-71 were approved last night by the Corte Madera Town Council but only after it first approved a 10 per cent pay hike for four department heads and refused to rehire the town's attorney.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher told the council that its approved expenditures would require a tax rate of $1.18 per $100 assessed valuation, compared to a 99-cent rate this year to support a $1 million budget.

Usher added the rate was based on the premise that estimated revenues next year and year end balances this year will total what he has predicted.

NOT INTERESTED

Councilman Robert P. Simmons indicated, however, that he was interested in using some ending balance funds (which would form a reserve in the new budget if not used) to further reduce the tax rate. He said he would continue to press for such action at later meetings.

Usher estimated a carryover from this year amounting to about $167,000 and proposed $145,000 of it as next year's reserve.

Usher explained that by reducing the $145,000 figure and the ending balance of other funds the council could further reduce the tax rate, although he would not advise it for fear of reducing the reserve too much.

Prior to the budget session, the council entered closed session to consider rehiring its attorney, Wilson, Jones, Morton and Lynch of San Francisco.

SHORT SESSION

After about 20 minutes the councilmen emerged and in a unanimous vote turned thumbs down to the firm's request for $350 a month in retainer fees and $40 an hour for special services.

Immediately after giving the boot to the San Francisco firm, the council, without discussion, unanimously approved hiring attorney Albert Bianchi of San Rafael, who set his retainer fees at $300 a month and special charges from $15 to $40 an hour.

The council then moved on to the only other hurdle to completion of its budget — salary increases for the chief of police, finance director, chief building inspector and director of public works.

With no discussion, Simmons moved that the department chiefs be granted the same 10 per cent increase given other city employees in May. Councilman Holmes S. Norville seconded the motion without comment.

MERIT QUESTION

Councilmen Byron D. White and Harold B. Wagstaff mildly maintained that pay raises for department heads should be analysed and considered separately for merit raised.

Mayor Edward W. Colthurst, who remained silent throughout the discussion voted in favor of the blanket raise, thus acting as the swing vote in the 3-to-2 decision. At no time was a reason given for the council's having postponed this action for a month until last night.

Approved city department expenditure totals for next year are:

Mayor and council, $11,625; town manager, $22,300; town clerk, $20,836; finance, $22,693; law, $7,000; planning, $7,420; non-departmental, $45,331; retirement, $56,206; debt service, $17,083; police, $236,259; fire, $86,896; building inspection, $19,945, and animal control, $3,625.

Engineering and administration of public works, $44,650; streets, $126,462; flood control, $72,000; buildings and landscape, $29,818; town parks, $34,814; library, $51,700; recreation, $23,570; and reserves, $20,000.

The council also approved Sanitary District No. 2's 1970-71 budget which totals $196,863 at a cost to city property owners of 60 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Actor Frank Silvera Dies In Pasadena

PASADENA (UPI)—Veteran Negro character actor Frank Silvera, a regular on the western television series "High Chaparral," died at his home early today, apparently of natural causes.

Silvera, 56, reportedly had suffered from high blood pressure and had been under a physician's care for the past several months.

Uproar Over GI College Enrollments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says some servicemen, let out of uniform early to go to college, are cheating on the privilege and failing to enroll.

The service is so angry it is threatening to recall the culprits and possibly court-martial them.

As part of its effort to encourage more veterans to take advantage of GI schooling benefits —and ease pressure on the tightening labor market—the Nixon administration has expanded the 10-year-old program allowing a head start of up to 90 days for college-bound veterans to include vocational and technical schools.

But an Army circular suggests some men are using the early out program less to give them a head start on post service education and more as a loophole to early freedom.

"A number of queries from colleges and universities indicate that some servicemen granted early separation to attend school are failing to enroll," the Army circular said, without giving any figures.

"This is a dangerous practice as it can backfire badly for those who obtain educational 'early outs' with the intent not to enroll or to make only a token enrollment."

"It just isn't worth it to lie to leave the Army 90 days early," the Army personnel circular stated.

Tape Deck, Tapes, Speakers Are Stolen

A tape deck, tapes and speakers valued at $121 were stolen Monday at the San Rafael High School auto shop parking lot from a car owned by Robert M. Lee Jr., 5 Fairway Drive, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

The car was unlocked with a wire tool and a locked glovebox pried open, police said.

ANCIENT DC-3 STILL USEFUL

A Cambodian soldier rests on a hammock inside the tail section of an old DC-3 plane inside the military compound to Kompong Chan, 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. Where the soldier's "home" came from or how it got there is not known. (AP Wirephoto)

Sailor Held As Suspect In Arson Try

A 29-year-old man who had arrived at the Strawberry Point Tennis Club last evening on a sailboat, was arrested on suspicion of arson after Sheriff's officers found him under the club apparently trying to set it afire.

Sgt. Robert Gaddini said that he went to the club about 7:20 p.m. after receiving a call that there might be a burglary in progress.

Under the building, he found Joseph Benjamin Taten who lives on a houseboat at Waldo Point, crawling along on his hands and knees.

The sergeant also smelled smoke and then saw a pile of straw and kindling placed on a wooden piling, apparently so that when it was ignited the piling and the floor of the clubhouse would catch fire. Matches were found nearby.

Tate denied knowledge of the fire preparation and said that he was looking for a lost houseboat and had come to the club to use the restroom. His 20-foot sailboat was tied up outside.

He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of arson and entering a building with intent to commit a felony and was held in lieu of $3,750 bail. He was to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Driver Accused In Dope Count

Steven Harris Milliken, 19, of Woodacre, was booked at Marin County Jail today on suspicion of having marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia, Ross police reported.

Police said Milliken's car was stopped at 12:40 a.m. on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard for having no tail lights. The officer saw a pipe in the ashtray and reportedly found it held marijuana or hashish residue. A search of the car produced a variety of bottles containing pills, marijuana and hashish, and a knapsack in the trunk also contained hashish, police said. Report did not indicate the quantity of marijuana involved.

Milliken was held in lieu of $1,875 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Chained To Rails

CANBERRA, Australia (UPI) —Five women chained themselves to chairs and rails in the public gallery of the Australian House of Representatives Thursday to protest the arrest of two youths who refused to be drafted into military service. The women chanted anti-draft slogans while police cut the chains and escorted them from the building. All five were released.

Bid Is Accepted To Remodel Ferryboat

Golden Gate Bridge District directors voted 14--to-2 today to accept a $109,350 bid to remodel its new ferryboat which will run between Sausalito and San Francisco.

The bid was more than $29,000 above the $80,000 estimated cost predicted by Phillip Spaulding of Seattle, naval architect. The eight bids ranged to a high of $213,000.

The high cost surprised the directors and two demanded that the award to Triple A Machine Shop of San Francisco be held up until Spaulding had been called in to explain. Against the award were Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco and William R. Lucius of Sonoma. Marin's three directors voted for the go-ahead.

The bridge directors held up a contract for H. Donald White, new transportation manager who will handle district bus and ferry operations. He was hired May 28 for $26,500 a year, but this morning when district attorney Jerome K. White announced that the new transportation manager wants a private car, private office and a private secretary several directors screamed in protest.

Robert E. Gonzales of San Francisco, the only director who voted against the hiring last month, said he had never understood that the new man would have a private car and secretary.

Gonzales moved that the appointment be rescinded.

Stephen Leonoudakis of San Francisco backed Gonzales, but the other directors decided that the whole question of contract for the new man should be referred to the joint transportation and finance committee.

This committee, headed by Joseph E. Sheeks of Marin, will have a special meeting Monday at 9 a.m. to discuss the new contract, meaning White will come to work Monday without a formal contract.

"I feel embarrassed to hire a guy one day and he can't go to work," said Daniel F. Del Carlo of San Francisco. "If he were in my union, goddamnit, he would go to work."

The budget and finance committee will meet at 10:30 a.m. June 19 and a subcommittee of the finance committee will meet 9:30 a.m. Tuesday to discuss wages with the bridge workers.

KERENSKY

wrote, published newspapers and lectured in his efforts to promote counterrevolution in Russia.

His Paris-based movement sparked a revolt among Russian sailors in 1921, but he eventually became a lone voice castigating Soviet leaders, with equal venom for Joseph Stalin, whom he had freed from political exile in Siberia, and Leon Trotsky, who was defeated by Stalin in a later power struggle, exiled and murdered.

Stalin and Trotsky were among those behind Lenin when the Bolsheviks routed Kerensky's government in the October revolution in 1917.

Kerensky, a member of the Duma, or parliament, beginning in 1912, had been a part of the revolutionary movement since the Red Sunday massacre of workers in St. Petersburg in 1905, and had become known as a legal defender of those accused of political crimes. After the first 1917 revolution during World War I, Kerensky was elected premier by a new constituent assembly.

Kerensky had tried to inspire Russian soldiers to greater efforts against the Germans, but Lenin pulled Russia out of the European war with the Brest-Litovsk treaty.

While the Bolsheviks did away with the czar and his family and consolidated their power, Kerensky vanished for almost a year. He turned up in London to explain how he had worked for counterrevolution in the Russian villages, then disguised himself as a member of a Serbian military mission to get to Murmansk where the British boat provided his escape.

Several years ago Kerensky received an inscribed copy of the book "Twenty Letters to a Friend," by Svetlana Alliluyeva, Stalin's daughter in exile in this country.

"Spiritually," he commented, "she is more my daughter than his."

House Hunter Finds More Than The Ordinary

An off-duty Monterey policeman, looking for a house to buy in Marin, found more than the usual furnishings in one he was touring in Santa Venetia yesterday afternoon.

Officer Ted Bader said that he went to a house at 807 Rincon Way with a real estate agent, who opened the door with a key when no one answered the knock.

In a bedroom, the officer and his wife found a sleeping man and a bowl and plastic bag of suspected marijuana. Sheriff's deputies were called, and William Talmage Johnson Jr., 22, of 1541 Hill Road, Novato, who said he often was guest in the house, was arrested.

The resident of the home, who arrived later, was not arrested.

There was no report on whether the officer bought the house or not.

Johnson posted $625 bail and was released from Marin County Jail and was to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorow.

Panel Urges New School Construction

Tomales Bay School's portable classrooms should be replaced by a new school building and an architect hired by the Shoreline Unified District to study that school and the Bodega Bay School.

So reported the Shoreline citizens building advisory committee last night to the board of trustees, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

The committee suggested that the district hire an architect to review the master plan of the Bodega Bay School and suggest revisions to meet the educational needs of the district, and to assess the present Tomales Bay School with emphasis on altering for its use the permanent usable buildings at the old Tomales High School.

The Shoreline Unified School District board also:

READING — Approved a remedial reading program at Tomales Bay School from June 22 to July 17, the hours to be set.

CONTRACTS — Approved the audio visual services contract with the Marin County superintendent's office for $1.75 per average daily attendance.

INTERNS — Approved contracts with Sonoma State College and Dominican College for teacher interns for the next school year.

CLAIM — Denied a claim of Richard A. Nelson filed by his guardian, Robert Nelson, for $25,060 for injuries allegedly received in an assault with Davis Danielson, a teacher at Tomales High School.

RESIGNATIONS — Accepted resignations of Diane Kothe, teacher at West Marin School; Mrs. Katherine Kudenov and Carol Holtzman, teacher aides at Tomales elementary and of Prudence Wise, English-French teacher at Tomales High School.

HIRED — Hired Patrick Woodworth at $8,802 for English-French at Tomales High School; Mario Lamort at $8,802 for fourth grade at Tomales Bay; Susan Doss at $6,000 teacher at Tomales Bay; Barbara Eggers at $7,458 at Bodega Bay; Joan Smith at $9,216 at West Marin; Sally Carmona at $7,146 kindergarten at Tomales Bay; David Faw at $6,000, teacher intern at West Marin and Joseph Chiara, Jerroll Sandall and Josephine Pozzi all at $3,400 as teacher aides.

VOTE

ment, however, did not bring the Senate closer to a showdown vote on the Cooper-Church amendment.

Numerous other modifications were pending.

Byrd called on his colleagues "to stand by our men in Vietnam."

He protested against putting "handcuffs" on the President and preventing him from carrying out his constitutional duties as commander in chief.

Byrd urged the Senate not to limit Nixon's authority to return temporarily to Cambodia "for the protection of the lives of our fighting men in Vietnam."

In the last-minute effort to attract undecided votes, Byrd yesterday tried to change the language of his amendment but could not get unanimous consent.

The modifications would have added the words "in the exercise of his constitutional powers and duties as commander in chief" and "the President is requested to consult with congressional leaders prior to using any United States forces in Cambodia . . ."

Fulbright said the modifications complicated the amendment and added "it's possible to derive from it a greater abdication by the Senate than the original language."

Petaluma Water Board Wary Of Nature Studies

More study will be needed before allowing youngsters to use undeveloped Petaluma Park property for nature study, the Petaluma Water Commission decided yesterday.

Alfred L. Walker, principal of McKinley School, had asked by letter for permission to use the property on Sonoma Mountain Road for field trips to study flora and fauna.

The commission said that large numbers of children may create a health hazard. No restroom facilities are available on the land, the former Lafferty Ranch.

The commission asked Walker to submit more detailed plans for the field trips including the number of children expected to take part and the frequency of the trips.

rected to President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and President Muammar Kadafi of Libya, who had both cabled the king and guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat appealing for an end to the fighting.

Hussein reached cease-fire agreements with Arafat's Al Fatah organization on Tuesday and Wednesday, but it appeared that both the king and the commando leader were being outflanked by extremists.

Arab diplomats in Beirut said the battle continued for so long because Hussein's cousin, Sherif Zeid Ben Shaker, turned it into a blood feud after his sister was killed by a stray bullet.

Ignoring orders from the king, Shaker commanded his armored division to shell Palestinian refugee camps around Amman, the sources said. Guerrillas from the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine—a group to the left of Arafat—then occupied the International Hotel and declared the 32 foreigners hostages "to dramatize the plight and suffering of the Palestinian people."

There was still no indication, however, whether the guerrillas had agreed to curb their operations against Israel from Jordanian territory, as Hussein wants them to do, or whether the fighting this week had forced the monarch to give the Palestinians a free hand.

The Syrian government vowed Wednesday night that it would become involved on the side of the guerrillas if the fighting continued.

representing Mill Valley, said virtually all property owners in the area asked the city to annex it.

Several residents of nearby areas opposed the annexation. Mrs. John S. Morton, representing "Citizens versus Annexation," said the Mill Valley proposal was "piecemeal," and Tiburon wasn't ready for annexatin.

Ultimately, she said the area should go to Tiburon, but that city will have to solve some of its basic problems first.

Atty. Wallace S. Myers, representing William H. Dodd, owner of 62 acres of the annexation area, and Jacques Reutlinger, owner of the 71-unit Harbor Vista apartments, said they wanted annexation to Mill Valley.

Atty. David Menary Jr., representing Leon Felton of Mill Valley Volkswagen, said Felton favored annexation because he wanted better police protection.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar said he would be "hard put to deny people their request to the city," but felt Mill Valley had obligations to people in affected special districts, and should work out some arrangements.

Attorney Jordan asserted that the area was within Mill Valley's planned ultimate boundaries, and the city would provide police, fire and sanitary service.

John A. Walters of the Altochardson Bay Fire District Board said annexation would have a "downgrading effect" on that district and the tax rate probably would have to be increased.

He pointed out that the district has two fire stations close to the shopping center, one on Strawberry Peninsula, whereas Mill Valley's main fire station is three miles away.

Mill Valley proposed to serve the area from a new fire station to be constructed in East Mill Valley, but Walters questioned when the new station would be built, saying it was promised five years ago. He said the district has a lower fire insurance rating than Mill Valley.

Atty. Stephen H. Kaufmann, representing the Strawberry Recreation District, said annexation of the shopping center "would literally bankrupt the district."

He described the annexation bid as "part of a ping-pong game for the tax base and revenue of the shopping center."

Fanning said there "was no question," it would be more appropriate to annex the land to Tiburon. "We deliberately don't have a petition before you. We didn't want this to be an 'either-or' battle."

He contended that the Marin County master plan for the Tiburon Peninsula showing the city extending to Highway 101.

John F. Barrows, executive officer of the commission, who recommended against approval, said Highway 101 "still offers the most reasonable boundary btween Tiburon and the city of Mill Valley."

OBITUARIES

Claudia Edenfield Dies At 29

Funeral for Claudia L. Edenfield, of 39 Ethel Avenue, Mill Valley, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at Russell and Gooch Mortuary, Mill Valley.

Miss Edenfield, 29, died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

A native of Orlando, Fla., she had been a Marin resident 27 years. She last worked as a secretary for Hibernia Bank in San Francisco. She was a graduate of Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Edenfield of the home address, and a sister, Linda Bowman of San Anselmo.

Burial will be at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JAMES BROWN

The body of James Henri Brown, professional actor and resident of Gate 3 in Sausalito, was found yesterday in his minibus, parked at a San Anselmo drive-in restaurant.

The county coroner's office attributed death to natural causes. Brown reportedly had diabetes for two years.

Police said Carmel Dillon, co-owner of Jeep's Drive-In at 7 Mariposa Avenue, reported Brown stopped Monday night for food. His bus was still parked at the drive-in when it closed for the night, but Mrs. Dillon told police Brown frequently left the bus there when visiting friends.

When the drive-in reopened Wednesday morning, employees saw the bus still there and found Brown slumped in the seat.

Brown, who lived on a Sausalito houseboat, was a native of St. Louis, Mo., and had lived in Marin approximately 20 years. He was a member of the Screen Actors Guild and had appeared in Marin County stage roles with the Marin Shakespeare Festival and other Marin theater groups. He played Othello in 1963 and Oberon in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1964 with the festival. He also performed with the Tamalpais Valley Players, San Francisco Playhouse and at San Francisco State College.

He also had frequent roles in television series, including "Daktari" and segments of "I Spy" shot in the Bay Area. He played movie roles in "Bullitt" and "Petulia" in recent years. He was a merchant seaman before becoming an actor.

He is survived by three children, October and Noah of Mill Valley and Monise of Terra Linda.

Funeral is pending at Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo.

GLADYS RECTOR

Gladys B. Rector, 81, who had lived in San Rafael for the past three years, died yesterday in a local hospital after a short illness.

She had lived with her daughter and son-in-law, Col. and Mrs. Coleman Sellers at 229 Mount Shasta Drive, San Rafael.

A native of Oakland, she had lived in the Bay Area, Seattle and Fresno. Her husband, the late Howard B. Rector was a pioneer in the automobile industry in San Francisco and Seattle.

She is survived by another daughter, Barbara R. Ackley of Honolulu and three grandchildren.

Funeral and entombment will be Saturday in Fresno.

The Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato was in charge of local arrangements.

Memorial contributions to a favored charity would be appreciated by the family.

CAROLYN CLOUGH

Carolyn B. Clough, 55, of Petaluma, died yesterday at a hospital in San Diego, where she had been visiting relatives.

Mrs. Clough was born and reared in Bakersfield and had lived at 6075 Redwood Highway North, Petaluma, 17 years.

A nurse and laboratory technician, she had been employed at Hillcrest Hospital and by Dr. Angelo Leoni.

She is survived by her husband, Herbert W. Clough; and two daughters, Marcia Garretts of Petaluma and Joleen Whalley of San Diego.

Funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at the Parent funeral chapel, Petaluma. Burial arrangements are pending.

VERNON DONNELLY

Vernon H. Donnelly, founder of Donnelly Export Co. in San Francisco and a resident of San Rafael, died yesterday in a local hospital following a long illness. He was 78.

Donnelly, who lived at 7 Wood Street, was a native of Peterboro, Canada. He moved to California in 1931 and to Marin County in 1948 after establishing his auto parts export business.

He is survived by his wife Tyna L. Donnelly of San Rafael, a son, William H. Donnelly of Santa Venetia, and two brothers, Ab and Jack Donnelly of Canada. He is also survived by three grandchildren.

Private funeral was held today at Keaton's Mortuary. Inurnment followed at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

THOMAS HUGHES

Requiem Mass for Thomas E. Hughes of San Francisco, father of Stanley Hughes of San Rafael, will be offered at 11 a.m. tomorrow at St. James Catholic Church, 1086 Guerrero Street, San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

Hughes, a retired sign painter, died Tuesday in San Francisco following an illness. He was a lifelong resident of San Francisco and a retired member of Local 510, Pictorial Sign Painters Union.

He is also survived by two daughters, Mrs. Lorraine Clark and Mrs. Carol Parodi; two other sons, Raymond Hughes and Edward Clark, and two sisters, Julie McLaughlin and Josephine Arietta, all of San Francisco; and by 13 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. today at the Reilly Company Mortuary, 29th and Dolores streets, San Francisco. The family prefers contributions to the Crippled Children's Foundation.

Peninsula Blast Hits Bay Delta Sewage Proposal

HALF MOON BAY (AP) — A pipeline for pumping sewage from San Francisco Bay counties to the Pacific Ocean might rupture during an earthquake, opponents of the Bay Delta Plan say.

As a result, the sewage that has had only primary treatment might contaminate the Crystal Springs Reservoir along the San Andreas Fault, they said Wednesday.

The risk to the reservoir, which receives Hetch Hetchy Reservoir waters in the Sierra for delivery to San Francisco, was announced by James D. Fitzgerald, a San Mateo County supervisor, at a meeting of 35 persons.

Those at the meeting were urged to write to their legislators opposing Assembly Bill 1310 by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, which would empower the Bay Conservation Commission to implement the Bal-Delta plan.

West Marin Pleases Doctor Whitt

COUNTRY DOCTOR — Bag in hand, Dr. Michael C. Whitt strides down a Point Reyes Station street on his way to his office at the West Marin Medical Center after a talk with passerby Jeanne M. Schroeder. A week on the job has convinced Whitt that he's found a home in West Marin.
(Independent-Journal photo by Bob Hax)

By GEORGE NEVIN

After a week and a day of practice, Dr. Michael C. Whitt leaned back in his chair at his Point Reyes Station office, stroked his beard and described a feeling shared by many in West Marin.

"There's not enough business for two doctors here and too much for one," he said, his soft accent giving away his Southern background. "At least that's the way people around here characterize it."

The 33-year-old general practitioner admits he took a chance. "I knew the region might not support two doctors, but I let my heart get the best of my head," he said.

Ironically, West Marin didn't have any doctor five months ago — now it has two. Dr. William E. Kaye, 34, set up a general practice in January.

Still, Whitt figures he can make a go of practicing in West Marin or he wouldn't be there.

"The Point Reyes area is bound to get bigger. It can't get much smaller," he said. "And with it my practice will grow. Everyone here talks about The Road (Highway 17) which is coming through. When Point Reyes Station becomes a commuter city, the area will lose a lot of what I came here for."

Until that time, however, at least 10 years away, Whitt thinks there's enough business in West Marin for both doctors.

The conflict between the neeed for urbanization and the simultaneous disadvantages it poses affect Whitt personally: "I want more people to build up my practice to a satisfactory level, but at the same time what brings more patients brings an end to the relaxed, rural living," he said.

Whitt said he feels people in West Marin tend to be "a little apprehensive about beards and long hair" (he has both), but still retain the spirit of the old west and measure a man by his actions.

"I feel the quality of the community is such that people will judge on the basis of ability, not appearance," he said.

After only a week on the job, Whitt says the feeling he most often encounters in his patients is not hositility, not doubt but "a feeling that they're happy to have another doctor." West Marin was without a physician from October until January.

The path that brought Whitt from his native Little Rock, Ark., to the West Marin Medical Center wound past several other career opportunities, any one of which he could have taken.

"At first I was going to be a petroleum engineer. I studied at the universities of Oklahoma and Texas," he related. "Then I came to California and found I loved it. I started attending the University of California at Berkeley, majoring in English and pre-med."

After graduating in 1961, Whitt returned to the University of Texas at Galveston, where he graduated from medical school in 1968.

"All through college I though I wanted to be a psychiatrist," he said. "All my courses slanted that way."

But his internship at Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco changed that. "I found I loved general practice. After doing that for a while I forsook psychiatry, and I'm not sorry I did," he said.

After a transitional phase at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in South San Francisco, Whitt learned of the practice available in Point Reyes Station and jumped at the chance of being a country doctor.

"Unconsciously I had wanted that all the time," he said. "It was just like coming home."

Whitt lives in Inverness with his wife, Barbara, and son, Garrett, 1. "It's really idea. I like to hike' and there's the whole Point Reyes National Seashore to do that. In fact, I first got turned on to living here when I was on a hike in the park," he said.

Whitt said he finds it hard to judge from the first week's activity just how big his practice is going to be. "My answering service isn't working yet, so there's no telling how many night calls I've missed," he said. "It should be on in another day or two."

He regards the enormous distances in West Marin as challenge rather than curse. But one aspect of practicing there bothers him:

"It's a long way to the nearest hospital. If I hospitalize anyone I could spend a lot of my day just traveling in to see him."

But Whitt doesn't think the trip will be necessary very often. "The people out here are pretty hardy. They don't want to go to the hospital unless it's absolutely necessary. And I feel that way, too."

So Whitt's thinking may be closer to the individualism of West Marin and Point Reyes Station than he thought when wondering about the acceptance of a man, beard, long hair and all.

Big Day For Women-- 2 Get General's Stars

WASHINGTON (AP) — The women had their day at the Pentagon today as the heads of the Army Nurse Corps and the WAC received their stars as the first lady generals in history.

There wasn't a sign of male resentment as the Army's top brass watched the formal elevation of Anna Mae Hays of Buffalo, N.Y., chief of the Nurse Corps, and Elizabeth P. Hoisington of Newton, Kan., director of the Women's Army Corps, from colonel to brigadier general. Quite the opposite.

Dozens of male generals applauded as Gen. William C. Westmoreland said, "I hereby establish a new protocol for congratulating lady generals" and kissed Gen. Hays on the cheek.

Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor declared Gens. Hays and Hoisington the "First Ladies of the Army" and said the Army is "putting emphasis on restructuring some of our jobs" to make way for more women at the top levels."

Among the dozens of friends and relatives who witnessed the ceremony was Mamie Eisenhower, widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Years ago, Gen. Hays nursed Eisenhower during one of his serious illnesses while president.

Both women are veterans of long and sometimes difficult and dangerous military service.

Gen. Hays, 50, attended wounded soldiers in the Pusan Perimeter into which retreating American forces were pressed by advancing North Korean troops in 1950.

Gen. Hoisington, 52, won the French Croix de Guerre for being the first uniformed woman to enter Paris five days after its liberation in the summer of 1944.

Argentine Junta 'Hunts' Leader

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)— Armed forces commanders who ousted former President Juan Carlos Ongania Monday night today sought a person of unassailable reputation who will accept the limited presidency they have in mind.

The three-man junta has eight days left of the 10-day period it set itself to select a new president. It must first revise the military government charter of 1966 to devise a system of "co-government" between the military triumvirate and the new president.

The bloodless coup that deposed Ongania after four years in office came off almost without incident. But Wednesday night police were summoned to eject about 600 students from the University of Buenos Aires faculty of letters and philosophy.

New Kidnap Note In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)— Another note from the kidnapers of former President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu appeared here today accompanied by personal effects of the victim who was reported "executed" June 1.

The note was found with a wristwatch, a pen and pencil set, a key ring and a medallion of the 5th Infantry Regiment in a bank mailbox on the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

Friends of the Aramburu family said the items were identified by Aramburu's son as belonging to his father.

West Bay Eying Tourism Decline

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco's tourist business dropped sharply last year, seven per cent below the 1968 level, Jack Podesta, president of the Convention and Visitors Bureau has announced.

Podesta blamed the decline on the country's economy but he could not explain why the rest of the nation had a 14 per cent jump in tourism last year.

"The proliferation of hippies and smut peddlers here has affected our image," Podesta told a news conference here Wednesday.

Group Votes No Float For Parade

The Mariner Cove Improvement Association will not enter a float in the Larkspur-Corte Madera Fourth of July parade, the association board decided last night.

Too many association directors will be out of town that weekend, President Herber C. Leney reported.

The board was told Leney was to present the association's annual student achievement award today to the San Clemente School sixth grader judged the best all-round student for the year. The award went to Michael Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martell A. Smith of 10 El Camino Drive, Leney said.

The board also agreed to appear at a Corte Madera budget session to ask that money be included for proposed tennis courts at San Clemente School, to be used under a joint powers agreement between the town and the school district.

Co-Ed Asks Jury Trial On Charge

BERKELEY — A Mill Valley co-ed at the University of California at Berkeley pleaded innocent yesterday in Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court to charges of obstructing a peace officer in the performance of his duty and creating a disturbance on the campus.

Leslie Louis Fabre, 21, of 902 Greenhill Road, was arrested May 28 with 22 others when they tried to attend a private student disciplinary hearing on the campus.

Miss Fabre asked for a jury trial which was set for June 17.

BARRAGE BALLOON PROTEST

As a jet roars overhead, William Looney of Berkeley, Mo., near St. Louis' Lambert Municipal Airport, launches a sort of miniature barrage balloon assembly to keep the planes away from his house. Despite warnings from police and the Federal Aviation Administration that he is breaking the law, Looney contends, "If my balloons are too high, their jets are too low." Wind thwarted his attempts yesterday.

Larkspur Approves Budget, Ups Salaries

Larkspur city councilmen last night adopted a $1,052,203 budget for the coming fiscal year, a budget which gives 10 per cent pay hikes to the city's supervisorial employees, 7.5 per cent increases to the remainder of the city staff and holds the tax rate at $1.26 per $100 assessed valuation.

The council voted 4-0 to adopt the budget after four hours of plowing through the budget item-by-item for a second straight meeting.

The budget is approximately $17,000 more than last year's, but this is expected to be offset by an 11 per cent increase in the city's assessed valuation, City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst told the council.

The council deleted only $7,000 from the budget as proposed by Bathurst. The council dropped $5,000 which was earmarked as the beginning of a fund for a new library and scratched $2,000 from the library's proposed $10,500 to be used for purchase of new books.

The salary package will cost the city an additional $55,000 this year, Bathurst said. It grants the city's 14 supervisorial employees, including Bathurst, a 10 per cent hike and other employees 7.5 per cent. Bathurst told the council that with the expenditure of an additional $6,800, all employees could have a 10 per cent hike, but he indicated that the salary spreads between supervisorial and the other employees would become more realistic under the formula adopted by the council.

Councilman William G. Fleckles at first argued that a 5 per cent across the board increase was enough, but changed his mind when a surplus $16,000 was found in the city's sanitation budget.

The council had not expected to adopt the budget at last night's meeting but did so when it found itself with a balanced budget.

The city's general fund tax rate will be .90 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. Special district tax rates which will raise the overall city tax to $1.27 are: drainage, 7 cents; park and recreation, 7 cents; library, 12.5 cents; retirement fund, 9.5 cents.

The council was told last night that the city expects to lose about $10,000 a year in sales tax receipts when the Toyota car agency goes out of business, probably in the fall of this year. That drop in income was included in the proposed budget, Bathurst said.

Bathurst told the council that the 11 per cent expected increase in assessed valuation would net the city approximately $23,000 in revenue for the coming fiscal year.

'Skybus' Transit Plan Given Federal Grant

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe announced Wednesday an $8.7 million grant for initial engineering for Pittsburgh's controversial "skybus" mass transit proposal.

The system includes the $13.2 million "skybus" network that will connect the downtown "Golden Triangle" with suburban South Hill. The "skybus" is a full-automated, electrically-powered vehicle that can carry more than 100 persons.

Pollution Fuss Swirls In Richmond

By DAVID DIETZ

The scene was a meeting of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District board, which had set the session in Richmond City Hall to give representatives of the petro-chemical complex a chance to rebut charges made by residents at a March meeting that the plants were recklessly fouling the Contra Costa air.

Industry, rising in its defense, categorically denied the complaints and gave detailed recital of its antipollution efforts. Then the citizens counterattacked, insisting industry was lax and laying much of the blame at the door of the air pollution district.

In the midst of the argument came the remarks of D. J. Callaghan, chief administrative officer of the district: "The staff believes that some of the general complaints about air quality in the Richmond area are justified." But he added, "All available evidence indicates that the reason for these problems is the concentration of industries with high air pollution potential.

"There is no evidence that these industries have been evading our controls or regularly exceeding legal emission standards."

At the March meeting a parade of speakers had urged a crackdown on the oil and chemical plants, alleging illegal emissions of health-damaging pollutants.

Standard Oil, Northern California's largest refinery, had been a particular target of the critics, one woman alleging that a refinery employee had been instructed to discharge soot from furnaces at night to avoid detection.

Calling the statement "grossly misleading," Lawrence E. Coleman, Standard's staff specialist for air and water conservation, said yesterday the operation, common in refineries, was done "in a legal manner, both during daylight and darkness, but we do not permit it if our neighbors might be adversely affected."

Coleman, insisting Standard was "just as concerned" about air pollution as its critics, said the company has installed $13 million in pollution control facilities in the past 15 years, has 15 employees working full time on environmental protection, was in compliance with tough new state standards before they were adopted last fall and has voluntarily monitored plant emissions with equipment placed in the surrounding community for many years.

He said, however, "We do not deny that there are, on occasion, some objectionable odors in the area surrounding the entire industrial complex. Logic would indicate that some of these odors originate in our refinery."

Board member Nevin K. Hiester observed the problem may stem from emissions from two or more plants mixing in the air and said district regulations didn't cover this. District staff promised a thorough look into the matter.

R. J. King, plant manager for Chevron Chemical Co., said pollution control equipment at that facility accounted for more than 15 per cent of total capital investment.

Rebuttal came from Mrs. Lucretia Edwards of the Contra Costa Shoreline Parks Committee. She told the board that residents lacked confidence in it because of failure to "stand up to industry and prevent us from slow suffocation."

Ralph E. Warner, a legal services attorney representing a group of North Richmond residents, asserted the district's technical advisory committee and advisory council had "seriously watered down" tough new regulations proposed by the district staff. He claimed both groups had strong pro-industry influence.

Warner also urged stiffer rules that would speed up repairs to faulty equipment at plants.

Callaghan refuted charges of lax enforcement by the district, saying Standard Oil had been issued 100 violation notices and Chevron nine notices during a four-year period. Although noting fine provisions were not available until late 1968, he did not say whether such a penalty was sought through the courts by the district for violations after that time or whether the violations — some of them repeaters — had been corrected.

He said staff has proposed assigning more inspectors to the Richmond area next fiscal year to supplement the three already in the area and that two new monitoring stations had been added in the last six months.

In other business, the board adopted a preliminary 1970-71 budget of $1.9 million, up $152,266, largely because of proposed increased enforcement. The spending program would require the maximum district tax rate of 1.3 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, up one-tenth of a cent.

Marin's apportionment under the budget would be $79,144, up $10,000.

James F. Reed, mayor of San Anselmo, was named to the advisory council, one of three new appointees. Reed will fill a vacancy reserved for the public at-large.

Airline Has A Limited Clientele

But more than 40,000 passengers -- nearly all chained and manacled—have ridden in his single-engine, six-passenger planes during the past decade.

Main's business is flying prisoners to prisons. He hauls convicts to and from penal institutions in California and sometimes out of state.

Starting with one plane in Tulare County in 1960, Main's Visalia-based Security Transport, Inc., now employs five pilots and several guards and has contracts for prisoner transportation with 16 counties.

Both pilots and guards are deputized so local lawmen won't have to accompany the flights and Main boasts of only five escapes in 10 years.

The most serious was about two months ago when two prisoners overpowered a pilot in Modesto and embarked on a spree that left one policeman and one prisoner dead. A short time later Main started using guards.

The pilots say they rarely have trouble with prisoners once they are in the air.

"Sure I get hasseled," said one, "but most of them act just like anyone else would on a flight."

He added the worst predicaments come in flights involving patients from the state hospital for the criminally insane at Atascadero, who sometimes go berserk on board.

Local officials say the biggest benefit of the service is in dollar savings.

Wayne Baxter of the San Diego County Sheriff's Department said costs have been cut nearly in half since the county contracted with Security Transport.

"Normally it would take four days round-trip to take prisoners to San Quentin," Baxter said. "Figuring deputies' salaries and expenses it would cost in the neighborhood of $400.

"Now we just take the prisoners out to the airport and turn them over to the pilot, at the end of the month we get a bill."

Tulare County Sheriff Bob Wiley also pointed out the service "leaves our deputies free to work here at home, where the taxpayers pay them to work." He added, "it relieves us of one hell of a lot of responsibility."

Main himself predicts a big future for the air transport of prisoners.

"Sooner or later every prisoner in the nation will be moved by air," he explained, "because that's where the prisons will be —in orbit."

And, he added, "that will be the end of dramatic prison break outs."

Mills Amendment To Tax Gasoline Lead

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Sen. James R. Mills, D-San Diego, announced today he'll amend a grade separation bill to impose a tax on lead in gasoline.

Mills said the lead tax amendment would raise $106 million to be spent building highway overpasses and underpasses at railroad crossings.

Health Council Opposes Bruce's Plan To Drop Well-Baby Clinics

A recommendation by the Marin County administrator that the county health department's well-baby clinic be eliminated was opposed last night by the directors of the Marin Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

The directors unanimously endorsed a statement by a three-member committee that the clinics are essential for a needy segment of the population to receive medical care, president Ray K. Bolinger reported.

The elimination of the clinic program was proposed by County Administrator Alan Bruce in his May 5 report, in which he suggested laying off 31 employees and eliminating three departments in next year's budget.

Last night's report, prepared by Dr. Arthur R. Ablin, a Greenbrae pediatrician; Dorothy Foltz, a public health nurse, and Betty Downs, a mother, stated that money for the program could be saved, Bolinger said, by eliminating from the service families which can afford private medical care.

The directors also approved reducing their own budget for 1970-71 from the previously requested $34,706 to $18,497, Bolinger said. The reduction was made possible by matching federal funds.

Six directors were appointed to the board vacancies with a seventh to be chosen July 8 at 8 p.m. at the Hall of Justice at the Civic Center, Bolinger said.

The new directors include four members of the Marin Health Facilities Planning board that merged with the Comprehensive Health Planning Council this month. They are Benjamin W. Dial of Tiburon; Dr. Carroll A. Russell of San Rafael; Dr. John G. Siemens of Kentfield and Peter Ferrarese.

Also elected were Florence Gardner of San Anselmo, a mother of nine children, and Barbara Coffie of Point Reyes.

Agricultural Smog Proposal To Senate

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation drafted to cut down smog-producing agricultural burning has been passed by the Assembly despite charges by opponents that it merely was "a lot of tinsel."

The bill by Assemblyman William Ketchum, R-Paso Robles, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, went to the Senate on a 56-7 vote.

Financial Firm Takes New Name

After 84 years under the name of Marin County Savings and Loan Association, this San Rafael financial institution will do business as Bell Savings and Loan Association.

Application for the name change was made last March to the State Savings and Loan Commissioner by Marin County Savings and the San Mateo Savings and Loan Association following completion of their merger.

Bell Savings will operate as a wholly owned subsidiary of Pacific Coast Holdings, Inc., a holding company and diversified organization providing services and financial resources to the real estate industry.

J. W. Derryberry of Tiburon who was president of San Mateo Mutual, is president of Bell Savings. Fred S. Enemark, who has been executive vice president of Marin County savings, is executive vice president, manager and a director of Bell.

Rex T. Silvernale of San Rafael and Jack J. Craemer of Greenbrae are directors of the new association.

Under the name of Bell, the new association will maintain offices in San Rafael, San Mateo and Burlingame.

Marin Catholics Spur Peru Relief

Marin Catholic Social Services has established a collection center for items needed by Peruvian earthquake victims at its offices at 179 Los Ranchitos Road.

A spokesman said heavy clothing, blankets, sleeping bags, tents, canned foods and kitchen utensils are needed. The center is located adjacent to the offices' rear parking lot.

U.S. War Deaths Dip, Lowest Since April

SAIGON (UPI) — American battle deaths dropped last week to their lowest level since President Nixon ordered the invasion of Cambodia on May 1, the U.S. Command said Thursday.

In the week ended June 6, 119 American servicemen died and 1,211 were wounded in the Indochina War. This was the lowest total of dead since the week ended April 25, when 94 Americans were killed and 1,291 wounded.

GI Dies In Collision In Petaluma

SP/5 Ronald Lynn Wendell, 22, of Reno, Nev., was dead on arrival at Hillcrest Hospital.

Police said his car swerved across the center line, colliding with a car driven by James Collison Pruett, 44, of 4381 Middle Two Rock Road, Petaluma. Pruett was admitted to Hillcrest for observation.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma.

Sierra Air Crash Bodies Recovered

MARKLEEVILLE (UPI) — Alpine County sheriff's deputies Wednesday night recovered the bodies of two persons killed when their light plane crashed into Freel Peak on a flight from Fullerton six months ago.

Deputies identified the victims as Jerry Weiss, 35, an employe of a La Habra carpet firm, and Sandra Holland, 26, a buyer for a Los Angeles department store.

U.C. Regents Leak Vote On Davis Hiring

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Regents of the University of California say privately they voted 16-4 against rehiring Angela Davis, a Communist party member, as an assistant professor of philosophy at UCLA. The decision, they say, was based on her public speeches.

The decision to release her from the UCLA faculty was made at a closed-door session of the regents in San Francisco Monday.

In interviews, regents indicated the decision against rehiring Miss Davis was based on a policy statement from the American Association of University Professors. It called, they said, for faculty members to "exercise appropriate restraint in public speeches."

The Santa Monica Evening Outlook said in a copyrighted story that a major factor was an April 22 letter from Dean Franklin P. Rolfe of the UCLA College of Letters and Sciences to Vice Chancellor Davis S. Saxon saying that available funds should go to fill faculty positions with higher priorities.

Pacific Graduates

Five Marin students were graduated last week from the University of Pacific in Stockton. Receiving bachelor's degrees were Francis Huffman of Mill Valley, Richard Edelstein of San Anselmo, Sally Haase and Stephanie E. Vaning of San Rafael and Peter Mathews of Tiburon.

Lockheed Fiscal Aid Wins Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee voted today to grant an administration request for $200 million in contingency funds for the C5 super transport to assist the financially ailing Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

It rejected an amendment by Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., to delete the $200 million from the $2 billion military procurement authorization bill.

The fight against the funds, which are in addition to this year's regular authorization for the C5, will be renewed on the Senate floor when the bill is brought up, probably next month.

Officials Glum On Outlook For Youths' Summer Jobs

A lot of Marin young people are going to find themselves jobless this summer, Collie Gaines, program coordinator for the Governor's 1970 Summer Job Campaign for Youth, predicted today.

Speaking in a panel discussion on KTIM'S "Marin Sounding Board," she said, "The picture's not very bright and I don't want to paint it that way."

Also discussing the summer job outlook for Marin youth were James E. McKenna of the Marin Neighborhood Youth Corps; Horace White, Marin Human Rights Department youth worker; Norman Harrold, an equal employment opportunity officer at Hamilton Air Force Base; and Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the San Rafael employment office of the state Department of Human Resources Development.

Mrs. Gaines, referring to the number of unemployed Marin youth stated on a recent television program, "I've never tried to think of 2,000 youth looking for jobs. That frightens me when we've only been getting 80 or 90 jobs through EOC (Economic Opportunity Council) in the past."

Mrs. aGines and White com-plained that the job program doesn't have a chance since it started May 1 instead of Jan. 1, and Ayer added to their gloomy portrayal.

He said that between May 1 and Tuesday, his agency fitted 60 young people to jobs as opposed to 146 during the same period last year. Out of 205 pledges resulting from a television program only 15 have panned out as jobs, he said.

Harrold was in a better position because he had 44 Department of Defense jobs for needy students to offer during the summer. He said most have been filled, but he expects some turnover.

Summer employees start Monday at $1.65 an hour at the base, he said.

McKenna said the Neighborhood Youth Corps expects to find employment for about 140 at $1.50 per hour for 260 hours through September. Most of these jobs are with government or nonprofit organizations, he said.

White, who seemed as pessimistic as Mrs. Gaines, still plans to join her in hunting summer jobs. "Anyplace we can find a job we'll go," he said.

Asked by moderator Kitty Oppenheimer if the search will be successful he answered, "I hope so, but as you know summer is already here. It's hard to get 500 jobs at this late date."

Asked the same question, Mrs. Gaines replied, "I don't know what successful means in Marin." She charged Marinites are oblivious to the needs of youth, especially businesses.

The discussion will be rebroadcast at 10:05 a.m. Sunday on KTIM.

Welfare Slashing Bills Are Advanced

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation backed by Gov. Ronald Reagan to reduce state welfare spending by $87.4 million through restrictions on eligibility requirements has been approved by a Senate committee.

The two bills are part of the governor's program to revise the welfare system. The measures by Sen. H. L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, were sent to the full Senate Wednesday on voice votes by the Health and Welfare Committee.

Unruh Environment Bill Is Scuttled

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Jess Unruh's bill to establish a powerful state environmental quality control board was rejected on a 6-1 vote Wednesday by the Assembly Natural Resources Committee.

The measure, a major part of the Democratic gubernatorial nominee's conservation program, would authorize a seven-member board which would have veto power over projects proposed by other state agencies. Board members would be paid $20,000 a year.

Hour Power Blackout Hits West Novato

Electricity was cut off to 1,345 customers in west Novato at 9:10 a.m. today when a truck belonging to Basalt Rock Co., Inc., of McNears Point, San Rafael, broke a pole carrying a 12,000-volt live on Indian Valley Road at the Pacheco Ranch, according to manager Lee C. Wise of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Power was restored to most customers within an hour, he said.

Firemen Seek Raise In Novato

Novato firemen last night asked for pay raises averaging 8 per cent and a reduction in working hours, according to Fire Chief Jack Kidder.

Lt. Raymond E. Dougherty made the request for the Novato Firemen's Association. He compared the Novato fire department with others in Marin County and said this would bring the Novato fire department up to the county average. Kidder reported Novato firemen work 73 hours per week, compared to 70 elsewhere in the county.

The board received notice that final plans were completed for the annual chicken barbecue from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the Silviera Ranch on Highway 101 north of Novato.

Sonic Booms Again Tonight

Residents from Santa Venetia to Novato who have been awakened at night by the noise of supersonic planes taking off and returning to Hamilton Air Force Base, will experience the same thing tonight and tomorrow night, base officials reported today.

The 84th fighter interceptor squadron flying its F-106 Delta Darts, is taking part in a five-day exercise testing units of the 26th North American Air Defense Command Region.

The exercise or mock war is carried on late at night and early morning because there are few commercial flights in the air at that time, according to base officials.

58-Cent Tax Hike In Mill Valley's Budget?

Mill Valley City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has proposed a $2,182,000 budget for fiscal 1970-71, up from this year's $2,135,880.

If adopted by the city council, the budget would require a tax rate of about $3 per $100 assessed valuation, Cunningham said. This year's tax rate is $2.42.

"The total budget shows only a $36,133 increase over this year, but this is misleading," Cunningham said. "The city will have about $200,000 less gas tax money this year. Exclusive of this figure, the budget has increased about 9.5 per cent."

Cunningham attributes the need for raising taxes to a $38,000 deficit in the parks and recreation department this year, and an $8,000 drainage deficit; both must be absorbed in 1970-71.

The proposed budget includes a 7.5 per cent salary increase for city employees but no provision for more fringe benefits.

About a third of the budget must be raised by general fund taxes, limited by state law to $1 per $100 assessed valuation. Cunningham said next year's tax rate will be at that $1 ceiling, and also at the 30-cent ceiling for the city library.

Budget figures for major city departments for 1970-71, followed by this year's figures in parentheses, are:

Parks and recreation, $340,420 ($210,972); police, $243,361 ($216,669); fire, $205,703 ($165,585); streets, $187,215 ($128,829); sewers, $165,159 ($104,726); library, $137,322 ($140,726).

Debt retirement, $83,833 $84,421); nondepartmental, $74,970 (74,712); planning, $63,661 ($60,446); drainage, $52,300 (79,400); finance, $43,046 ($47,989); city manager, $30,460 ($28,165); general government, $29,799 ($16,679).

Much of the money in the largest departmental budget, parks and recreation, will go toward work on the city's yacht harbor, Cunningham said. The $63,685 total breaks down to $18,500 to Paul Fischer for engineering and professional services under a lease-option agreement; $17,705 for dredging of the Saucelito Canal, and $19,500 for various planning fees.

Capital improvement projects are $52,000 for streets, $27,300 for sewers, $31,700 for drainage, $10,000 for fire mains and $20,000 toward the purchase of a new fire truck, an equal amount to be budgeted next year.

Cunningham said he will present the budget to the city council by the end of the week. "It is $26,000 out of balance, but that is as close as I can make it," he said.

"The council will have to decide where its priorities are to balance it."

This year's budget contains a $50,000 contingency fund, but there is none in 1970-71. "We don't have the money for it," Cunningham said. "It's a luxury we can't afford."

Counts On Dismissal Made Public

The Novato School District board yesterday made public charges against Hill Junior High School mathematics teacher Wyman W. Kunzler, who was fired last month.

In a complaint for dismissal filed in Marin Superior Court, the board said that Kunzler "consistently teaches far beyond the comprehension of his students."

Among other things, he taught the "binomial theory" to beginning algebra classes as well as cube roots and he boggled the youngsters with 20-digit multiplication problems, the board charged.

Furthermore, he "discouraged students who failed to meet his unrealistic standards," marked down their grades for misbehavior and finally, he burdened them with his personal problems, the board added.

He was also accused of using physical means to discipline pupils.

Kunzler, who has taught at the school four years, was given notice of dismissal at a closed meeting May 11.

Motorcyclist Critical After Auto Crackup

Police said John A. May, of 376 Sunset Way, was riding his vehicle south on Camino Alto at 12:35 p.m. when a car driven by Lucie B. Mellor, 38, of 241 Solano Street, San Rafael, made a left in front of him at Sycamore Avenue.

Nixon Continues Loyalists' Switches

WASHINGTON (AP) — New title cards have been dealt to some Nixon administration loyalists, and an outspoken dissident has been fired, in the latest round of executive office shakeups.

President Nixon announced Wednesday he is switching George P. Shultz, who is making $600,000 a pear as secretary of Labor, to head of a superagency to handle domestic spending programs.

As leader of the new governmental unit—to be called the Office of Management and Budget, an expanded version of the old Bureau of the Budget—Shultz will keep his Cabinet rank but at only $42,500.

Just last Saturday, Robert H. Finch, accepting a similar salary slash in leaving his $60,000 job as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, became the first Nixon Cabinet member to move elsewhere. Nixon named him to the White House staff as a presidential counselor.

Nixon, who reached into the State Department for Undersecretary Elliot Richardson to succeed Finch at HEW, stayed within the Labor Department in tapping Undersecretary James Hodgson as successor to Shultz.

After the mid-afternoon disclosure of the Shultz switch, word came that James E. Allen, a critic of administration policies ranging from school desegregation to the military move into Cambodia, was fired as commissioner of education.

Finch announced he "asked for and received" the resignation—although the outgoing secretary's statement carried no explanation for the step.

Meanwhile, the U.S. ambassador to Columbia said he was resigning. Wednesay night, Jack Hood Vaughn said in Bogota he has submitted his resignation. But he denied reports of disenchantment with the administration's Latin American position.

In other personnel shuffling Wednesday:

—Caspar Weinberger, current chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, was picked to be deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, which starts operations July 1.

—Robert P. Mayo, who has directed the budget agency that will be abolished at the end of the month, was designated as a presidential counselor, but Nixon indicated Mayo will not remain long in government service. The President said Mayo had committed himself to only a brief tour.

Wednesday's revisions were the latest in a series of executive branch personnel changes.

It was learned Tuesday that James J. Gallagher, the government's No 3 education official, resigned with parting shots at federal school policies in general and the administration in particular.

A week earlier, June 3, Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, who complained of political intervention in scientific affairs and faltering White House leadership, was fired as director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

In early May, Anthony J. Moffett Jr. quit as head of the division of students and youth in the Office of Education, accusing the administration of derision of youthful antiwar demonstrators and alienation of youth in general.

Last Feb. 17, Leon E. Panetta resigned as head of HEW's civil rights division. He complained he was forced out, and he accused White House aides of undermining tough enforcement of antidiscrimination laws.

Two Burglary Suspects Jailed

Two San Rafael men were jailed yesterday after San Anselmo police found them at a house where the front door had been forced, San Anselmo police reported.

Police said they stopped the two at 1:33 p.m. as they walked from the porch at 283 Crescent Road, residence of Thomas B. Phinney. Police found the front door had been forced open and an attempt made to pry open a window.

Dennis Victor Chesley, 20, of 1445 Lincoln Avenue, and Robert S. Evans, 22, of 10 Sonoma Street, Apt. 7, were booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of burglary and held in lieu of

Jail Suspended In Petaluma Fray

A felony charge of assault on a police officer was dismissed yesterday against Raymond D. Miner, 19, of Santa Rosa, when he pleaded guilty in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court to misdemeanor charges of assault and battery and disturbing the peace.

Judge Alexander J. McMahon sentenced Miner to six months in the Sonoma County Jail, three years on probation and fined him $250. The judge suspended the jail term when Miner said he was in the Army and scheduled to leave for Vietnam on Saturday.

Miner was arrested Saturday after police encountered a jeering crowd while investigating a loud party at 506 West Street, Petaluma. Sgt. Jimmy J. Matthews said Miner attempted to strike him.

Judge Draws Censure By High Court

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The California Supreme Court Wednesday voted to publicly censure Superior Court Judge Gerald S. Chargin of San Jose for his derogatory remarks about Mexican-Americans.

The action, taken on recommendation of the State Commission on Judicial Qualifications, was the first time in history the high court had publicly censured a judge.

Chargin's remarks were made last September as he sentenced a 17-year-old youth for committing incest with his mentally retarded 15-year-old sister.

The court said the remarks "were insulting to the minor's family, offensive to large segments of the public, and caused widespread expressions of deep concern about the impartial administration of justice in California."

The judicial qualifications commission said in its recommendation to the court that it could find no other incidents of bais in Judge Chargin's career.

The judge told the teen-ager he was "lower than an animal," then added "Mexican people" believe "it's prefectly all right to go out and act like an animal...

"Maybe Hitler was right...." he said. "The animals in our society probably ought to be destroyed, because they have no right to live among human beings."

Hearing Aid Stolen From Parked Truck

A $341 hearing aid was stolen from a pickup truck belonging to Mario Bottini, 2050 Vineyard Road, Novato, between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Monday on C Street at Fourth Street, San Rafael police reported today.

A wind vent was broken to enter the parked truck.

Curb Santa Barbara Oil Rigs, Nixon Says

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today urged Congress to cancel offshore oil leases in the Santa Barbara Channel to prevent additional blowouts like the one which drenched the area with black crude oil 18 months ago.

The President's proposal would create a "marine sanctuary" seaward from the existing state sanctuary stretching 16 miles along the scenic Santa Barbara coast.

The President said holders of the 20 federal leases should be compensated for their losses with revenue from oil production from the Elk Hills naval petroleum reserve, also located in Southern California.

However, Nixon said to avoid additional oil pollution, "it will be necessary to continue pumping from three leases in the area.

"The oil beneath the channel where the 1969 blowout occurred is contained in a geological formation which was damaged by oil drilling. If not bled off, this high pressure oil would escape through zones of structural weakness causing further pollution."

"The legislation I am proposing would, therefore, allow production on these three leases under strict management controls," he said.

Nixon said in 1955 California banned oil exploration in the Santa Barbara area tidelands controlled by the state. But about 10 years later the federal government authorized drilling in federal controlled waters just outside of the state sanctuary.

The President said his proposal to cancel most of the leases "is based on the belief that immediate economic gains are not the only, or even the major, way of measuring the value of a geographic area.

"The ability of that area to sustain wildlife and its capacity to delight and inspire those who visit it for recreation can be far more important characteristics," Nixon said.

"The proposal for Santa Barbara illustrates our strong commitment to use offshore lands in a balanced, and reasonable manner," he said.

Senate Fuss Brews Over Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A stepped-up $775 million attack on air pollution has passed the House with great ease, but a fight could be brewing in the Senate over setting nationwide air quality standards.

The three-year extension and expansion of 1967 clean air legislation sailed through the House Wednesday, 374-1, directing that national air quality standards be set. The wide-ranging bill also deals with cars, plants, fuels and planes.

But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of a Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, said: "We're trying to work out something that would avoid the built-in traps of national standards."

The House bill directs the secretary of health, education and welfare to set national standards 30 days after enactment.

Pollutants to be regulated include sulfur oxides, particulate matter like dust, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and photo chemical oxidants. State could set stricter standards.

Muskie fears national standards could minimize control of air pollutants. He noted metropolitan areas require tougher standards than rural areas.

Under present law, air quality standards for adjoining areas are to be adopted by states on the basis of criteria set by HEW.

The House bill also puts each state in an air quality region. The existing statute directs HEW to establish air quality control regions. Muskie has favored this approach in the past.

House members, however, contend only a few such regions have been established so far under the three-year-old law.

The House bill would set authorized spending for federal air pollution programs, at $200 million a year beginning July 1. The level now is about $93 million to $96 million.

The funds would be increased to $250 million in the second year and $325 million in the last 12-month period. All amounts would be subject to actual appropriations at a later time.

During House debate, the biggest attack was directed toward writing even tougher language relating to automobile emissions. But all efforts to bolster auto standards failed.

Backers of these amendments also complained about the quick scheduling of the bill which, they said, prevented them from raising support for their ideas.

The House measure, in addition to the air quality provisions, also authorizes:

—National emission standards for stationary sources of pollution like power plants.

—Production-line testing of emission control devices on new cars. Only prototypes are presently tested.

—HEW, after hearings, to stop an additive from being used in fuels if it was found to endanger public health.

—HEW to set emission standards for aircraft to be administered by the Federal Aviation Administration.

—Government facilities to adhere to specified standards unless specific exemptions are provided for such things as national security or public health reasons.

Heroin Deaths Increase Sharply

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heroin deaths in San Francisco have increased from an average of 4 per year to 56 in the past 12 months, Coroner Henry W. Turkel says.

Turkel said Wednesday some merchant seamen or servicemen returning from the Orient have brought back doses too strong for many addicts.

He said also many users who have gone to prison were unable to cope with strong doses after they were released.

Soul Singer Breaks Apartheid Barrier

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—American Negro soul singer Percy Sledge has been granted permission to perform before South African white audiences, impressario Ronnie Quibell said today.

Approval came after some whites had darkened their skins to hear Sledge sing before nonwhite audiences, he said. Sledge will now be booked for a six-month tour of South Africa, Quibell said.

Residents Ask Change In Annexation Ruling

A group of residents of Lucky Drive in Greenbrae wants a change in the ruling that they must annex to the town of Corte Madera in order to join the Corte Madera Sanitary District. (Another commission story, page 1).

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission last October approved annexation of 15 acres along Lucky Drive to the sanitary district on the condition that it be annexed to the town.

Residents now have asked that the condition be lifted and last night commissioners tentatively set July 8 for a public hearing on their request.

Last month property owners voted 11 to 8 against annexation to the town.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission also:

OCEANA MARIN — Approved annexation of Oceana Marin Unit One, about 35 acres, near Dillons Beach, to the North Marin County Water District, so sewer service can be provided the 165 existing homes.

PARADISE DRIVE — Approved annexation of several acres between Paradise Drive and the Koch Luggage plant to the town of Corte Madera.

LARKSPUR — Approved annexation of 2.5 acres along the north side of Corte Madera Creek along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard East to the city of Larkspur.

GRANDI ANNEXATION — Approved annexation to San Rafael and the San Rafael Sanitation District, a 2.75-acre parcel owned by Charles Grandi at the end of Glenside Way in the Fairhills area of San Rafael.

NEXT MEETING — Tentatively set its next meeting at 8 p.m. July 8 at the Marin Civic Center.

Sullivan, 58, a native of Bolton, Mass., joined the FBI in 1941 and has been servig as assistant director of the domestic intelligence division.

He will succeed Cartha D. DeLocah ,who is retiring July 20 on his 50th birthday.

Suspect Freed On Weapons Charges

A felony charge of possessing a marlin spike and thong against Michael William Plunkett, 29, of Larkspur, has been dismissed in Marin Municipal Court for lack of evidence.

Plunkett was arrested during a routine traffic check on March 24 when a sherrif's deputy said he noticed the weapon in the car in which Plunkett was a passenger.

$6 Million Suit Over Kent Death

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The father of 19-year-old Allison Krause, one of four Kent State University students killed during a May 4 confrontation with National Guardsmen, has filed a $6 million wrongful death suit against Ohio officials.

Arthur Krause of Pittsburgh, Pa., filed the suit in U.S. District Court here Wednesday. He named as defendants Gov. James A. Rhodes; the Ohio National Guard commander, Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, and Brig. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury, head of Ohio's Army National Guard units.

Krause charged that the defendants ordered the National Guard to the campus and in so doing "intentionally and maliciously disregarded the lives and safety of students, spectators and passersby, including Allison Krause."

GRADUATION COMES TO STUDENT

Surrounded by classmates and teachers, Bruce E. Yarchin receives his eighth grade diploma at home from Sister Joseph Celine, principal of St. Rita's School, Fairfax. Recent hospitalization kept Bruce from attending graduation, so graduation ceremonies, attended by all but one of his classmates, came to him. Muscular dystrophy has confined Bruce to a wheelchair since second grade, but help of fellow students and teachers and his own determination and cheerfulness enabled him to graduate. "During the eight years he's been at St. Rita's we've never heard him complain once," said Sister Joseph. "He certainly is a good soldier." Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick S. Yarchin, 20 Garden Rock Road, San Anselmo. (Independent-Journal photo)

Corte Madera Shore Park Favored; Where Is Issue

The idea of a 50-acre county park on the Corte Madera bayfront won unanimous endorsement of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday.

A motion to endorse the concept in principle, made by Albert J. Boro, carried 7 to 0. However, a second motion by Boro, locating the park on the Dominic Muzzi property, created a 4-to-3 split.

If the county board of supervisors approves $100,000 for a Corte Madera bayfront park in the 1970-71 budget, Boro moved that the park and recreation staff should work with Corte Madera toward acquiring 50 acres of the Muzzi property.

In favor were Boro, Leroy M. Gerner, Herber C. Leney, and Raymond Bresnan. Opposed were Chairman Lothar Salin, Melton Ferris and Helen E. Newman.

Ferris objected because the 50-acre park plan is part of Corte Madera's Westshore Plan, which calls for a county park surrounded by private development including motels, townhouses, and marina on the Muzzi property. "It is completely inappropriate to endorse the plan of a private developer which isn't even officially adopted by the Town of Corte Madera," said Ferris.

The major benefit of such a park in the Westshore Plan would go to Corte Madera, said Salin. He argued that the town should pay for at least a part of the cost.

"It isn't wise to tie it down to Corte Madera," observed Mrs. Newman. She said the Corte Madera bayfront includes lands in Larkspur and in the county. "I don't want to see the money tied in to this plan or even necessarily to Corte Madera."

Ronald L. Usher, Corte Madera town manager, explained the Westshore Plan and urged the commission to approve the 50-acre county park concept.

He said the town's Westshore Plan is running into difficulty before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission because the BCDC plan still includes a 200-acre dump-and-fill park proposed three years ago by Pierre W. Joske, director of county parks and recreation.

Corte Madera rejected the 200-acre park to be created by dump and fill in 1968 but is now pushing for a 50 -acre county park as part of the Westshore Plan.

Candlelight Killer Suspect Nabbed

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Police Lt. Ed Stevens said today a man captured in a Colorado gun battle has waived extradition and will be brought to San Diego Friday to face a charge of murdering a male nurse.

The murder warrant delivered Wednesday night to Colorado Springs names Robert W. Liberty, 23, in the "candlelight killer" slaying last weekend, Stevens said.

Robert Irion, 53, was found strangled and stabbed to death. Burning candles were by his body. A message scrawled in pencil on a closet door said, "the candlelight killer strikes again."

Liberty, a former California mental patient, was captured early Thursday after a motel owner in Colorado Springs was robbed.

Chainsaws can start fires. Be sure yours is properly muffled and use care in filling the tank. Machinery use started almost 23,000 fires in California in 1969.

Mailliard Still In Nixon's War Corner

In spite of a shower of mail opposing President Richard M. Nixon's Cambodian decision, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said he still supports the President's policy.

In a newsletter to his constituents, Mailliard said, "The President's decision prompted an estimated 15,000 Bay Area residents to send letters and telegrams to me. A large majority of those who wrote disagree with the President's decision."

Nevertheless, Mailliard said, he supports the maneuver "on the basis that the destruction of enemy sanctuaries was related to an overall strategy of withdrawal of American forces from South Vietnam."

He said that although many interpret the Cambodian campaign as a reversal of policy, facts demonstrate the administration's commitment to orderly disengagement from Southeast Asia.

In addition to evaluating the letters, Mailliard said he has met with about 300 university students from his constituency.

Although there were differences of opinion on how to end the war, Mailliard said, "I found that our views were quite similar in that we share a deep concern for domestic problems and want an early end to the war."

July's Draft Call Set For 15,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A July draft call of 15,000 men was issued today by the Pentagon. It is the same as the quotas previously set for May and June.

The announcement indicated anew that the total draft for 1970 is expected to be between 150,000 and 180,000 men.

The July indictions will bring the total for the first seven months to 114,500, with the draft during the last five months of the year apparently between 35,500 and 65,500.

The draft quotas for February, March and April were 19,000 each. For January, there were 12,500 inductions.

Melton Ferris Ends Planning Panel Career

Melton Ferris of Bolinas, past chairman and member of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission for five years, will go off the commission when his term expires July 2.

Yesterday was Ferris' last commission meeting. He told his colleagues he has served two terms and wants to get off the commission. He is an at-large member of the commission, with a two-year term.

"We'll miss you," said Chairman Lothar Salin. "I hope the board (of supervisors) will appoint someone to succeed you with the same qualities and the ability to probe and sometimes ask embarrassing questions."

Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners also:

VACATION — Heard from Director Pierre W. Joske that he will be on vacation from June 29 to Aug. 11. James Vande Weg, park development coordinator, will serve as acting director during Joske's absence.

Hub Mayor Writes Nixon On War Issue

In an open letter to President Nixon, San Anselmo Mayor James F. Reed makes the point that the San Anselmo City Council's refusal to take a position against the Asian war did not mean support of the war.

Reed, who cast the deciding vote in the 3-2 decision, wrote the president that he agreed wholeheartedly with a request for withdrawal of U. S. troops, but "I do not feel I was elected. . .to speak for the citizens of San Anselmo on other than municipal affairs."

But as a citizen, he wrote, "I have a duty" to speak out. "No issue in anyone's memory has split and divided our country as this one has. . ."

"For the good of the United States. . .end our involvement in the hostilities. Honor can be admitting that we are wrong, and in this instance I firmly believe we are."

The council on May 27 declined to take an official position calling for American withdrawal, despite pleas during an hour-long hearing that it send Nixon a letter calling for a June 30, 1971, deadline for withdrawal.

Antipoverty Agency Gives Nod To Job Descriptions

Directors of Marin's antipoverty agency approved job descriptions last night for three employees of its proposed emergency food and medical service program.

The economic opportunity council board approved work guidelines for a director, a job which will pay between $650 and $750 monthly; warehouse inventory clerk, $450-$500 monthly, and bus-truck driver, $2.67 an hour.

The program, awaiting approval of $80,000 in federal funds, would provide food and medical service to low income persons on an emergency basis. It is an outgrowth of the agency's current volunteer program, Project HELP.

Food distribution centers would be established at EOC facilities in Marin City, San Rafael, Novato, and possibly at a location in West Marin.

In other matters, the board approved an emergency application for $13,000 in federal funds to save the threatened new careers phase of the Head Start program and tabled until its next meeting July 1 action on proposed resumption of the Marin City secretarial school.

The $13,000 would enable adult job hopefuls in the Head Start program to attend training as teacher assistants, cooks, community workers and clerks at College of Marin and Sonoma State College.

The secretarial school ended with the close of the agency's fiscal year March 30 and in order to be revived, a funding application must be approved first by the Marin City Target Area Board of EOC, due to meet Monday night.

Marijuana Case Being Probed

No charge was filed yesterday against Steven Harris Milliken, 19, of no known address, who was arrested in Ross earlier in the day on suspicion of possessing marijuana, hashish and narcotics paraphernalia.

The case was to be investigated further by the district attorney's office.

State's Total Output Hits New Record

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Bank of California Wednesday reported the state's total production of goods and services set an all-time high during the past month and were 5.4 per cent higher than a year ago in the same period.

The new high was estimated at $110.4 billion during May, the bank reported, but the new high could be short-lived because a slight decline was anticipated in June in the gross state products factor.

The bank measures economic activity in the institution's tri-state service area. The report encompasses production of both goods and services in determining its gross state product figure.

Horsemen Set Rodeo Plans For Novato

Committee chairmen for the Novato Horsemen's 12th annual rodeo, scheduled for 1 p.m. June 21 were announced today by William R. Evenich, president.

The rodeo is the climax to the four-day Western Weekend Country Fair celebration, June 18 through 21 in Novato. The rodeo usually draws a capacity crowd, coming on father's day.

Lloyd A. Loftus and Evenich are co-chairmen of the rodeo; Neil Cullins, chairman of the rodeo kick-off dinner and dance at 7 p.m. Saturday in the horsemen's clubhouse; John A. Church, grounds chairman; Martha Wright, ticket sales; Mrs. P. Thomas Carson, in charge of the clubhouse; Alfred Bellucci, James Kimbell and Cullins, food and drink concessions.

Loftus, of 1848 Indian Valley Road, will supervise the businessmen's calf-tying event. Entry blanks may be obtained from him.

Any local cowboy may compete in any event. Entry blanks may be obtained from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 19 at the clubhouse.

The stock this year is furnished by the Golden State Rodeo Co., a newly formed company.

Debutante Parties Added To Calendar

By MOLLY MARIN

Although the Marin debutantes will be busy for three days next week with a special volunteer orientation andtour of Marin social service agencies, they also are receiving some party invitations for the summer months.

On June 23 Mrs. Russell Smith of Ross will be hostess at a tea at her home in honor of her deb granddaughter, Martha Hunter Smith of Atlanta. Martha is spending the summer with her grandparents and will return to Marin to bow at the Marin Debutante Ball in December.

Another tea is on the deb calendar for June 26, when Mrs. John Dowling Relfe will give a tea for her niece, Marin deb Jennifer Relfe. The party will be held at the hostess' Green Street home in San Francisco.

A supper dance aboard the cruise vessel "Harbor King" is scheduled for Aug. 15 for the debs and their escorts. Hosts will be the Gene Vayssies and Edwin Burmesters. The honorees will be Nancy Vayssie and Jane Wilsey, Mrs. Burmester's daughter.

THE WALTER LONGS of Corte Madera are packing to leave on a six weeks tour of England and Europe. In London they plan to meet their daughter, Linda, who has been attending the University of Bordeaux this year. Linda is planning to return to attend the University of California in the fall, where she is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

ENDING A 43-day cruise of the South Pacific and touring the Orient are the Charles L. McInnises of Kentfield. During their trip they visited Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan. The McInnises returned aboard the liner President Wilson.

A 30TH WEDDING anniversary dinner will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Guerin of Terra Linda on Sunday by their four children. The Guerins were married June 15, 1940, in New York City.

GERRY AND Penny Igl and their three children, formerly of Mill Valley, who moved to Seattle last year, will arrive this week to spend a few days as home guests of the Philip Yorks. Friends are planning some small gatherings of their old friends from Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Mill Valley and the Bohemian Club in San Francisco.

DR. AND MRS. Rodney B. Hartman have recieved news that their third granddaughter was born Saturday. The baby, who is the first child of Mr. and Mrs. John Nicholas Hartman of Stockton, has been named Kristie Lynn Hartman. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams of Santa Rosa are the maternal grandparents.

Miss Bonomi To Be Wed

An Aug. 15 wedding date has been set by Rose Marie Bonomi of Petaluma for her marriage to Charles Yelton at St. Vincent de Paul Church in Petaluma.

A graduate of Petaluma High School, the bride-elect is the sister of Margaret and Shirley Bonomi of Petaluma. Mr. and Mrs. John Robustelli of Cotati are her grandparents.

Charles, who is employed in Concord, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt Yelton of Petaluma and his sisters are Becky and Patty Yelton, also of Petaluma.

MR. AND MRS. John Dalton are on a wedding trip to Montana and Canada following their marriage at Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur. The bride is the former Virginia Lynne Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug G. Brown of Greenbrae, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dalton of Oakland. (Faulkner photo)

Labor Department's Women's Bureau Celebrates 50 Years

By DONALD FINLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Back in 1920, a congressman predicted that "men may deeply regret the entrance of women into the commercial, industrial and professional fields."

Despite his misgivings, Congress voted that year to establish a Women's Bureau in the Labor Department "to formulate standards and policies which shall promote the welfare of wage-earning women, improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency and advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

Women workers have come a long way since then and the Women's Bureau, which helped them make those gains, celebrates its 50th anniversary with a national conference opening here today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, director of the bureau, said the three-day conference is expected to draw about 1,000 men and women. The theme is "American Women at the Crossroads: Directions for the Future."

Mrs. Koontz was one year and two days old when the bill establishing the Women's Bureau was signed into law by President Woodrow Wilson on June 5, 1920.

Rep. John MacCrate, N. Y., may have expressed the prevailing feeling in Congress when he said men might regret the entrance of women into the work force. But reviewing the way women had filled many industrial jobs during World War I, he also conceded that "We are face to face with a fact of live."

In 1920 only 23 per cent of U. S. women held jobs. This has grown to 43 per cent now and women today account for about one out of every four workers in the labor force. They hold jobs in almost all fields of work.

The Women's Bureau has been in the forefront of the fight for legislation to give them equal job protection and opportunities. For instance, the Equal Pay Act of 1963 prohibits paying women less than men for identical work, and the 1964 Civil Right Act prohibits job discrimination based on sex.

Back in 1920, only two states — Michigan and Montana — had equal pay laws and none of the states had laws prohibiting employment discrimination based on sex. Mrs. Koontz also points out that working conditions for women, as well as men and children, back in 1920 were intolerable.

A government survey just prior to World War I showed that women and children were working as long as 16 hours a day without overtime in old buildings in which the windows were nailed shut and the roar of power machinery was deafening. Sanitary conditions and fire hazards often were equally bad.

Mary Anderson, a Swedish immigrant who was the first director of the Women's Bureau, told in her autobiography of one tour she made to investigate working conditions. She said women in a carborundum factory worked in metallic dust so thick they could hardly see more than a few feet away. She visited another plant where women were making storage batteries, "a very perilous occupation for women because the effects of lead poisoning are especially serious for them, causing sterility, miscarriages and death of babies during the first year of their lives."

Mrs. Koontz said a pattern followed by many modern women is to work during their teens and early 20s, before and right after marriage. Then they drop out of the labor force to have children and re-enter the job market at about age 30, after all the children are in school.

She said this is borne out by statistics showing that the average woman worker in 1920 was single and 28. Now she is married and 39.

Mrs. Koontz by no means considers the bureau's job to be finished. She says women often are relegated to lower-paying jobs, denied admission to some occupations, assigned quotas in others and generally discriminated against in a business world still managed mostly by men, many of whom may still have lingering feelings that women belong in the home.

Lettuce

Lettuce thrives in a moist-cold atmosphere. But it should not be allowed to rest in water, as this speeds spoilage and causes rust spots. Enclosed in a proper container, it can go on any refrigerator shelf, without crowding the crisper or vegetable bin.

'Irene' Acts Real Woman Role

By CLIVE RUSSELL

London Express Service

Nyree Dawn Porter has never been a tragic figure. The success and wealth that came with "The Forsyte Saga" were welcome but unnecessary. Acting is her pleasure and a quiet home life her relaxation.

When her husband died in the spring she indulged in none of the public grief expected of an actress. But his death has been a personal tragedy. Although they had no children in the 11 years of their marriage, Nyree said that she would like a baby, "Because it would be awful to end up with a modicum of success and no children."

She has already ensured herself more than a modicum of success, but she used to speculate that she might give up acting when she had a family, as she is by nature obsessional, concentrating on one thing at a time.

"Maybe one day I'll go back to New Zealand when I have children," she once said. "But not for the moment. It's a hell of a long way to run back to mother."

NYREE IS not the running-home kind. Bad luck has dogged her career but she has shrugged it off, appearing not to notice. At 17 she had to give up a ballet career because she grew too tall. At 25 she missed two consecutive star theater roles because of accident and illness on the eve of opening. It was only after years of leading television and stage roles for which she earns professional praise but little public reputation, save for being unlucky, that she won fame in "The Forsyte Saga."

"It proves what I've always maintained," said Nyree Dawn Porter. "You don't have to strip to be sexy'.' She had just played a scene in the Saga in which her husband virtually raped her, tearing off her blouse but baring nothing more titillating than full-length underwear that wouldn't have shamed a Salvation Army worker. Yet the scene swelled her already vast fan mail and moved one critic to charge it with having a traumatic effect on the sex life of the British male.

NYREE WAS made by "The Forsyte Saga." But not formed by it. Softly beautiful, blonde, honey skinned and husky-voiced she is a natural for roles in which she could be proclaimed a new Marilyn Monroe. She has been avoiding such roles since she arrived in England as New Zealand's Miss Cinema in 1958.

"I was a beautiful, singing, dancing doll from New Zealand. And that was the only way anyone would ever look at me — not as an actress."

So after starring in one West End revue she turned down glamorous roles and was out of work for the next six months.

Nyree shouldn't really have been in England at all. She had been entered in the Miss Cinema competition by a friend who hadn't even told her. The prize was a three week trip to England and a film test. The film test never materialized, but Nyree stayed anyway, with her actor husband.

She was 21 and for all her melting looks already a trouper. As a girl she trained for ballet but grew too tall at five and a half feet, so she opened her own ballet school at 17. At 19 she was a star of the New Zealand Players' Theatre Trust and at 21 she left Napier for a three week trip and never returned.

By the early '60s Nyree had broken into TV and the theater. But since she avoided her natural type-casting as a dolly she wasn't widely known when the casting for Forsyte began.

WHAT SHE plays has always been even more important for Nyree than for most actresses.

"I get totally immersed in the characters I'm playing and often carry them over into my private life. I've been acting since I was three and a half and since then I've done everything. I played an Indian whore, a frigid virgin, Madame Bovary, before people were finally convinced that I could do more than simply wear clothes well.

"I don't care what I act in provided the part I play is of a real woman and not a type. I nearly always played wicked women until Irene. There's nothing so satisfying as playing a really wicked woman. Virtue's so dull, isn't it?"

Irene was virtuous, but her complexity compensated for it.

"I feel I know what made her the woman she was," says Nyree. "A woman so hurt by her early life that she closed up and lived within herself when she couldn't deal with the people around her. I would love to have been alive in the days she lived."

The Saga was quite real to Nyree while she was filming it. She would go home shattered when one of the characters died. She is, in fact, a highly vulnerable person; able to take care of herself professionally and present a confident face to the world but privately far less secure than she seems.

"I'm terribly shy. I've had to give up using public transport because people look at me and it makes me feel a freak.

"I was amazed to find that nobody in the cast knew how terrified I was during rehearsals," she said when she returned to the theatre in "The Duel," after Forsyte. "Not even the producer knew. He thought I was very confident. I thought it was glaringly obvious. I used to go off into the loo and throw up."

Ever concerned not to become typecast, Nyree went to Hollywood in 1967, after "The Forsyte Saga," to find a rougher, less refined role and to change medium to films. She was tested for "McKenna's Gold" but bad luck pursued her. Gregory Peck rejected her as his co-star — at 30 she looked too young.

Back in England she has played Shaw's "St. Joan" on stage, done a light comedy TV series and recited Aristophenes' Lysistrata at the Albert Hall.

She looks set to repeat her Forsyte success with the role of Blanche Ingram in "Jane Eyre," with Susanah York in the title role and George C. Scott and Ian Bannen.

NYREE LIKES to live a quiet country life, painting when she finds time, surrounded with animals. Money and fame are welcome but unimportant.

"I have no sense of the value of money. I want the acting itself rather than the fame. I've always been a terribly satisfied person. I don't think I could have dealt with success when I was young and less experienced; I don't envy anyone who becomes successful quicker than I did. I suppose it would be much more interesting if what I wanted was men and booze, but I don't."

Marin Women

NOTED FOR her role of Irene in the "Forsythe Saga," Nyree Dawn Porter has been avoiding Marilyn Monroe type roles since she arrived in England as New Zealand's Miss Cinema in 1958.

Drying Lingerie

There is no need to put lingerie in the dryer. Instead, take it directly from the washer and fold lengthwise, laying items across the top of the dryer or some other flat surface. They'll dry quickly and look smooth, crisp, and new.

This is probably how you feel about fashion.

Don't. It isn't all that complicated. The clothes you're wearing today won't be obsolete tomorrow. Which isn't to say there isn't a new feeling in fashion. There definitely is. It's been coming on for a year now. It's a softer feeling. Less constructed. Leaner and longer. And the new lengths are one perfect expression of it. But it can be achieved many other ways. Via boots. Or pants, Or stockings that are a color extension of your dress. So stop wondering whether to midi or not to midi - that isn't the question. Of course, you'll midi. You'll want to. But you'll want to do lots of other things too. Including wearing most of the clothes in your closet.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Bright, Popular Student Feels Like A Circus Horse Doing Tricks

DEAR HELEN:

I've started to write you many times, but never finished the letters. It all sounds crazy and selfish. I have everything, yet I'm so depressed I dream of killing myself.

I have great parents, a nice home, many friends, a part time job. I'm in the top ten percent of my class and college bound. That's a big part of my problem, I guess.

The work is twice as hard in my advanced classes, and the pressure and competition is fantastic. My pride forces me to keep up, pretend it's a breeze, but if college is to be the same, can I take six more years?

Lately I've begun to doubt the validity of grades, school, society, life. When you don't have time left to read the books you love because you have too much meaningless homework; when you can't see the subject because of the grades; when you cram for exams (or waste time on dull reports) on courses that have no relevance but will only get you into college, well, it's like you were two people. The free, honest part of you is floating invisible but close, watching that fireball down there and wondering, "How long will she keep on fooling them? When will she break:"

And the fireball, with her urge to excel and make people proud of her, keeps driving for "As," and wishing that other self would go away and leave her alone.

My two selves clash on social pressures too. My clique is safe, secure, like my family.

Our little world isn't open to those others who might not think as we do. In fact, you're a traitor if you think differently. My invisible self hates the narrow, gossipy snobbishness, and again wonders, "How long?"

I feel trapped and frustrated. I can't change the world because I can't even change myself. I try reaching out to people not in my group, but there's sort of a mutual distrust. I can't confide in my "don't care" friends. Even my parents don't really listen.

It's horrible to be thought of as popular but to be so all alone. I want to get involved in worthwhile things, but I'm so busy preparing myself for a life I don't want that I've forgotten how to live.

So long as I perform, like a circus horse going through its tricks, I'm a sweet child, a credit to the school. It's all so phony.

I guess I'm a self-pitying brat who doesn't know when she's got it good, but lately I dream more and more of joining that invisible me even if I must cop out to do it. But that would admit failure, something I mustn't even think about. Do I need a psychiatrist or —

How can I get together with myself again? — THE TWO OF ME

DEAR ME:

Your letter says so very well what many young people are thinking these days: You resent false values, are impatient at time wasted on meaningless pursuits, yet you feel guilty for not appreciating your good life. You are an achiever who wonders if the achievements are worthwhile, but you're caught on the treadmill because you must excel.

It's an occupational hazard of being brilliant—to be upset with a world that pays too much attention to unnecessary things; bothered by the mercenary aspects of life — and worried because you fear you may fall into that trap, too.

More than a psychiatrist, I think you need long talks with the kind of involved person you hope to be — a teacher, counselor, minister: Someone who has been through it. Perhaps he'd show you that even those stupid assignments may make some sense. I'm sure he'd help you realize we must take that which we sometimes don't like in order to reach a point (a college degree) where we can change the system for the better later on. It takes patience. — H.

MRS. JOHN DAVIS

Mrs. Davis Is Elected

Mrs. John Davis has been elected to serve as the new president of St. Vincent's School for Boys Women's Auxiliary for the coming year.

One of the founding members when the auxiliary was organized three years ago, she has served as chairman for several of its fund-raising events for the group, including the Golden Gate Arabian Horse Show and annual barbecue at the school.

She and her husband, who is an executive with the General Insurance Co. of America, live in Corte Madera. Aside from her work with the St. Vincent's Auxiliary, Mrs. Davis enjoys ice skating, water skiing and entertaining in her home.

Other officers for the year are Mmes. Jane Brown, vice president; Richard Tarrant, corresponding secretary; Victor Frugoli, secretary; and Richard Lane, treasurer.

Food Waste

The average American family wastes about 400 pounds of edible food in the course of a year. That means this country wastes more than 10 million tons of food each year. So reports the Consumers Information Guide of the Westchester County, N.Y. Savings Bank.

Boots Go On

Boots for the smartly dressed woman just go on and on. They show for fall and winter in soft, crushed suede, in shiny vinyl-like finishes, in kid, and even patterned brocades and the like for evening. Favorite height for daytime: just below the knee. Favorite material with many designers; the reptile patterns.

It's Dryer-Safe

Most elasticized foundation garmets are made with spandex and may be safely dryer-dried. Garments containing rubber, however, should be air-dried.

Nancy O'Connell Engaged To Wed

Announcement of the engagement of Nancy O'Connell to Michael Lombardi has been made by her parents Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Connell of Petaluma.

She is the sister of Martin, Maureen, Kevin and Brian O'Connell all of Petaluma.

Michael, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lombardi, is the brother of Lee Lombardi and grandson of Mrs. Mildred Silveria and N. Lombardi, all of Petaluma.

Both are graduates of Petaluma High School who attended Santa Rosa Junior College.

Oceans Are Dying, Says Cousteau

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The world's oceans may be dead in 30 years and mankind about 50 years later unless pollution is curtailed, says Jacques. Cousteau.

The undersea explorer, in an interview, said housewives can help avert disaster by buying only things which don't contribute to pollution.

"If the women would refuse to buy goods in nondestructible containers and refuse to use non biodegradable products, the situation could be altered fast," Cousteau said Tuesday.

He said huge quantities of chemicals are pouring into the sea, destroying tiny plant life. Said Cousteau:

"The world gets 80 per cent of its oxygen from the ocean and these minute plants are the things that produce it. Without them, we are dead, literally.

"I have been diving since 1936, and I would say that since then we have gone halfway to destroying the ocean. But, of course, we are doing it much faster today."

But, said Cousteau, "there is an awareness among the public and industry and there are signs of something being done."

ON THE AGENDA

Panhellenic Association Hosts Party For College-Bound Women

A party for college-bound women interested in pledging sororities will be held by the Marin County City Panhellenic Association Monday at 11 a.m. A members' meeting will precede the party, which is an opportunity for the seniors to meet other women planning to go to the college of their choice. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. George Herrero, 234 South Ridgewood, Kentfield.

THE WELSH-AMERICAN Society of the San Francisco Bay Area will have a covered dish picnic Sunday in the clubhouse of the Muir Woods Improvement Association, according to Jane Jones Calkins of Mill Valley.

Singing and entertainment for young people will be featured. The clubhouse and its setting are similar to the mountain chapels by the sea in Wales, Miss Jones says. Her home, "Bwthyn Bryn," near Muir Woods, will be open for inspection.

THE COLEMAN Fun Fair held Saturday at Forest Meadow in San Rafael raised approximately $6,800, according to Mrs. Francis X. Kelly, president of the Coleman School Parent-Teacher Association and chairman of the fair.

Funds will be used to plant grass, install a sprinkler system and lay asphalt in the school yard.

The fair was attended by approximately 6,000 persons.

NEW OFFICERS installed by Dunham Elementary School Parent-Teacher Association in Petaluma are Mmes. Gerald Skoff, president; Lester Tunzi, vice president; Jim Tunzi, secsetary; Sam Aggio, treasurer; Eleanor Miller, honorary vice president; Joe DeAlesandro, historian; Chuck Bricker, auditor; and Harold Rowan, parliamentarian.

TOMALES SCHOOL Parent-Teacher Association has elected Mrs. Dolores Lawson as its president for the coming school year. Serving as other officers will be Ralph Nixon, auditor; and Mmes. Alice Bonini, treasurer; Ann Jensen, vice president; Jody McDowell, secretary; Barbara Whitner, parliamentarian; and Connie Poncia, historian.

AN EXPERIENCED potter will demonstrate her craft to the Young Wives Group of Church of Our Saviour in Mill Valley during their meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Strawberry home of Mrs. Douglass Nadeau.

THE MARIN County Chapter of American ORT will meet at the home of Barbara Babou in San Rafael for a "Beat the Heat" swim party and barbecue Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Present and prospective members and their husbands and friends are invited. Mrs. Stephen Jaffee of Greenbrae is reservations chairman.

Jean Frick Wed To Roy Newman

Jean Katherine Frick of Mill Valley became the bride of Roy Newman Saturday in an 8 p.m. ceremony at the Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera, followed by a reception in the church social hall.

Maid of honor for the bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Frick of Mill Valley, was Sherri Bitgood of Mill Valley, and best man was Jeff McAllister of Novato.

On their return from a camping trip in Northern California the couple will live in Novato.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School, Jean attended Sonoma State College one year. She is the sister of James, Robert and William Frick of Mill Valley.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Carl Anfinson of Arcata and Roy Newman of Fairfield, served with the Army two years and is employed with Motorcycles Unlimited in Corte Madera. He has three brothers, Wayne, Bruce and Chris.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Let's Face It, The Average Players Makes Plenty Of Goofs

If bridge columnists wrote about the game as it is really played, there would be rioting in the streets and blood in all the bridge clubs. We pretend that the average player makes a mistake once an evening; but the fact is that the old boy pulls a dozen boners every hour — and some of them are so bad that it pains me to write about them. Nevertheless, I will muffle my moans while relating what took place on today's hand.

TAKES WITH JACK

West led the seven of spades, and South won the first trick with the jack. If you want to take time out for a few moans of your own over this atrocious play, you will be forgiven.

South might have recovered if the ace of clubs had appeared promptly, but when South led the king and then the queen of clubs East was shrewd enough to hold off. Now South could set up dummy's clubs, but he couldn't get to dummy to cash the last two clubs.

Declarer struggled on, but he wound up with only eight tricks. The defenders got three hearts, a diamond and a club, defeating the contract.

ALMOST TOO OBVIOUS

The correct play is almost too obvious to write about. South must win the first trick with the ace of spades instead of with the jack.

South goes after the clubs, knocking out the ace sooner or later. The defenders are then in position to take two hearts if they like, but that merely gives South an extra trick. Nothing can prevent declarer from reaching dummy with the king of spades for the rest of the clubs. He therefore wins two spades, three diamonds and four clubs, scoring game and rubber.

CLIP THIS COLUMN

If you know players who habitually pull this kind of boner, clip this column and mail it to them. And be sure to throw your own mail away unopened for the next week or so.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1-No trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 9 5 2
♥- Q 7 4
♦- J 10 9 7
♣- A 6 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Since you have only seven points, the combined count can be only 23 to 25 points. At best, this is not enough for game. Pass and let your partner play an easy hand for a change.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, June 11, the 162nd day of 1970 with 203 to follow.

The moon is in its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1920 Ohio Sen. Warren Harding was summoned to a Chicago hotel room and informed he had been chosen as the dark horse Republican candidate for president. He won the election the following November.

In 1927 Charles Lindbergh was welcomed home by President Calvin Coolidge after his historic solo flight across the Atlantic Ocean.

In 1963 federalized national guard troops stood by as Gov. George Wallace allowed two Negroes to enroll at the University of Alabama.

In 1969 labor leader John L. Lewis, president emeritus of the United Mine Workers Union, died at the age of 89.

A thought for the day: Miguel de Cervantes said, "Tell me thy company and I'll tell thee what thou art."

Burglars Take $156 In Clothing

Burglars Monday night took $156 worth of men's clothing from Macy's Department Store, Fourth and Court streets, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A burglar alarm at 10:04 p.m. summoned police and store personnel, but the loss was not discovered until janitors arrived for morning cleanup yesterday.

Metal bars were pried apart and a ground-floor window broken to enter the building.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Expiring U.S. Notes Eligible For Trading

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My wife recently purchased five Treasury notes and was told that they are not renewable. It was my understanding that a holder of Treasury notes would be eligible for new offerings by exchanging maturing issues for new ones. — G.N.

A. The Treasury financing operation in May (I assume this is the one to which you refer) included $16.56 billion of notes offered in exchange for maturing issues and a $3.5 billion cash offering. This was the Treasury's first cash offering of notes made since August, 1968. The fact that your wife's purchase was a cash one should not alter the possibility of exchange when the notes mature.

When the Treasury announces refunding plans, expiring notes or bonds which are eligible for exchange are specified. In other words, Treasury cash requirements at maturity determine whether a note or bond is to be allowed to expire or to be ligible for exchange. Two-thirds of bonds and notes reaching maturity over an 18-month period through early 1968 were exchanged. Prior to an exchange offering, the Treasury makes a public announcement of its plans, which is carried by the press. You should watch for these announcements well in advance of the maturity date of your note.

Q. I realize that the drop in the market affects most individual issues but the drop in Ampex is greater than most. Is there something basically wrong with the company? — G.B.

A. Sharp declines resulting from investor dumping of basically sound glamor stocks frequently signal the final stages of a bear market. Ampex is selling at 73 per cent below its early 1970 high, and excessive reaction to lower earnings reported in the April quarter and projected for the July quarter. Management has reaffirmed its conviction that a growth rate of 14 per cent compounded will be achieved over the next five years. Now trading at about 10x fiscal 1970 earnings, Ampex appears to have above-average rebound potential.

Boise Cascade Expects Better Second Half

HOUSTON (BW) — Boise Cascade "is looking toward a better 1970 second half comparison with 1969 than it expects to experience during the first half of this year," William M. Agee, vice president, finance, stated here Wednesday.

Speaking before the Houston Society of Security Analysts, he said:

"We have indicated previously that our results in 1970 would be adversely affected in the first half by the fact that our 1969 first half results were unusually good.

"We also indicated that our comparisons would be better during the second half of the year," he said. "With five months now behind us, we still believe this will be the case for Boise Cascade in 1970."

Second quarter results in 1969 were the best in Boise Cascade's history, which Agee attributed to extraordinarily high prices for building materials. This year the high cost and unavailability of mortgage money has caused a slump in housing activity, Agee said.

In spite of this, he added, because of Boise Cascade's unique position in the homebuilding industry, the company's housing operations have continued to grow both in volume and profits.

Many 'First-Time' Exhibitors In Marin Art And Garden Show

Probably the largest number of "first-time" commercial exhibitors in recent years are making appearances at the Marin Art and Garden Show in Ross next month — 22 of them out of a total of 50 now signed.

There are 10 more booth spaces this year than before and at this writing only three vacancies remained.

Half of the newcomers fall in the art and craftwork class: Claudia Misner from Richmond with her leather goods, tapestry bags, vests and other goods; Clair Fraschina from San Francisco with a jewelry display; The Art Assemblage from San Anselmo; San Rafael photographer Arthur Madsen; Irene and Marianne Horton (I and M Enterprise) from Woodacre, decorative pillows and plaques; Hazel Manning of Ross, mineral mounts; Tom McFadden of Forest Knolls, with furniture, woodcarvings and ceramics; Carol Parrish of San Francisco, decorated turkey eggs, jewelry, flower and owl arrangements; Royal Art Service, Corte Madera, paintings, prints, stuffed toys and tote bags; Al Tichenour from Hamilton Air Force Base, redwood planters; and Stained Glass Originals from San Francisco.

New also this year are Bib 'n' Rib of San Anselmo, whose proprietor Ron Brandeis will be showing some of his original Ozark sauces; Fred Cherry's Wine Discoveries, also of San Anselmo with an exhibition of choice wines; Futura, distributor of Bestline products in San Rafael; and camping, sport and mountain climbing equipment from Mary King's The Mountain Shop in Kentfield.

There are new promotional exhibits by Alpha Schools, San Rafael; Belvedere Nursery School; the Kidney Foundation of Northern California; the Marin County Epilepsy Society; Meals for Millions; and the Marin General Hospital Volunteers. All provide literature and information. Marin General will have a boutique.

Exhibitors from previous years include the American Cancer Society; Anavac Enterprises with its character computer, the Baha'i Faith; Alice Zelina Berger's paintings on wood; John Bickner's redwood signs and plastic flowers and bottles; Bonsai Nursery, the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum; Casman and Weiss Manufacturing Co. (blenders and broilers); Cooperative Marin; Creative Merchandisers, Derby's of California, stone planters and jewelry; Henry George School of Social Science; Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath; Niko paintings on driftwood; both the Marin Democratic and Republican Committees; Leo Molitor's beefsticks, Niagara massage equipment; Mary Furdas of Woodacre, showing Shaklee products; State Farm Insurance Co.; Patricia Stevens Finishing School and Career College; Donna Stradcutter's jewelry; The Tamalpais Retirement Home of Greenbrae; the Tamalpais Conservation Club; Tamalpais Hardware's lapidary supplies, Tiffany lamps and baskets; Ethelyn Telfor's oil paintings on wood; Dean Witter and Co.; and World Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft.

JOHN R. McCABE of San Rafael has been elected a member of the Administrative Management Society. eH is sales manager for James Hill and Co., San Francisco.

SAUSALITO INSURANCE AGENT Warren Glass has won an all-expense-paid trip for two to Mexico City in a nationwide sales campaign by Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

Oakland, Taiwan City Ink Sister-Port Pact

OAKLAND (BW) — Ceremonies marking the signing of a sister port affiliation between the Port of Oakland and the Port of Keelung (Taiwan) were held Wednesday in Keelung.

In Taiwan for the ceremonies were Oakland Mayor John Reading, president of the Oakland Board of Port Commissioners William Walters, Commissioner Robert Mortensen and Port Executive Director Ben E. Nutter.

Heading the Taiwan delegation was Adm. K. C. Tsao, director of the Keelung Harbor Bureau.

The official ceremonies included signing of sister-port affiliation documents by Walters and Tsao, the raising of both port flags and pouring a decanter of sea water from the Port of Oakland into the Keelung Harbor.

Gifts and mementos were exchanged by both port boards.

The sister-port relationship between Oakland and Keelung developed from a visit to Oakland by Taiwan port and steamship executives for a container seminar and a return visit to Taiwan by a trade mission group from the Port of Oakland.

Oakland is the largest container port on the Pacific oCast of the United States, while Keelung, port for Taipei, Taiwan's capital city, is rapidly expanding its fracilities for containerization with two new terminals opening this year.

Dow Jones Sustains Loss; Week's Biggest

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Dow Jones Industrial Average today suffered its biggest setback of the week, but turnover remained light in what generally was regarded as a further consolidation of last month's sharp gains.

The closely watched barometer of 30 top blue chip companies was off 10.00 at 684.35 near the bell.

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 1,049 retreated and 242

The UPI Marketwide Indicator showed a loss of 1.54 per cent near the close with 1,519 issues on the tape. Of these, 1,049 retreated and 242 gained.

Turnover amounted to around 7.75 million shares as against 7,240,000 shares Wednesday.

A spokesman for Walston Co. brokerage said he expected the Dow to move to the 665-675 area before major support develops. On May 26 the closely watched blue chip barometer finished at 631.16, its low for the year.

Another analyst said he believed the market was headed for a 50 per cent retracement of recent sharp advances. This, he said, would put the Dow at about the 670-680 level.

Other analysts pointed out that demand for stocks was hampered by several factors, including delay in President Nixon's economic report to the nation and an announcement by the Soviet Union that it was increasing its military aid to North Vietnam in response to expanded U.S. military involvement in Indochina.

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny said "relations with the United States are frozen because of U.S. aggression" in Indochina and elsewhere.

Point-sized losses cropped up most often in the electronics, while most other major stock groups traded in fractions. IBM was among the biggest losers, closing down 6 1-4 at 259 1-4.

Among the day's most active issues were American Telephone, Pittston, Burroughs and Carter Wallace.

American Telephone closed off 1-4 at 41 3-4.

In late trading, Pittston was 3-8 higher on 68,700 shares and Carter Wallace was off 1 1-4 on 60,700 shares. Carter Wallace reported a sharp drop in operating net for the fourth quarter ended March 31.

Prices declined in light turnover on the American Stock Exchange.

DuPont Tells Of Plans For Merger

NEW YORK (UPI) — Francis I. DuPont & Co. has agreed to merge with Hirsch & Co., a combination which, together with a previously proposed combination with Glore Forgan Staats Inc., will create the world's second largest investment company.

The new firm, F.I. DuPont, Glore Forgan & Co., will have 141 offices across the country, compared with Bache & Co., which presently is in second place with 130, and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, which is undisputed leader with more than 200 branches.

A DuPont spokesman said there has been no discussion of any possible closings of branch offices after the three-firm merger takes effect July 1.

Hirsch, with 26 offices, is primarily a retail establishment, while Glore Forgan, with 20 offices on the West Coast, has concentrated on investment banking.

Marin Should Follow Up On Petaluma River Study

It is encouraging to see that a body like the Sonoma County Development Board has begun to recognize the recreational potential of the Petaluma River.

Not long ago, that board released the first reports of its citizen committees studying the Petaluma River basin.

The reports contained recommendations for the preservation of the basin's pastoral environment and encouraged recreational development. It warned against pollution, overpopulation and uncontrolled growth.

ALL THIS IS VALID, of course.

The City of Petaluma and the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce have demonstrated interest in nurturing the recreational potential of the river and its environs.

This, too, is encouraging.

Take a look at the map, however, and you will see that about a third of the west bank of the Petaluma River lies neither within the limits of Sonoma County nor the city of Petaluma.

Add the navigable and potentially most desirable portion of San Antonio Creek (a Petaluma River tributary) and you have a shoreline equal to approximately half the length of the river which is outside the jurisdiction of the city of Petaluma and Sonoma County.

To date, no one from this "outside" area has given much thought to its preservation for recreational development and use.

IN THIS CASE, we of Marin are the "outsiders."

We have pretty much ignored and neglected the great potentials of the Petaluma River basin which we share with our neighbors to the east and north.

Better late than never that we should become interested.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and the city of Novato could and should borrow a leaf from Petaluma's book and focus some attention on the great potential of the river which runs past their doorstep.

The Marin County Chamber of Commerce and the Marin County Planning Commission could and should borrow a leaf from the Sonoma County Development Board's book and give study to cooperating in the effort to recognize and realize Petaluma River basin's full potential.

YESTERDAY in this space we noted that Paradise County Park on the bayshore was already overtaxed and we predicted that the county's newly acquired and about-to-be-opened McNear's park, also on the bayshore, is likely also to be overtaxed in the very near future.

A Marin county park on the shores of Petaluma River and or San Antonio Creek likewise would be enjoyed by many.

If we don't take action now, future generations will be deprived of the enjoyment of this great natural asset which lies unrecognized at our doorstep.

A GOOD PLACE to start is with the Sonoma County Development Board's citizen committee reports.

Summer Fog

Summer fog is one of the Bay Area's greatest assets. More than anything else it is responsible for moderating the heat of summer and making it such a pleasant season here.

Summer fog in Marin usually forms in the afternoon outside the Golden Gate, and sometimes on the southern slopes of Mount Tamalpais and the Sausalito hills. It forms a moving river 100 to 1,500 feet deep, flowing inland at an average rate of 16 miles an hour, carrying hundreds of thousands of tons of water inland each afternoon.

Sweeping over highway 101 above Sausalito, fog may not be welcomed by commuters. But when we think that above the fog the temperature may be 90 degrees, we are grateful for small favors.

Fog from the cool ocean is the Bay Area's natural airconditioning. If it doesn't always work — well, neither does the man-made kind.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Treasurer Makes Quick Use Of Bond Interest Ceiling Boost

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Like a kid with a bag of candy, the State of California lost no time in digging in when the electorate adopted Proposition 7 at the recent primary election.

Prop. 7 is the authorization for a higher interest ceiling on state bonds. The election was June 2, and first sale of bonds at the new interest rates, which will be higher than the presently authorized 5 per cent, will be just two weeks later, June 16.

ON THAT DATE, State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest will sell $300 million worth of state bonds. The offering will include $200 million in bond anticipation notes to finance the state water project construction; $50 million in state school building aid bonds, and $50 million in higher education construction bonds.

Sale of the one-year bond anticipation notes would repay money borrowed from the general fund this spring, and would provide funds for pushing the state water project closer to completion.

The school building aid bonds would mature over a 15-year period starting July 1, 1971, with an average maturity of about eight years.

The higher education construction bonds also would have a 15-year maturity period, starting next July 1, and would carry the same maturity.

MRS. PRIEST SAID that passage of the proposition has enabled the state to resume bond selling acitivities, which had all but been halted during the past 15 months because of soaring interest rates which exceeded the legal limit of 5 per cent. The new ceiling is 7 per cent, subject to legislative adjustment if needed to meet market conditions.

Some indication of what the people of California let themselves in for can be gained from the annual report of the state treasurer on California's bond situation.

THERE ARE MORE than one billion dollars worth of bonds waiting to be sold, at interest rates higher than 5 per cent. No one knows the exact interest rate until the bonds are sold, because they are purchased on bid. But the rate is bound to be more than 5 per cent, and 7 or less per cent at the top.

There are outstanding bonds out totaling $4,671,046,000, that have to be redeemed by the year 2019, roughly 49 years hence, when children being born at the present time will have lived considerably more than half their lives.

The interest on those outstanding bonds will amount to $2,689,220,537, or more than half of the amount to be used in retiring the bonds, all of which brings the total debt on the state's general obligation bonds to $7,360,266,537.

AND THIS IS PLUS the more than a billion dollars in bonds to be sold because the voters already have authorized them.

All of which will bring the state's bonded debt perilously close to $10 billion.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Protest Group Lacks Long Hair, Notice

The board of directors of a brand-new protest group meet in Marin County each week and there isn't a beard nor bead in sight. Nor are there armed militants nor unwashed bearers of crude placards nor steely-eyed rioters nor hysterical shouters of obscene imprecations. There is simply a group of business and professional men and women who protest the inequity in the management of Golden Gate Bridge resources and the planning of North Bay commuter transportation facilities. These people are the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association whose overall aim is to see that the powers of the bridge district be limited to the operation and maintenance of the bridge, that North Bay commuters have a voice in matters that concern them as users of the bridge and that they be permitted to participate in the planning of transit systems that affect them.

Because these weekly meetings of the directors of the Golden Gate Commuters' Association are quiet and orderly, they attract no press interest. It is incongruous that, had a crowd of lunatics swarmed across the bridge each week screaming four-letter words in protest to bridge policy, the story would make page one of every newspaper in the area. When people get together quietly, with dignity, to protest essentially the same thing while formulating constructive proposals toward equitable solutions to existing problems, it creates not a ripple.

Is this a manifestation of the "man bites dog" syndrome?

Taxes Outstrip Cost Of Living

. . . Taxing authorities may deny vehemently that assessments are made with budgets in mind . . . . However, my curiosity was aroused sufficiently to secure comparative figures which disclose quite a record for the past 10 years.

Using 1959 as a norm year, and with it in mind that many properties have been self-improved, I checked eight neighboring properties in my area. Six older homes showed, respectively, an assessed valuation increase of 90, 133, 140, 90, 68 and 170 per cent. For 1970, those same houses will show 120, 148, 160, 130, 94 and 215 per cent over 1959. Two newer houses built within the decade will show increases of 61 and 114 per cent. Altogether the average increase is 130 per cent.

Random figures show the home or non commercial owner provided a pro rata share of the tax base of 72.1 per cent in 1964, 85.89 per cent in 1966 and approximately 80 per cent in 1968. The assessed valuation of Marin County was $218,393,943 in 1959 and $583,388,558 in 1969 for an increase of 160 per cent. These figures are without regard to tax rates, just assessments.

During the norm or basic year of 1959 the cost of living index was established as $100; in 1969 it was $131.80, or an increase of 31.8 per cent. This bears little relation to Marin County property taxes.

For modern computation, the dollar was, during the same basic year of 1959, considered to be worth 100 cents; in 1970 it is considered to be worth 75.9 cents, or a drop in value of 24 per cent, which still bears little relation to Marin County figures.

I have heard it said that figures can be used to prove anything you want them to prove. If this be true, I should like to have it shown just how much better are our schools, our roads, our relief system, our policing and our county administration in the same relation that basic tax increases of 130 to 160 per cent or better, bears to a cost of living increase of 32 per cent or a dollar devaluation of 24 per cent. I'd settle for either of these latter figures, but who can hold his breath that long?

If taxes seem confiscatory now who can guess what will happen if a recession takes hold. It's fair comment that the 1930's will prove to be the kindergarten years.

Better Uses For School Funds

We noticed a recent article in the Independent-Journal regarding the Coleman School Fair. While we applaud the concept of community involvement we deplore the notion that a sum in the neighborhood of $5,000 is to be used for a lawn. It would seem that the same energies used in preparing and executing a fair of this sort might be used to develop the drainage and planting of a lawn with volunteer labor and the $5,000, or the lion's share of that sum, could be used directly toward the enhancing of the educational program. Some examples of more beneficial enrichments might include remedial teachers, art teachers, playground equipment or field trips.

We feel that in this day of "meaningful involvement" there are many parents and community members who would gladly get behind such a project as landsacping and planting a grass field with the guidance of a consultant.

How Rationalize Our Conscience?

Accepting the fact that all we have to judge by are the commercialized news sources, nevertheless how do we rationalize the national moral conscience?

In example, there's the comparatively slight "seek and destroy" operation in Cambodia magnified hysterically out of proportion. Ecology — cannilly distorted into an immediate, impending world-wide disaster. Legal abortion — now to become a crutch in support of a sexually free and wanton society.

Can we find the truths in our conscience if we answer these questions? How do we withdraw our armies from battle without rear-guard protection? Is pollution a frantic "now" disaster, or a sly attempt to weaken our capitalistic structure? How can we abort and take the life of an innocent infant yet magnaminously refrain from taking the criminal life of a condemned murderer?

Above all, we certainly are not educated human beings if our conscience closes our minds and refuses to evaluate a counter viewpoint.

Why School Bond Issues Defeated

The reason that school bonds have been voted down regularly may be found in a recent I-J news item: "Ross Adopts A Calendar of 175 (School) Days."

This means that school doors are closed 52.1 per cent of the year; a normal business firm which closes weekends and holidays is inoperative only 30.7 per cent of the time.

In these days of high costs and exorbitant taxes, a sensible voter will not be a party to a continuation of this kind of wasteful luxury. Let the school districts start utilizing the facilities they now have.

TRY AND STOP ME

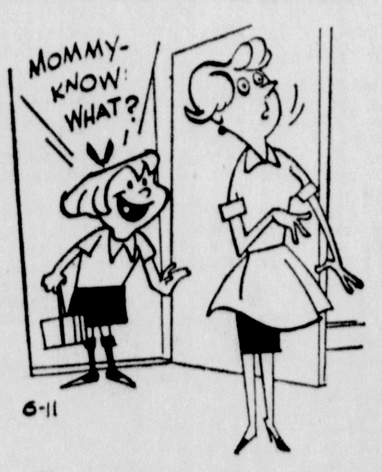
By BENNETT CERF

AN OLD, OLD MAN was rocking peacefully on the porch of a tiny village store when one of those flashy European racing cars came to a grinding stop and two hep city characters emerged. "Hey, grandpa," called one of them derisively, "how long has this hole in the woods been dead?" The old, old man regarded them serenely over the rim of his spectacles, then answered calmly, "Can't be very long, I figure. You're the first buzzards I've seen."

OVERHEARD:

A night club comic demolishing a bitter rival: 'He's a spoke trying to act like a wheel!"

Motorcycle cop to speedster he's just flagged: "I'm only doing 80. How much were you only doing?"



Exasperated husband to wife: "For the first time since we're married, you're wrong AGAIN!"

Suburbanite to poll taker: "You can put me down as firmly in favor of a higher income tax on all sums above $5,255.75."

Thai Mercenary Deal Revives Old Ghost Of Credibility Gap

WASHINGTON — Credibility gap was a phrase that haunted the Johnson Administration. Now, once more, the evidence is beginning to come in showing how difficult it is in an open society to wage an undeclared war.

After a prolonged wrangle with the State Department Sen. Stuart Symington's subcommittee brought out the facts about the big money contribution to Thailand for furnishing a Thai combat division for the Vietnam War. Besides an outright payment of $50 million a year, Thailand demanded and got an additional $30 million in military assistance and a battery of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles.

These were secret commitments, publicly denied by the highest Thai officials. The total bill for the training, equipment and individual allowances of the 13,000 Thai troops was $200 million, the report of the Symington committee shows.

WHAT MAKES THIS so timely is the announcement from Bangkok that Thai "volunteers" will be sent to fight in Cambodia. Thailand's premier, Thansom Kittikachorn, announced that the Cambodia "volunteers" would be armed and equipped by the United States, "unlike the (Thai) volunteers for Vietnam whose expenses are paid by Thailand." This opened a credibility gap that the Nixon Administration must somehow close. It is too late to bury secret agreements either past or present.

The American payments for the Thais in Vietnam range from $39 a month for privates to $450 for lieutenant generals. The Thai payment is, to be sure, only a small part of the total bill submitted by America's "allies" for contributions of one kind and another to the war in Vietnam.

Having pried into another example of this same secrecy, in this instance in the Philippines, Symington is engaged in a hassle with State and Defense over censorship of the transcript of the hearings. The Philippine case looks even more dubious than the under-the-table deal in Thailand.

The Defense Department provided a total of $38.8 million for Philippine support troops, 2,200 reduced subsequently to 1,500, with all finally withdrawn six months ago. What happened to the money is almost as mysterious as what this token force actually did during its stay in Vietnam.

THE GENERAL ACCOUNTING office was able to trace checks theoretically providing allowances and supplies just under $40 million to the Philippine Secretary of National Defense, Ernesto Mata. They were deposited in the Philippine Veterans Bank in Manila.

No accounting was asked for and there is no record to show that the money for allowances — on the same scale as the Thai allowances — ever filtered down. Comptroller Gen. Elmer Staats reported to the Symington committee that he had been denied access to records that might have shown where the funds went. Documentation for perhaps $30 million has been run down.

Symington is convinced that the balance of the money stayed with the sticky fingers of very high officials in Manila. While this may never be established, the denial to the general accounting office of facts that must be of record somewhere is damning in itself. And, in the meantime, the wrangle goes on, as it went on for many weeks over that Thai report, to release what is certain to be a heavily censored transcript.

THIS IS ALL DIRECTLY relevant to events in Cambodia. Hiring mercenaries to do the fighting may be an essential of the underclared war the United States is waging in Southeast Asia. But the very least that should be expected is an honest accounting to civilian authority fo where the money goes. Short of that, the end result is doubt and distrust, a credibility gap as wide as the Grand Canyon.

In a closed society such as the Soviet Union they do these things differently. For at least four years Soviet technicians and pilots have been in Egypt operating the missile defenses and in recent weeks flying defensive missions in MIG. As the SAM-3 missile defenses are extended to the Suez Canal line, the number of Soviet military is probably well over 10,000 today.

Russian coffins have been shipped back to the home land with casualties in that undeclared war. The next of kin are told that the husband or father died in an auto accident. Unless it be through a small elite underground, not a word of this is known to the Soviet public.

Yet, even in that closed world, the signs are multiplying that with advanced scientific and technological education it is difficult or impossible to keep the curtain of ignorance pulled tight. Courageous men and women are daring to speak out. And, while they are still only a tiny minority, their example promises to be contagious.

Congress Aiming Guns At The Swiss Bank Accounts

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Anonymously numbered Swiss bank accounts, key to a thousand mystery novels and spy thrillers, are coming under intense congressional scrutiny as a reallige adjunct to organized crime.

Unlike many of the crime inquiries, widely publicized in the House and Senate, this one may produce quick legislative action. A Senate Banking subcommittee began hearings this week on a bill, already passed by the House, which would curb use in the United States of secret ban counts in Switzerland and other nations which shelter them.

The House-approved bill is being touted as a blow against white-collar crime. That means not only illegal financial dealings by unscrupulous businessmen but also the financing of such on-the-street criminal operations as narcotics traffic by manicured and scented crime syndicate bosses.

The measure is designed to illuminate the use of secret accounts by Americans through record keeping. Residents of the United States would be required to maintain records, or file reports, of transactions with foreign financial institutions. The Treasury would be empowered to require reports of major exports and imports of currency and other legal tender.

In a recently publicized court action, two St. Louis businessmen were convicted in a $4 million fraud involving a U. S. Navy rocket-launcher contract. With the help of Swiss bank employees, payments to dummy subcontractors were paid into Swiss bank accounts. In this instance Swiss law was violated, and bank employees were implicated in the conspiracy.

Proceeds from the sale of $950,000 worth of heroin shipped into the United States by two convicted narcotics traffickers, were shown to have been transmitted through New York to numbered bank accounts in Switzerland.

THE HOUSE-APPROVED bill imposes other domestic record-keeping requirements on banks. Some are viewed as burdensome, and the measure may encounter organized opposition in the Senate. If it becomes bogged down, another Senate subcommittee may quickly get into the act.

The Senate Investigations Subcommittee, headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., is already doing investigative spade work on the use of numbered bank accounts by Mafia leaders and other members of the underworld elite. Hearings are expected later.

"Thoughtfulness might be easier to overlook if it didn't seem so intentional."

THE CONSERVATION WAR

A Cause With Appeal For Every Faction

By JOE WING

Will the current craze for ecology be just another passing fad?

After the college kids, the politicians and the well-meaning housewifes have had their fun marching and shouting and picking up tin cans, will they turn to other newer and more exciting causes?

NOT IF THEY VALUE their lives they won't. Nor will they be able to do so easily because, though the iVetnam war, for instance, is going to phase out sooner or later, the pollution crisis is one that will be with us always. We'll be lucky if there is any real progress this decade.

Behind the drive against air and water pollution, against noisesome garbage and sewage, against thoughtless destruction of wildlife and its habitat, against desecration of beauty spots and the despoiling of land and sea, there is an issue even more fundamental than the quality of life about which we hear so much.

The issue is whether man is headed, like the dinosaur before him, towards his own destruction. The dinosaurs weren't smart enough to adjust to changes in their ecology. Although the brains in our little bodies are bigger than those of the dinosaur, are we that much smarter?

ONE HOPEFUL SIGN for the future is a research report from General Electric that Americans will be less concerned in coming years with material things and more interested in life's quality.

Fortunately for its survival, the ecology craze has things going for it that are lacking even in such causes as abolition of the bomb.

First, it's a cause with demonstrated appeal not just for youth or the elderly or the middle aged, but for everybody.

Second, the problems of conservation and the allied pursuit of nature study are so fascinating that, once recognized, they are hard to sweep away into a dark corner of the mind.

Third, these problems are ones that nearly every individual can help solve in some small measure by his own individual, practical effort.

HE PROBABLY cannot take a single tangible step towards banning the bomb, but most definitely he can make some contribution toward cutting down on water pollution, smog or litter, and even toward such larger matters as better sewage disposal, preservation of wild lands, and protection of birds and other living things. He can't pass the whole buck on these matters to politicians and to industry. Not only must he do his part individually, but unless politicans and industries know he wants action and means business there will be none.

In spite of all the talk about conservation, hosts of Americans who consider themselves in sympathy with the general idea go right ahead wiping out insects both "good" and "bad". They persist in "cleaning up" brushy or swampy or weedy areas that harbor much of our dwindling wildlife, or in shooting "varmints.'

THEY BURN TRASH, toss beer cans by the roadside, flaunt great neon signs that desecrate the landscape and gobble up ever more valuable electricity. They even contaminate streams and lakes, figuring that their own small contributions of filth won't make any difference.

Obviously a tremendous education job is needed. This is where the ordinary, garden variety nature lover, or lover of humanity, can do his part. As effective as anything; perhaps, is an intelligent, word-of-mouth campaign.

Just consider that in spite of all the fine talk by Smokey Bear, forest fires touched off by careless people rage each year through millions of acres. Obviously more talk is needed.

THE CONSERVATION WAR is not one, therefore, that will be won overnight. Even its battles will be long-drawn-out. Only if the growing army of amateur environmentalists has staying power will any substantial victory be achieved. But it will be too bad for the vanquished, or their children's children, if the war is lost.

ART BUCHWALD

'Working Within The System' Makes Youth Even More Feared

WASHINGTON — For years now, our congressmen on Capital Hill have been urging students to 'work within the system.' You can imagine their surprise and consternation recently when the students took them up on it.

Congressman Halyard Hoakum were just putting some balls in his golf bag when his secretary came in and said, "Sir, there's a delegation of students outside from your district and they want to see you."

The secretary showed 10 students in.

Congressman Hoakum said, "For heaven's sakes, it's Friday. Don't they know we don't work on Friday?"

"I told them that, but they still insisted on seeing you. They said they're from Fairweather State, your alma mater."

"ALLRIGHT, show them in," Congressman Hoakum said, "But be sure and interrupt me in 20 minutes. You can say the White House is calling."

Congressman Hoakum stuck his hand out, "Well, this is a great honor . . .a great honor. How's everything at Fairweather State?"

A young girl said, "Congressman Hoakum, we've come to discuss with you what is going on in Vietnam."

CONGRESSMAN HOAKUM said, "Of course you have. Say, let's pose for a photo together." He buzzed his press man. "Jack, you want to bring in the camera and take some shots of me talking to a group of fine, dedicated Americans from Fairweather State? We could air mail it out there for Monday morning's papers. Good."

Congressman Hoakum said, "Now gather around the desk here and pretend like you have something really serious to say."

"WE DO HAVE something serious to say," a boy said. "Congressman Hoakum, the students at Fairweather State are concerned over the way the President has been . . ."

"Say, how's the football team going to be?" the congressman asked. "Coach Fogel told me he might get a bowl invitation this year."

A girl pursued the subject, "We are fed up with rhetoric and pablum. We want our representatives in Congress to do something."

"I know exactly how you feel," Congressman Hoakum said. "When I was a student I felt the same way. I said, 'Why can't we change things?' But since I've been in public life, I've taken a more realistic view. But you're too young to know that, and I envy your idealism. If I were your age, I'd be doing the same thing you're doing."

"HOW CAN WE change things, Congressman Hoakum?"

"By working through the system. That's the American way. Our government with its checks and balances provides for everyone to have a voice in this country. And no one believes in the right of peaceful dissent more than I do. You getting all this on tape, Jack?"

"Congressman Hoakum," the girl spokesman said, "you have been a great help to us and have shown us what we have to do."

"It's wonderful that we can still communicate. What are you going to do?"

"WE're GOING to get all the students at Fairweather State to work for your defeat in November."

Congressman Hoakum shouted, "You can't do that. I've been in Congress for 20 years."

"We'll see that it's your last one."

"Get out, you Commies," Hoakum yelled. "You're all a bunch of rotten bums."

The students marched out singing. Hoakum, his head in his hands, said to his press man, "Jack, call J. Edgar Hoover and tell him to find the SOB who's trying to get kids to work within the system."

Fires kill more than trees. While you are camping and having fun in the forests of the Redwood Region this year, use extreme caution. The wildlands are dry.

France Has Own Vietnam Going In Far-Off Chad

By PETER WORTHINGTON
Toronto Telegram News Service

Almost unknown, and certainly unnoticed amid today's welter of problems, is a tiny war in the most backward and remote country of Africa — a war that's being called "France's little Vietnam."

For two years, Franch troops in the form of paratroopers and the Foreign Legion have been in Chad, Africa's most inaccessible landlocked country that is 1,000 miles from the nearest sea coast.

One might generously say that Chad is hurtling headlong into the 17th Century. It has had independence from France for 10 years now, and progress — political and economic — has been minimal.

Chad has no railways, no all-weather roads, and no newspapers.

Its president, Francois Tombalbaye, had never seen a white man until he was about 6 years old (he's not sure when he was born) and he once recalled that he thought his first white man was a "dead animal."

MEANING OF NAME

His name means: He Who Does Not Reveal Secrets — which isn't a bad name for a politician.

Tombalbaye is one of the few leaders of Africa who've lasted since independence: "All the Way With Tombalbaye," is a current jibe.

Or, as someone else once remarked wryly: "Tombalbaye believes in one man, one vote — once." Chad is a one-party country, and the only thing resembling a newspaper of public opinion is a government propaganda sheet with a daily circulation of about 700.

Chad is at war with itself — the Moslem north rebelling against the Black south.

As far as France's involvement goes (3,500 troops and "advisers") there are disquieting parallels with Vietnam.

FEAR'S 'DOMINO'

Rightly or wrongly, Paris seems to feel that if Tombalbaye was overthrown and a rebellion successful, there might be a "domino reaction" — and the shock waves would endanger the other 10 former French colonies.

As his dependence on the French military has increased, Tombalbaby has progressively become more of a Francophile. He now says it was a "mistake" to try and replace the French administration too fast, and that once the rebellion is crushed things will be better.

Paris is concerned that the rebels gain support from Chad's Moslem — and revolutionary — neighbors to the north: Sudan and Libya. There have also been rumors of Chinese arms coming in — a rumor designed to turn on the taps of French aid.

AWKWARD QUESTIONS

In France, however, newspapers and the public have been asking awkward questions about the "unknown" war.

"The rebellion is becoming progressively more organized despite official propaganda which compares the rebels to bandits . . . it is close to civil war," says the influential newspaper Le Monde.

Just what is the rebellion about? First of all, it isn't ideological — or at least it didn't start out that way. But steadily and predictably it has taken left-wing overtones.

It is an extension of traditional nomads versus townspeople feuding, but added to be the authoritarianism of the Tombalbaye regime; the endemic corruption of the government; the uneven tax distribution; the incompetence of the administration; the rampant nepotism. Here are also religious animosities and the hostility between the Arab north and the Black south.

Chad is a human tragedy — even if there weren't a war being fought. It is inhabited by 3,500,000 people, of whom 5 per cent are Christian, 55 per cent are Moslem, and 40 per cent Pagan.

Its economy is subsistance, and based on cotton and cattle. In the rainy season the roads become tracks, and huge, shallow Lake Chad virtually doubles in size.

Its main claim to fame is that in 1935 there was a tornado that dumped record-size hailstones on the eastern region — as big as a man's fist on the fringes, and chunks of ice five-feet long and two feet in diameter at the center.

Chad is special to French traditionalists, since it was the first country to rally to de Gaulle in World War II. It was from the capital of Fort Lamy that General Leclerc led his "Chad army" northward.

It's a difficult, almost impossible, country to fight effectively in. And the French Foreign Legion often goes into battle riding bicycles.

But the French public opinion has had enough. Pressures have persuaded President Pompidou to pull a President Nixon — he's indicated that French forces will be withdrawn in July.

By that time Chad's military will be able to fight alone — with the help of a few hundred "advisers." Or so the theory goes. It sounds familiar to anyone conditioned on President Nixon's "Vietnamization" scheme.

Anyway, the rebels — a myriad of groups led by the National Liberation Front (FROLINA) — are hoping to hang on until that day. They think they can handle the Chad army.

The rebellion in Chad isn't of the stuff designed to make headlines. But the fact that the natives are restless is indicitive of the times: The choice for the country seems to either develop into a sort of crossroads of Africa, or to remain a blind alley.

For France, there is only grief and trouble ahead.

Doctor Plans Trip To Aid In Peru Peril

Dr. Alan J. Cooper of Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael will leave Saturday for the Peruvian Andes to help earthquake victims.

Cooper said he and 10 to 15 other Bay Area medical men will spend their vacation time in Peru at the 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition.

Most of the doctors are also mountain climbers, Cooper said, so they will be taken by helicopter to the remote eastern side of the Ordillera Blanca.

Although no accurate estimate of damage and deaths has come from the eastern region yet, the volunteers expect to use their climbing expertise to reach remote, high altitude villages, Cooper said.

Cooper, a Berkeley resident, was a member of the first group to scale Chopacalqui Notre in the Andes and used Yungay — the city buried under a slide during the May 30 quake — as a staging base.

The doctors will pay their own way and donate a month of their time.

Anyone who wishes to help pay the cost of the medical relief team should write to Nicholas Clinch, 1970 American Andean Relief Expedition, 5702 Hardwick Street, Bethesda, Md.

Cars Hit, Hurt Two Youths On Motorcycles

Two youths received minor injuries in separate motorcycle accidents yesterday, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Danny J. Smith, 13, of Woodacre, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut right knee after his scooter collided with a car driven by John Everette, of Woodacre, on private property near Hill Road, Woodacre, at 5 p.m., the patrol said.

John F. Canon, 17, of Hixson, Tenn., was treated for a scalp cut after an accident at San Pedro Road and Garden Avenue at 9:15 p.m., officers said.

Canon's motorcycle struck the side of a car driven by Richard P. Morris, 63, of 1201 Cambridge Street, Novato, which pulled out from Garden Avenue into his path, the patrol reported.

Auto Tolls To Be Reduced On Richmond Span

I-J SPECIAL REPORT

SACRAMENTO — Auto tolls on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge will be reduced from 75 cents to 65 cents starting July 1.

The California Toll Bridge Authority approved the cut Tuesday on recommendation of E. R. Foley, chief engineer of the Division of Bay Toll Crossings.

The authority had voted last Dec. 12 to cut the toll five cents effective July 1, but voted the additional cut after being told bridge traffic has increased 12 per cent in the last year.

The 30-cent commute book rate will be unchanged. However, tolls for cars pulling trailers will be reduced 10 cents, to $1.15 for a car with a single-axle trailer, $1.40 for a car and two-axle trailer, and $1.65 for a car and three-axle trailer.

Marijuana Count Denied In Court

James Hudson Lenhart, 38, of Novato, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to charges of possessing marijuana and driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

A preliminary hearing was set for June 30.

Lenhart was arrested June 1 after he was seen driving erratically on Highway 101 by a California Highway Patrol officer. A search revealed a bottle of suspected marijuana.

Burton In Surprise Resignation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John Burton, in a surprise move, resigned Wednesday as president of the 10,000-member California Democratic Council because of "the press of legislative business."

The San Francisco lawmaker, who has headed the largest volunteer political organization in the state the past 15 months, siad he was stepping down because of "the press of legislative business, particularly in the areas of tax reform, the budget and adequate school financing."

Burton, in a statement issued by his office, said it would be "unfair" for him to continue as CDC president because he would not have adequate time to give to the organization in the months prior to the November election.

He said the legislative issues "will require our utmost attention between now and the end of the session. In all probability, the fall elections will be decided this summer in the legislative halls."

Burton said he sent a letter of resignation to officers and members of the CDC's board of directors.

Pit River Indians Take Wilderness Cause To TV

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Pit River Indian leaders came to San Francisco for television appearances today, leaving their war with Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to simmer in the wilderness 230 miles to the northeast.

Tribal council leaders Mickey Gemmill and Raymond Lego were among the braves coming to this paleface stronghold, site of the headquarters of the mighty utilities firm which is among those the Indians accuse of occupying 3.5 million acres of land illegally taken from their ancestors during Gold Rush days.

Back along the Pit River at the "front," PG&E closed down an employes' vacation campground at Big Bend which the Indians three times have occupied at a cost of 50 people arrested.

Bail has been set at $315 each. As of Wednesday night, all but the last seven arrested had been bailed out of Shasta County Jail at Reeding or had been released on their own recognizance.

All face prosecution on charges of trespassing and entering unprotected private property.

PG&E says the Indians broke door locks and damaged light fixtures and a swimming pool pump.

After PG&E turned off the camp's power and water supply Wednesday, an Indian spokesman smiled:

"There are a lot of other nice campgrounds."

The spokesman, Grace Thorpe, is the daughter of famed Indian athlete Jim Thorpe. A former Phoenix, Ariz., real estate dealer, Miss Thorpe is among several "outside Indians" who have been helping the Pits in their campaign to regain former tribal lands.

Another is Richard Oakes, a Mohawk who was among the original Indian occupiers of Alcatraz Island in San Francisco Bay last November.

Still another is Buffy Ste. Marie, the Canadian Cree folksinger who also was in Redding Wednesday to support the Pit cause.

The Pits held a council meeting Wednesday night at Hat Creek in an effort to iron out dissension that appeared in their ranks Wednesday when Ike Leaf, a 65-year-old Pit from the village of Likely in Modoc County, appeared at a Redding news conference and offered to testify against the Indians who had been arrested.

Claiming to be the tribal council chairman, Leaf told the news conference called by Shasta County Sheriff John Balma that he had been instructed by the tribal council to go on record as "opposing the action of these people and let it be known that the Pit River Indians are encouraged by its council to be peaceful, law-abiding citizens."

Shasta County Dist. Atty. Robert Baker produced a typed letter he said Leaf had written to him calling for prosecution of the arrested Indians.

Gemmill, chairman of the council at Hat Creek which has pushed the occupation of the Big Bend campground, said Leaf was council chairman six years ago, but isn't now.

Mrs. Rose McGarva, one of Gemmill's council members, said Leaf had not been a member of the council since 1964.

Leaf told reporters in broken English that the letter was typed by a judge's secretary at his village, Likely, in southern Modoc County.

British Oust U.S. Citizen For Drugs

LONDON (UPI)—A former American stockbroker identified as Roger Bonnor Lewis, 29, was ordered to leave Britain Wednesday after pleading guilty to possession of enough drugs for more than 10,000 hallucinogenic "trips."

Lewis was freed on two bonds of $1,200 each on condition he leave Britain immediately to receive medical treatment in the United States.

TV PREVIEW

Silent Majority Ranks High

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The tastes of the silent majority dominate television entertainment overwhelmingly, according to a ranking of the past season's video specials.

The ranking, in the weekly show business newspaper "Variety," goes as far down as 176th place in the ratings—and almost every top special reaffirms silent majority values.

Rated as the No. 1 show, from September to April, was Bob Hope's annual Christmas special, in which he visited American troops in Vietnam and elsewhere overseas.

Hope's specials, in fact, occupied seven of the top 11 spots.

Institutional, "respectable," old-fashioned entertainment was also emphasized in the content of the other highest-rated specials:

BEAUTY QUEENS

Beauty queens, movie stars, children's cartoons, the circus, ice shows, animal stories, football, traditional holiday tales, nature documentaries and favorite old entertainers.

Most specials aimed at the college-age audience or supposedly hip viewers finished very low in the ratings, as did most dramas and serious, topical documentaries.

For example, the bottom-rated program—176th—was an ABC-TV documentary, "Ethics in Government." Few persons cared to watch.

A CBS special, "Draft Lottery," came in 55th—and that was high for such programming. "The Return of the Smothers Brothers," on NBC-TV, ranked 71st. Frank Sinatra's CBS-TV special was 91st, tied with the same network's Anne Bancroft musical comedy outing, which won a fistful of awards from the industry and critics.

A notable "CBS Playhouse" comedy-drama, "Sadbird," finished 116th. A special by the youthful musical heroes Simon and Garfunkel came in 122nd. Woody Allen's outstanding comedy hour ranked 150th.

LBJ'S HOUR

Lyndon Johnson's one-hour prime-time discussion of his decision to stop the Vietnam bombing rated no better than 158th. A good "Hallmark Hall of Fame" drama about youthful rebellion at the time of Christ, "Neither Are We Enemies," finished 154th.

An NBC-TV hour employing classical and rock music, "The Switched-on Symphony," got much attention but came in only 159th.

Aside from six of Hope's programs, the top 10 specials included the academy Awards, the Miss America pageant, "A Charlie Brown Christmas," and the movie "Born Free," a big hit about lions.

OTHER SPECIALS

The top specials were: A Hope program, a Peggy Fleming-ice follies show, "He's Your Dog, Charlie Brown," "Frosty the Snowman" (another cartoon), "Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree" (also a cartoon), the Rowan and Martin special, "Rudolph the Rednosed Reindeer" (an umpteenth rerun of yet another cartoon) and, in a tie, variety shows by Jack Benny, Danny Thomas and Hope.

It is worth noting, by the way, that even when Hope tried to do something a little different—a book musical of his old Broadway hit, "Roberta"—he plunged to 77th.

Sandoval Loses Bail Plea In S.F.

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Ex-convict Jaime Sandoval, charged with the murders of a San Francisco man and his housekeeper, has been denied bail in San Francisco Municipal Court.

Sandoval, 39, a former male-nurse in San Rafael, is accused of killing Edelmiro Huertas, a long-time friend, and Huertas' maid, Carmen Acenzio. Their bullet riddled bodies were found earlier this month at the bottome of Devil's Slide.

Sandoval was a central figure in a Peninsula death mystery 10 years ago. He was the only witness to the death of Virginia Douglas of Millbrae, who was fatally injured in a fall from a sea-cliff in Puerto Rico. Ten days later her husband, Donald, committed suicide, leaving a note saying he doubted his wife's death was an accident.

The following year Sandoval was convicted of molesting the Douglas' two young sons and served time in San Quentin State Prison.

Judge Joseph G. Kennedy on Tuesday set June 23 for a preliminary hearing.

Philosophy Talk Dated At Church

Lena Wikramaratne, director of the Montessori Teacher Training Institute in Palo Alto, will discuss the "Philosophy of Montessori" at 8 p.m. Saturday at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church, 2626 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax.

Her talk will be in conjunction with the 100th anniversary of Maria Montessori's birth.

Miss Wikramaratne began working with Maria and Mario Montessori in 1941. She is a member of the pedagogical board of the Association Montessori Internationale.

San Rafael Academy Announces Awards

Awards and honors at the San Rafael Military Academy's eightieth awards ceremony have been announced by the academy.

Cadet Douglas C. Kash of Mill Valley was awarded the Most Improved Cadet Medal for displaying the greatest degree of improvement in the programs of the academy.

To Cadet William S. Kickman of Greenbrae went the Consistent Effort Cord and the Versatility Award.

Cadet Dean Edouarde of Tiburon received the Cooperative Service Medal and certificate of achievement for selection to the Regular NROTC Program.

Cadet Philip H. Wray of San Rafael received the Cooperative Service Medal and the Excellence in Scholarship Medal for the second highest scholastic average for the year and the Sons of the American Revolution Medal for outstanding citizenship.
ing citizenship.

To Cadet William P. Bradley of San Rafael went the Cum Laude Honor Medal for the highest scholastic average for the year.

Cadet Steven J. Appleby of San Rafael was awarded the Daughters of the American Revolution Medal for outstanding qualities.

Plaques were presented to Cadet Timothy H. Huber of Mill Valley for Foreign Languages and Peter Trask of Corte Madera for Mathematics.

Cadet Richard LaMaster of Tiburon was promoted to master sergeant and Richard Lawrence of Kentfield to first sergeant.

Cadet Stephen Rayburn of San Anselmo was selected Battalion Adjutant for next year and also received the Superior Cadet Award.

The Athletic Proficiency Medal was awarded to Cadet Lance Blackburn of San Anselmo.

Recycling Drive Gets Tons Of Refuse

BERKELEY (AP) — Coordinators of the San Francisco Bay Area's first multipurpose recycling program say they have collected more than 50 tons of waste to be processed into usable new materials.

The total includes 40 tons of newsprint, 4 tons of common tin-plated steel cans, 6 tons of glass and one-half ton of aluminum cans.

Swim Program For Disabled

The Marin County Easter Seal Society will sponsor its first swim program for physically disabled adults at the Terra Linda Recreation Center, 670 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda, on Wednesdays at 11 a.m.

The swim program will be conducted along with the existing recreation program with Laurie Lanham, recreation therapist, as instructor.

Anyone interested in participating may notify society headquarters, 1601 Second Street, San Rafael.

Reed School Pupils Aid Africa Fund

A village in Africa will get a new school because of the efforts of students at the Reed School in Tiburon who raised $750 this year to donate to the School Partnership Program sponsored by the Peace Corps.

The youngsters raised the money by various fund raising activities, Principal Edward Mosconi reported yesterday.

The funds will be used to purchase building construction materials, Mosconi said. The villagers will donate the land and build the school with the assistance of a Peace Corps volunteer.

The children have requested their money be used for a school in Africa, Mosconi added. The Peace Corps has promised to let the children know the location and details of their partnership school, he said.

Since the self-help program was begun in 1964, according to Mosconi, 960 schools have been built abroad with contributions from more than 1200 American participants.

Checks On Medicaid

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky has adopted what may be one of the first computerized systems in the nation to pinpoint and correct abuses in its Medicaid program.

The heart of the operation is identification of both welfare clients and medical vendors whose claims under Medicaid seem to be out of line.

Muni Fare Hike Shelved In City

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — City supervisors Monday rejected a nickel boost in fares on the Municipal Railway.

The board sent the proposed measure back to the Public Utilities Commission for further study after a public hearing. The new 25-cent a ride rate had been scheduled to go into effect June 29.

Also killed outright by supervisors was a proposal to double student fares to $1 for a book of 10 rides.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

Bay Conservationist Wins Award

Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley, executive director of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, has been named the winner of the 1970 American Motors Conservation Award.

The awards have been presented annually since 1953 to 10 professional and nonprofessional conservationists for their efforts in the field of renewable natural resources.

Bodovitz was asked by the State Legislature in 1964 to head a one-year study to determine future courses for management of San Francisco Bay. Formation of the bay conservation and development commission was recommended by that study group.

McANALLY — Navy Petty Officer 1+C Robert G. McAnally, son of Robert W. McAnally of 391 East Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, has returned to Norfolk, Va., after seven months service aboard the frigate Belknap in the Western Pacific.

FORD — Elizabeth Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Ford of 433 Redwood Avenue, Corte Madera, will receive a bachelor of science degree in special education June 14 at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Ore.

WEST — Charles W. West, a graduate student at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, will be touring Europe this summer with the university's international folk dancers. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. West of 830 Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Bel Marin Keys.

MOYN — Marianne Moyne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Moyn, 297 Erin Drive, Marinwood, graduated last Friday with distinction from Principia Upper School, St. Louis, Mo.

RUMBERG — Joseph J. Rumburg, son of Joseph C. Rumburg Jr. of 650 Kernberry Drive, Marinwood, has graduated from Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Kan., with a bachelor of science degree in recreation.

CHRISTY — John Christy, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Christy of 36 Via Cheparro, Greenbrae, will be awarded a bachelor of science degree in biology Sunday at commencement exercises at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Ore.

SPALDING — Robin L. Spalding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred B. Spalding of 85 Chestnut Avenue, Ross, stationed with the Navy in Saigon has been promoted to petty officer third class. Spalding will return home on leave in August before being stationed aboard the destroyer, Joseph P. Kennedy, at Newport, R.I.

AMANS — Larry Amans of 203 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, will graduate Saturday in civil engineering in the honors program at Oregon State University.

East Petaluma Civic Group Elects Officers

Two new officers have been elected by the East Petaluma Civic Association.

Donald P. Petro, a Petaluman for three years, was named vice president and Marvin Hale, a one-year resident, secretary.

Petro is employed by Romac Pacific Construction of San Rafael and Hale works for Gage-Babcock and Associations, Inc.

Other association officers are Frank Thomas, president, and Lawrence R. Bernauer, treasurer.

Petro, who heads the association membership drive, said memberships still are available and can be received by contacting him or any officers.

YMCA To Aid College Frosh

A five-session course for graduating high school seniors on "How to Study in College" sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association will be held June 22-26 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Dean Robert F. Schwarz of Purdue University, an author of the course, will instruct the classes, a YMCA spokesman announced.

The course will include topics on: how people learn and forget; the art of listening; how to take lecture notes; motivation for maximum performance; basic study formula; techniques for review and preparations for tests.

Information may be obtained at the YMCA, 241 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

State Allocates Highway Taxes

Marin County has received $119,407 and Sonoma County $162,170 as their share of last month's $12,471,759 allotment of highway users taxes, state Controller Houston I. Flournoy has announced.

Marin cities sharing $9,332,882 apportionment to cities include: Belvedere, $2,028; Corte Madera, $5,567; Fairfax, $5,018; Larkspur, $5,570; Mill Valley, $7,934; Novato, $18,512; Ross, $2,133; San Anselmo, $8,636; San Rafael, $23,258; Sausalito, $4,596 and Tiburon, $4,272.

Southern Sonoma cities receiving allotments include: Cotati, $1,347; Petaluma, $15,394 and Rohnert Park, $4,377.

Car Tow-Away Zone Ordered For Petaluma

The first tow-away zone in Petaluma goes into effect Monday on east Washington Street between Copeland Street and the Highway 101 overpass.

Signs warning against stopping will be installed on the street while the lane patterns are being changed to permit the two-lane street to be expanded to three.

Police Chief Larry D. Higgins said areas now used for street parking will become moving traffic lanes and that the parking ban will be enforced beginning on Monday. Cars blocking the free flow of traffic will be towed away at the owners' expense.

Radios For Mercy

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A new $300,000 emergency radio communications network links 12 hospitals in a mountainous 11-county region of southeastern Kentucky. It is designed to provide faster and more efficient medical treatment for rural residents of a 4,500-square-mile region.

Soft Cement To Save Lives

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Vermiculite concrete cushions, so soft that they can be dented with a thumb, are being designed for highway retaining walls and bridge abutments.

Research engineers, D. L. Ivey, Eugene Buth, and T. J. Hirsch of Texas A. and M. University's Transportation Institute developed the cushions to collapse under vehicle impact.

The program was funded by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads with the aim of reducing traffic deaths caused by cars striking existing rigid obstacles. Crash tests at speeds over 60 m.p.h. have verified the functioning of the cushion's ability to prevent serious consequences when a vehicle crashes into a concrete barrier.

Rent Reappraisal At Meadow Club

Despite the objections of board member Leo L. Stanley, the Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday called for a new appraisal of its lease agreement with the Meadow Club. (Another water district story, page 1).

Stanley eventually said he agreed to the new appraisal, which will be conducted by Real Estate Research Corp. of San Francisco.

San Anselmo appraiser David G. Cohn reported in April that the fair rental value of the 162 acres leased to the club is $5,000 a year. The club pays $480.

Cohn's report was met with immediate public criticism.

Board President Robert G. Anderson said yesterday that in terms of public interest, the Meadow Club lease is "the most important issue before this board since fluoridation."

Stanley began the discussion by voicing his opposition to a new apyraisals. He said he thought Cohn's report was fair, and that he preferred to have a "good tenant" who pays $5,000 a year and buys large quantities of water.

(William R. Seeger, general manager of the water district, told the Independent Journal after the board meeting that the Meadow Club's water bill is about $18,000 a year.)

"We shouldn't have a controversy because some man is disgruntled because he didn't get admitted to the club," Stanley said.

The most outspoken critic of Cohn's report has been Norman P. Higby of 59 San Marino Drive, San Rafael. Higby, a former golf course operator, told the board at its last meeting that Cohn's report was "inadequate, erroneous and irrelevant."

Stanley also questioned the $2,200 Seeger said Real Estate Research was asking.

Seeger called the firm "the Cadillac of the field" and said the company originally had asked for $3,000, but had agreed to $2,200. He said after the meeting that the fee may vary from $1,800 to $2,200.

Cohn's fee was $650.

With directors Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and William A. Marcus joining Anderson in support of the new appraisal, the board authorized Seeger to retain Real Estate Research to determine the fair rental value of the leased land.

Improvement District Pushed For Sewerage

The Marin Municipal Water District board yesterday declared its intention to create an improvement district to provide sewerage facilities for all Southern Marin areas draining into Richardson Bay.

The board also agreed to conduct a preliminary cost study of the plan.

Gen Mgr. William R. Seeger said it would take about a year to develop cost estimates and he estimated the cost of the study at $238,000.

The board scheduled a public hearing on the study proposal for 8 p.m. July 8 at the district office.

If the plan is adopted, the water district will provide sewerage collection and trucking facilities for the area now served by 10 sanitary districts.

The districts are Tamalpais Valley, Homestead Valley, Alto, Mill Valley, Richardson Bay, Tiburon, Belvedere, Sausalito-Marin City, Almonte and Kay Park.

The districts and the Marin County Board of Supervisors have asked the district to implement the plan.

The board yesterday appointed representatives of the districts to an advisory council for the study.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

RELOCATION — Accepted the low bid of $41,997 from Maggiora and Ghilotti, Inc., of Corte Madera for relocation of water lines along College Avenue and Corte Madera Creek in conjunction with the flood control project.

TANK — Approved plans and specifications and called for bids to be opened July 8 for the construction of the Escalle water tank in Larkspur.

BILLING — Opened, but held for analysis, bids on supplies for the district's proposed automated billing system.

MARINCELLO — Passed a resolution asking the county to levy a tax on Marincello property to pay the $11,948 due the district this year from the $52,800 agreed upon when the property was annexed to the district in 1967.

STINSON — Authorized the district's attorney to prepare legal documents for a proposed merger or annexation by the district of the Stinson Beach County Water District for the purpose of having the water district provide sewer service.

PAVING — Awarded to the low bid of $7,184 from Bresnan-Dalecio, Inc., of San Rafael a contract for filling around the Indian fire trail tank and paving of the Indian fire trail and Rafael Highlands tank sites.

FIRELINE — Approved a fireline extension agreement with Larkspur for replacement of a section of watermain on Olive Avenue between Madrone Avenue and Millard Road. The district and the city will split the estimated $3,375 cost.

PAYMENTS — Approved final payment of $1,094 for relocation of water lines on Shoreline Highway near the Richardson Bay Bridge, and $2,808 for installation of a tank supply line to Maggiora and Ghilotti, and authorized filing of a notice of completion and acceptance and semi-final payment of $6,181 to Zoellner Construction Co. of Ross for construction of concrete toilets at Lagunitas picnic grounds.

PUMPS — Approved purchase of a $543 pump from Westco Pump Co. of San Francisco, and awarded to Westco's low bid of $552 the purchase of another pump.

EQUIPMENT — Accepted a low bid of $4,675 from Pacific Wood Tank Co. of Healdsburg for a 50,000-gallon redwood storage tank; a low bid of $3,204 from Westinghouse Electric Supply Co. of Santa Rosa for electrical material; a low bid of $6,452 from Trident Engineering Co. of San Francisco for six valves; a low bid of $2,410 from Byron Jackson Pumps of San Francisco for a variable speed pump, and a low bid of $3,392 from Charles M. Bailey, Inc., of Emeryville for seven control valves.

PIPE — Approved purchase of $662 worth of pipe from the American Pipe Co. of Hayward.

MEETING — Postponed its next regular meeting June 24 to June 30 and adjourned until then in memory of William C. Herup, member of the board for 28 years, who died last month.

Utilities Board Fills Vacancy

The board of the Bolinas Community Public Utilities District last night appointed Clem C. Slater to fill a vacancy created when George F. West resigned April 8, according to Jane Boyer, clerk.

Directors voted to return a $3,000 retention fee to contractor Earl Gilson for the satisfactory completion of a water pipeline along Wharf Road, Mrs. Boyer said.

The board will hold its next regular meeting July 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, 270 Elm Road.

Report Asks Tamalpais Student Aid

A long and detailed report, more evolutionary than radical, will be presented to the Tamalpais High School District board by the district discipline study committee when the committee completes its work for the school year.

A final draft of the report will be completed Wednesday and discussed at a board-committee workshop meeting tentatively scheduled for June 30.

Major steps recommended in the latest draft of the report include hiring "ombudsmen" and setting up rules committees at each school.

The ombudsmen would see that student questions or complaints reached the proper authorities for action.

The committees, composed of students, administrators, teachers and members of the community, would consider validity of existing rules and be able to recommend new rules as needed.

The report, drawn by committee chairman George C. Stone and member Ellen Binckley, notes that eliminating disruptive behavior is not the only basis for evaluating discipline; an atmosphere of openness and trust must be established without coercion or arbitrariness.

Genuine conflicts of interest may exist in the school, the report states, and means should be set up to resolve them with the least antagonism.

The report recommends the administration set out hiring criteria with more emphasis on human relations skills; hire more "nonjudgmental" employees to hear students' needs in counseling and conferences; provide campus areas where students may have privacy, and provide different varieties of education such as alternative schools, more tutoring, more independent study and freer class scheduling.

Teachers, the report recommendend should take part in in-service training on cultural trends among youth, relating subject matter to the world of student interests, new teaching techniques and personal communication.

Students, the report recommended, should be given more control over their lives in school, with means provided to let them take part in policy making, suggesting changes, and encouraging student involvement and responsibility.

The community should be brought into the process, the report suggested, by "an aggressive community relations program" to tell the district's goals and processes, by more counseling services for parents and their children, and by seeking ways to make the schools more responsive to the concerns of parents and the community.

Ross Valley-San Rafael Study Set On Sewer Outfall

The Ross Valley Sanitary District Board last night approved making a joint study with the San Rafael Sanitation District for a sewer outfall line in San Francisco Bay beyond Corte Madera Creek.

The board also invited San Quentin Prison to participate in the study, reported District Mgr. Ralph C. Noah.

The board approved a 5.5 per cent pay raise for employees for 1970-71. The raise will cost $5,760 for the year, but the salary budget will remain the same because one employee has left the district, Noah said. The board will hold a 1970-71 budget hearing at 8 p.m. July 8 in the district office, 11 Library Place, San Anselmo.

New board member George C. Davison was seated, replacing Philip F. Kendall, who did not run for reelection this year.

46 Indicted In New York Mafia Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dist. Atty. Eugene Gold said today that 46 reputed Mafia figures have been indicted on contempt charges for refusing to testify before a grand jury probing the infiltration of legitimate business by organized crime.

Squads of police and Gold's investigators staged a series of raids earlier in the day and rounded up 35 of the defendants.

The indictment charged the 46 with criminal contempt of court.

The grand jury began its investigation in May of 1968.

The defendants included members of reputed Mafia families identified with the names of Joseph Bonanno, Carlo Gambino and Joseph Colombo, Gold said.

He said those indicted included Paul Sciacca, said to be former boss of the Bonanno family; Natale Evola, identified as the present boss of the Bonanno group; Aniello Della Croce, underboss of the Carlo Gambino family, and Philip Rastelli, underboss in the Bonanno family.

Gold said it was believed that some of the 46 indicted were either dead or missing.

Hurl Plants At Cars

Vandals pulled three two-foot-high plants from a planter box at Credit Motors, 625 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, and threw the plants at autos on the lot, police reported today. Employee Herbert L. Lucas said the plants were not damaged and would be replanted.

CONCERT REVIEW

'Pink Panther' Mancini Swings In Opera House

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

SAN FRANCISCO — May the gods forgive me, but to hell with Brahms, Bach and Beethoven for a moment.

Last night it was Henry Mancini at the San Francisco Opera House.

Mancini, who had been given kind of a bum rap in his last appearance in the Bay city, completely captivated his audience as well as his ensemble.

The guest conductor, who has been kicking around film studios as a musical director for more than a decade, presented some of those tunes that we oldsters have found ever tasteful for lo, these many years, (i.e. current films and late run films on television.)

His presentation brought back such memories as "Mr. Lucky;" the song from "Charade;" the theme from the "Pink Panther;" "Days of Wine and Roses," and the unforgettable "Moon River" from the film version of Truman Capote's "Breakfast at Tiffany's."

However, the big surprise of the "pops" evening was Mancini's introspective look into his own life with his "Beaver Valley" suite which presents a musical solitude of a bleak life in Pennsylvania where Mancini grew up. While this composition may not rank with our avante garde scores, it brings back something of the struggling days of the Depression. Thanks to a great job by flutist Paul Renzi, who introduced the first of the three movements, it was a stimulating composition.

While this score represented something of a departure from the traditional Hollywood scene, Mancini probably got a bigger kick out of conducting those other things which he composed as well as those compositions from such films as "Romeo and Juliet" and the unforgettable "Laura."

Packaged in between was his "Peter Gunn" theme with guest soloist Bud Brisbois on the trumpet.

Getting just about as big a kick out of this informal evening was retiring concertmaster Jacob Krachmalnick who looked as if he grooved with the Hollywood sounds.

The sonority can be forgotten for once. It was a concert geared for not the "now" generation nor the true lovers of the masters, but for those who like to relax und enjoy a nostalgic look at life.

This concert for the "short hairs" will be repeated at the Opera House 8:30 p.m. Friday. It's worth a visit.

Lack of moisture and a hot spring makes this potentially an extremely hazardous fire year. Wildfires are killers. Warn your children and use care in the woods.

San Francisco's Crime Rate Off

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police Chief Al Nelder says there was a 10 per cent decline in major crimes in San Francisco for the first five months of 1970.

In May this year, 3,504 major crimes occurred, compared with 3,560 last year, for a 2 per cent drop, Nelder reported Wednesday.

Compared with the same five month figures in 1969, Nelder said forcible rape in 1970 was up 20 per cent, robbery down 17 per cent, homicide down 9 per cent, burglary down 1 per cent, assault no change and auto theft down 20 per cent.

Kennedy Seeks Reelection, Denies '72 Presidency Aim

BOSTON (UPI)—U.S. Senate Majority Whip Edward M. Kennedy, fulfilling a promise made last summer after Mary Jo Kopechne died in his car, announced today he would seek reelection for a full six-year term and ruled out a presidential bid in 1972 "for personal reasons."

The 38-year-old Democrat said he planned to fly to Washington later today to vote against an amendment by Sen. Richard Byrd, d-W.Va., which would cripple Senate efforts to cut off funds for U.S. entry into Cambodia.

Asked if he would serve the full term if elected, Kennedy told a news conference, "If elected, I will serve the six years in the Senate."

He refused to predict whether he would consider a presidential race in 1976—when his term would expire — saying, "If there's something our family has learned over the years, it is not to make long-term plans."

Asked why he ruled out any presidential race in 1972, Kennedy said, "I made that decision for personal reasons, among others."

Josiah A. Spaulding, former Republican tSate Committee chairman, is seeking the GOP Senate nomination and John J. McCarthy, onetime state administration and finance commissioner, is running as an independent.

The senator was surrounded in his Beacon Hill apartment overlooking the Charles River by his wife Joan and their three children as he made the announcement.

Kennedy called the "real issue" in the upcoming election "the quality of leadership in the 1970s."

His responsibilities as assistant majority leader whip will require his attendance in Washington throughout much of the coming months, Kennedy said, adding "I'll be back here as much as I possibly can. Every available opportunity, I'll spend back in the state."

Mark Jones: Terra Linda High's Award Winner

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Mark Jones, a graduating senior at Terra Linda High School, begins his pole vaulting approach more than 100 feet from the pit. He stands there, the 15 foot fiberglass pole balanced on his shoulder, waiting until his concentration is complete.

Then, slowly he starts down the runway carrying the pole as though it were a weapon. His speed builds until he slams the pole into the box, and seconds later, after crossing over the bar some 13 and one-half feet above the ground, he drops to the burlap covered foam rubber in the pit.

"Mark is definitely the most competitive track athlete we have ever had at Terra Linda," says his coach, Barry Amsden. He is certainly the best pole vaulter ever produced in this county. In the Marin County Athletic League championships a month ago he soared 14 feet, 1 inch to break the old league record by slightly more than a foot.

In the finals of the California Interscholastic Federation championships last Saturday at Berkeley, he finished 1t2h in a field of 18 at the height of 13 - 6.

For these efforts, and because, as Terra Linda Principal Frank Stocking puts it, "He is an unusually fine young man and is strongly respected by both students and faculty," Mark Jones has been awarded scholarships by both the Italian Athletic Club of Marin, and the San Rafael Teachers' Association.

He will receive the $500 a year Italian A.C. award at the club's presidential dinner on June 24 at Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley. This is the first year for the award, which, ironically, is being given to a non - Italian.

The teachers' scholarship, for $200, is given annually to a student who, like Mark, plans to go into teaching.

In addition to the scholarships he was named the Trojans' top track athlete for the last two seasons. Besides his success in the pole vault, Mark was the best high hurdler in the league this season, and one of the five best high jumpers.

At 6 feet, 4 inches, he is, most coaches would say, too tall for a pole vaulter. He was considerably shorter, however, when he first vaulted at the age of 10.

The most significant turning point in Mark's career was also the single most important inovation in the sport's history—the advent of the fiberglass pole. He remembers watching during the Pacific 8 championships two years ago when Bob Seagren of USC became the first man to successfully use the then experimental pole. The following season Mark changed to fiberglass and has used it ever since.

Today he uses a 170 pound test pole, although he weights 178. At the beginning of the 1970 season, Terra Lnda bought a pole for him, with which he eventually broke the league reccord. Now however, that pole has lost a good deal of its original resiliancy, and he is looking for another.

If he can find one, he will take part in an invitational meet at Kezar stadium June 20.

Sometime within the next month he will undergo surgery on his right elbow, which he first injured in a football game during his freshman year. The operation will be for removal of bone chips that have bothered him off and on since that time.

When the elbow isn't working, and most of last season it wasn't, the arm swells up, and only by taping it heavily can he hold down the pain.

Hopefully the surgery will solve the problem. If it does, Mark is confident that he will vault in the neighborhood of 15 feet next year at Chico State, where he will enroll in the fall.

Baseball Umpires Really Nice Guys

Baseball umpires are blind rats and legalized robbers, right?

I mean, to hear ballplayers and some fans talk, you wouldn't want your sister to marry an arbiter and you certainly wouldn't invite one home for mom's apple pie, right?

Umps have been the butts of more bum jokes than the Poles, Italians and Irish combined.

Cannibal: "Oh, umpires are alright but did you ever try to clean one?" That type of thing.

There just seems to be something about those little cub scout beanies, blue suits and dead pans that evokes a rhapsody in boo. Hell, by comparison, the Viet Cong would get a standing ovation in Congress.

Can't Be All That Bad

But, anyone who wears a beanie, roars things like "bah tuh" and "stee-rah" and "yerowwwww," blatantly exposes his posterior in the direction of the pitcher's mound while he cleans home plate with a whisk broom, can't be ALL bad.

No sir. That umps are warm and human and kindly gentlemen is told by Marin Catholic High School coach Gary Hughes who is helping the Knights of Columbus stage the North-South Marin County all-star high school ball game in San Rafael next Thursday.

When Hughes told Dick Code of the Northern California Umpires Association about the game and that the sponsors were trying to cut some financial corners, Code responded by announcing the NCUA would donate the services of six umpires. FREE OF CHARGE.

Six umps? Hell, that's enough to arbitrate World War III. Maybe they figure there is safety in numbers.

"Imagine that," said a grateful Hughes, who liked to have fainted. "Umps are so maligned and pictured as bad guys when they are really a decent lot."

So remember that next Thursday when the men in blue take their positions on the field. A standing ovation would seem to be in order. Save your boos for later.

From Shooting To Politics

TWO TIME OLYMPIC and World rifle champion Gary Anderson, a genuine big shot who made many friends in Marin County while studying at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo a few years back, has switched his sights to politics.

That's the word from the National Rifle Association of America, of which Anderson is a director, which reports Gary has withdrawn from international competition to campaign for the office of Kearney County (Nebraska) treasurer in the November elections. He won the Republican party nomination in the May primary.

While announcing he has "won everything I wanted to win when I began serious training, and there is nothing left to win that I have not already won," Anderson left the door ajar for a possible return to Olympic shooting in the 1972 Games.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH alumnus Rocky Shone, a catcher playing summer semi-pro ball in the Dakotas, is listening to all professional bids but won't sign until he receives what he considers a good major league offer. If none comes along, the Rock will return to Cal next season where he still has another year of eligibility. And that might not be such a bad deal because the Golden Bears have a trip to Italy scheduled.

JOHN W. FRANZMAN, 1963 graduate of San Rafael High School, has been elected president of the San Joaquin Valley Sportswriters and Sportcasters Association in Fresno where he is a news and sports announcer with Radio Station KYNO. Franzman succeds former major league baseball player Guy Zernial as head of the group.

Anglers May Lose Chance For Record

HONOLULU (AP) — The crew of the charter boat "Coreene-C" hauled in a 1,805-pound Pacific Blue Marlin, Wednesday, largest fish — other than sharks — ever caught by rod and reel.

The 15-foot marlin was landed in 45 minutes after Cornelius Choy, the captain of the charter boat, and his daughter Gail helped others aboard fight the giant fish.

The International Game Fish Association lists the previous non-shark record as a 1,560-pound Black Marlin caught in 1954 off Cabo Blanco, Peru.

The association lists the largest fish ever caught by red and reel as a 2,664-pound man-eating shark hauled in at Ceduna, South Australia, in 1959.

Peter Fithian, chairman of the Hawaii visitors bureau and founder of the Hawaii International Billfish Tournament, said the fish caught Wednesday three miles off Makaha, near Honolulu, may not qualify for an official sports fishing record since no one person landed it.

Three couples from Los Angeles had chartered the boat for the day. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Morelles and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Wachtler.

Mays Not Getting Day Off

The schedule says he can rest. But the 39-year-old outfielder flew to New York for a Boy Scout luncheon and was scheduled to return to San Francisco in time for a benefit softball game tonight.

It was suggested he might get more rest if the Giants had to play.

AGREES

"You know, I think you're right," he said after Wednesdays 4-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

His 14th home run of the season and the 614th of his career — leaving him 100 short of Babe Ruth's all-time record — broke a 2-2 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Mays had only 13 homers last year, but refuses at this point to get excited over his early home run output.

"I had 52 one year," he said, "so what does it prove?"

The Giants will present southpaw Lee Pitlock in his major league pitching debut Friday night when they open a three-game series here with St. Louis.

The Pirates, also off today, plan to start Dock Ellis, 4-4, and Bob Veale, 5-5, Friday in a doubleheader that opens a series in San Diego.

TWO IN TWO NIGHTS

One Pitch And Another Save For Mudcat Grant

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Jim (Mudcat) Grant strolled to the mound for one pitch to get his second save in as many nights and another reliever, Paul Linblad, was credited with the victory as four Oakland pitchers labored to drop the Cleveland Indians, 6-4, Wednesday night.

Grant, an ex-Indian, pulled out a save Tuesday night against the Tribe. His save Wednesday night brought to three the number of saves he has made gainst the Indians this season.

'GREAT'

"You can't say anything but superlatives about Grant," said Oakland Manager John McNamara. "He's been great. He's done the job every time we've called on him."

The A's wind up a three-game stand here tonight with Chuck Dobson (5-6) facing Indians ace Sam McDowell (8-4).

Of all three relievers used in Wednesday night's game, McNamara said: "When they were called on . . .at that moment when we needed it the most . . .they all did the job, which was the important thing tonight."

Even though Linblad was awarded the victory, he was disgruntled about officiating. "I was disgusted with plate umpire Bill Kunkel. He made me throw four strikes to Duke Sims and he still walked him in the ninth inning. I was mad because I wanted a save. That's what a reliever gets paid for doing."

Linblad was pulled from the game after walking Sims. But the scorer awarded the game to Linblad for his pitching performance.

Grant came on with two out and one on and Eddie Leon flied to Rick Monday on the first pitch.

ARM ALL RIGHT

John (Blue Moon) Odom started for the A's. He didn't pitch too well, but the A's were encouraged since he didn't experience any of the arm trouble that has plagued him this season.

The A's scored four runs in the second inning as Felipe Alou, who singled with two out, advanced on Frank Feranndez' single and scored on Dick Green's single. Fernadez scored on a high throw to the plate by Vada Pinson. Odom doubled and Bert Campaneris singled for two more runs.

FLOOD CASE OVER

Decision Not Due For Some Time

NEW YORK (AP) — The hands on the clock of room 1505 in the Federal Court building stretched past 3 p.m. as Judge Irving Ben Cooper, the mustachioed jurist who has been hearing the Curt Flood case, spoke to the silent assemblage.

"We now close," said Judge Cooper, "the one and only trial record in this case."

And that, until Judge Cooper hands down his decision, is the immediate significance of the Flood case—the first court hearing in history in which the merits of baseball's controversial reserve system have been argued.

'UTMOST CARE'

Then Judge Cooper acknowledged that the proceedings, covering 21 witnesses testifying to about 2,000 pages of trial transcript in three weeks and a day, had been fought by counsel for both sides as "a cause" that compelled him "to sail with the utmost care.

"We are," said Judge Cooper, "resolved to call them as we see them as they come across the plate."

With that the judge reserved decision and the public proceedings of Flood's $3 million antitrust suit challenging the legality of the reserve system ended Wednesday following final testimony by Bill Veeck, a hassle over several documents and a challenge to the memory of a key defense witness.

Veeck, a flamboyant, unconventional former club owner, brought laughter and several alternatives to the reserve clause to the court room as the last of the 10 witnesses to appear for Flood. But the atmosphere changed after his testimony.

DEBATE

First, there was considerable debate and protestations by baseball's defendants over several documents Flood's attorneys wanted accepted in evidence, and then there was a hush in the court room as the defense recalled John Gaherin to the stand.

Gaherin, the owners' labor negotiator, contradicted several statements made Tuesday by Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, and provoked a challenge under cross-examinion by Jay Topkis, one of Flood's attorneys.

"Did Mr. Miller deliberately tell untruths or is your memory better?" Topkis asked Gaherin.

"I guess," Gaherin replied, "my memory was better than his."

STILL IN DISPUTE

"It is conceivable isn't it," Topkis then asked, "that on certain matters his is better?"

"It's conceivable," replied Gaherin.

And with that testimony concluded—leaving in question the subject in dispute: Did the Players' Association stop bargaining on modification to the reserve clause system when Flood instituted suit? Miller said they hadn't, Gaherin contended they had.

Earlier in the day, a packed court room, including Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Justice Arthur Goldberg, Flood's chief counsel, returned to the scene of the trial—although Flood did not—as the controversial Veeck took the stand.

Veeck did not disappoint the curious, appearing as usual in a wide-lapeled, open-at-the-neck shirt, quipping about his relationship with baseball's brass and refusing to directly admit that he had mellowed somewhat

Swimmers: Aquatic Club Is New Name

The merged Marin and San Rafael swim clubs hereafter will be known as the Marin Aquatic Club.

Directors of the combined organization last night selected that name from a list of approximately 35 suggested by members.

The club, active in Amateur Athletic Union age group competition; will receive its new AAU charter in time for meets at Mill Valley and San Leandro on June 26-27-28, according to coach Don Swartz .

The clubs voted to pool their combined memberships of approximately 250 youngsters last month to field a stronger team.

Lonborg Placed On Disabled List

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox announced Wednesday they have placed injury-plagued Jim Lonborg on the 21day disabled list because of recurrent pain in his pitching shoulder.

The club also changed the status of utility man George Thomas from coach to active player.

Lonborg, the 1967 Cy Young Award winner as he won 22 games in the Red Sox' drive to the pennant and two more in the World Series, suffered a serious knee injury in a skiing accident the following winter and has been bothered by injuries of one sort or another ever since.

Basketball

PITTSBURGH — Jack McMahon, dismissed in midseason as head coach of the NBA San Diego Rockets, was named head coach of the Pittsburgh Pipers in the rival ABA.

Tennis

BRISTOL, England — Dennis Ralston of Los Angeles was upset by Owen Davidson, Australia 6-1, 6-8 in the third round of the Bristol Open.

Hockey

MONTREAL — The Buffalo Sabres, making the first pick in the NHL expansion draft, selected forward Tom Webster of the Boston Bruins, then traded him to the Detroit Red Wings for goalie Roger Crozier.

Horse Racing

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Raise Sand, $10.60, beat Utah Aggie by a neck in the feature at Hollywood Park.

ALBANY, Calif. — Fancimine, $7.80, scored by 2 lengths over Warm Blend in the headliner at Golden Gate Fields.

SEALS LOSE 4 PLAYERS IN DRAFT

Montreal (AP) — The Oakland Seals yesterday lost the services of four players in the National Hockey League's expansion draft to stock the new Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks.

Buffalo took forwards Brian Perry and Howie Menard while Vancouver grabbed veteran goalie Charlie Hodge and forward Bob Dillabough.

The new teams shelled out a total of $6,000,000 for 20 players.

lord Perry, 9-6, and the Pirates Bob Moose, 6-5.

The Bucs, on consecutive first inning singles by Richie Hebner, Roberto Clemente, Stargell and Al Oliver, led 2-0 and had runners on first and second with one away.

But when Manny Sanguillen lined to Ken Henderson in left, Stargell played it a bit too casually getting back to second and was doubled off the base on Henderson's quick relay.

Stargell, who had strayed only about six steps from the bag, said later: "I just fouled up. There's not much I can say. Mistakes like that hurt you."

Moose made few mistakes He allowed just four hits—none between the first and eighth innings—but three of them were homers. Willie McCovey had a two-run shot in the first and Henderson added a homer in the eighth after Mays'.

Mays' homer was poked to right on what Moose called a "bad pitch."

"But McCovey deserved his. It was a low fast ball just where I wanted it," he said.

The big first baseman now has 19 homers and 50 RBI on only 45 season hits.

in his appreciation of his former colleagues.

ALTERNATIVES

He suggested three alternative contracts, pro football's option clause; the movie industry's standard seven-year contract after which a performer is free to negotiate for himself; and a possible arrangement by which a club's hold on a player would be limited by contract both in the minors and the majors.

Veeck said he thought the alternatives workable and said he favored them because "everyone, at least once in his business career, should be able to determine his own future—not be held in perpetuity."

The reserve clause does exactly that.

Whether it is legal or illegal is now a question for Judge Cooper—and that answer may not be handed down for some two months.

London Firm Ready To Buy The Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerome D. Hoffman, the president of a London investment company, arrived in New York late Wednesday night, ready to purchase the New York Yankees from the Columbia Broadasting System.

Although informed that CBS has said the team is not for sale, Hoffman remained undaunted. "We'll see what happens," he said. "We don't want to embarrass anyone.

"We can go $20 million, $22 million, $25 million. It all depends on the books. If they want to sell we want to buy."

Hoffman, a former St. Louisan who is president of International Investors Group Services Ltd., said he had talked by telephone with former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who is board chairman of the investment group, and will see him today.

He also said he received a call from Michael Burke, president of the Yankees, while he was in London, but he didn't elaborate on the call.

Burke said late Wednesday "the club is not for sale."

"We are not negotiating," he said. "I don't know Mr. Hoffman. If he said he spoke with me on the telephone, he must have meant he spoke with my office. I never have met the man."

Valiant's Skipper Pleased With Yacht's Performance

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Skipper Robert W. McCullough is pleased with the way his yacht Valiant is behaving during the America's Cup preliminary trials, but he isn't so happy about the rules.

McCullough of Riverside, Conn., sailed Valiant to another victory over Intrepid Wednesday on Long Island Sound, but lost a protest ruling that he had deliberately brought on in Tuesday's second race.

After Intrepid had won the first two races Monday of this five-day series, Valiant finished in front in Tuesday's two tests against Intrepid, but Intrepid skipper Bill Ficker lodged a protest in the second race.

UPHELD

The New York Yacht Club's race committee upheld the protest Wednesday, giving the victory to Intrepid.

Ficker had protested under a right-of-way rule which says a starboard tack boat has the right of way over a port tack one, a protest prompted by manuevering six minutes before the start of the race.

McCullough, however, saw the rule in a different light.

"There is a kind of a blank spot in the rules where nobody knows the answer," he said. "We felt this was something we wanted to get a ruling on and the preliminary trials would be a good time to do it."

The question he wanted answered was: how much manuevering is a starboard tack boat allowed to do to block a port tack boat? He deliberately brought on the protest to get an answer, but he was not satisfied that the committee's ruling answered the question.

However, he was happy with the performance of Valiant.

I'm very pleased with the way the yacht is going, considering how early it is in the season," he said.

These trials continue today when Heritage, a yacht from Florida under Charles E. Morgan, joins the action to determine America's Cup defender against either a French or Australian challenger in September. Friday will conclude this set of trials, and two more trial series will be held in July and August.

Heritage, which arrived from Florida Tuesday, was expected to join the chase Wednesday, but Morgan decided he needed more time to tune up his 12 meter yacht. The race committee planned to match Heritage against Intrepid in today's first race.

DECISIVE

In Wednesday's race, Valiant turned in her most decisive victory, 2 minutes 22 seconds, over the 10.8 mile course. The race was delayed five hours in starting because of a lack of wind, but when it began, Valiant once again showed distinct superiority on every windward leg. She led by 1:47 after the first windward leg.

Soccer Bribe Rumors

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The International Football Federation has ordered a full inquiry into rumors surrounding Brazilian referee Airton Vieira de Moraes and possible bribes in the World Cup Soccer Championships.

Rene Court, press officer of FIFA said Wednesday night that "Mr. Moraes should have refereed the Uruguay vs. Sweden match at Puebla today.

RUMORS

"But because of very malicious rumors that were circulating in Puebla and also Mexico City, it was decided that he should be removed from that game.

"Sir Stanley Rous, the FIFA president, made the decision after consultation with Mr. de Moraes and also Ken Aston, vice chairman of FIFA's referee's committee.'

Instead of de Moraes, United States official Henry Landauer of San Rafael refereed the Sweden-Uraguay match won by Sweden, 1-0. Landauer had been scheduled to work the Italy-Israel match scheduled today, but changed places with de Moraes. De Moraes was on the line at Russia vs. El Salvador clash at Mexico City, won by Russia, 2-0.

In other games yesterday, Kerhard Muller scored three goals for the second time in the World Cup to lead Germany to a 3-1 victory over Peru, and Brazil defeated Romania 3-2 on two goals from ace Pele.

Asked for comment, de Moraes said he had been forbidden by FIFA to say anything about the case.

He added: however: "I can deny that anyone tried to bribe me and will be refereeing the game between Israel and Italy Thursday as FIFA has instructed me."

PROBE DUE

Court refused to elaborate on the rumors.

He said: "FIFA will investigate the situation fully. It will remain a job of the referees' committee, but if the findings deem necessary, the matter will be passed on to the FIFA Organizing Committee."

Alfredo Fernandez, president of the Uruguayn team, said the change of referees had been made because of "rumors over an intention to bribe."

He would not elaborate further.

Tam, Terra Linda Win In Baseball

Tamalpais routed Novato 13-1 and Terra Linda whipped Toby's Truckers 10-1 last night in the Marin Division, Joe DiMaggio Baseball League.

Tam's easy romp was largely the product of Jim Bloom who had three hits in three at-bats and Cliff Hall who had a triple and three runs batted in. Mike Johnson was the winning pitcher.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Orioles Using That Old Rule

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Hit 'em where they ain't," said a rather ungrammatical Wee Willie Keeler in baseball's long lost past. He would have loved the job the Baltimore Orioles did with that strategy Wednesday night.

The Orioles, perhaps beginning to feel the hot breath of the surprising New York Yankees on their backs, had a couple of hits fall just beyond the reach of California fielders and it added up to the winning run in a 2-1 victory over the Angels.

That triumph kept Baltimore 4½ games ahead of the red-hot Yankees in the suddenly developing American League East race. New York nipped Minnesota 2-1 for its seventh victory in the last eight games. Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit trimmed Milwaukee 7-5, Washington belted Kansas City 8-1, Oakland downed Cleveland 6-4 and Boston nipped Chicago 7-6 in 14 innings.

In National League action, it was Houston 5-3 over New York; Cincinnati 7, Montreal 0; Atlanta 5-1 over Philadelphia; San Francisco 4, Pittsburgh 2; San Diego 11, Chicago 8, and Los Angeles 4, St. Louis 2.

The Orioles scored a run without a hit in the first inning and Jim Palmer made it stand up until the seventh when California's Jay Johnstone homered to tie the score. Then in the bottom of the seventh, things started going Baltimore's way.

With two out, Don Buford singled in the hole between third baseman Ken McMullen and shortstop Jim Fregosi. Merv Rettenmund followed with an opposite field drive which right fielder Roger Repoz barely missed near the wall. The shot went for a triple scoring Buford with the winning run.

Buford had walked and scored in the first after being trapped off first base in an aborted attempted steal. Sandy Alomar's throwing error in the rundown allowed Buford to reach third and he came in on a ground out.

Horace Clarke's two-run homer carried Mel Stottlemyre to a four-hit victory over Minnesota and rookie Bert Blyleven.

Stottlemyre singled with two out in the fifth ininng and Clarke followed with his fourth homer to erase an early Minnesota lead. Stottlemyre 6-4, struck out seven walked one and did not allow a hit after the fourth inning when Tony Oliva opened with a triple and scored the Twins' run on Rich Reese's grounder.

Al Kaline produced two runs with a long homer and pinch hitter Gates Brown produced two more with a short single as Detroit rallied for four in the seventh to hand Milwaukee its 16th consecutive road defeat.

The Brewers tagged Earl Wilson for four runs in the second and were still leading 4-3 in the seventh when Kaline turned the game around with his two-run homer. Then, with the bases loaded later in the inning, Brown caromed a single off Mike Hegan's glove for two more runs. Dick McAuliffe had two homers for the Tigers.

Rico Petrocelli ripped his second grand slam homer in four days and Tony Conigliaro tied the score with a two-run shot in the ninth inning as Boston wiped out a five-run Chicago lead to beat the White Sox.

George Scott singled, raced to third on a passed ball and then scored on Bill Melton's error for the Red Sox' winning run in the 14th.

Frank Howard had a perfect night with two singles and three walks, driving in two runs and even stealing a base as Washington whacked Kansas City.

Vince Lombardi Hasn't Mellowed

Vince Lombardi was guest speaker at a Boy Scout fund raising luncheon in Chicago. It happened to be a day off for the Giants who were in Chicago for a weekend series with the Cubs. So one of the baseball writers traveling with the Giants took in the luncheon.

Lombardi still is a man of incisive words. He still speaks in trenchant sentences. He hasn't changed even a little bit since the days he tongue-lashed the Green Bay Packers out of a decadent mediocrity.

LOMBARDI HASN'T wellowed now that he is coach and general manager of the Washington Redskins. At a press conference preceding the luncheon, this became immediately evident.

A persistent questioner tried to get Lombardi to concede a parallel between the violence of football and that on college campuses.

"I see no parallel," said Lombardi. "Football is disciplined violence."

"BUT AREN'T there occasional dirty players just as there are objectionable people on campuses?" the questioner pressed.

"I have been in the game a long, long time and I have never seen a dirty football player," said Lombardi.

Perhaps the tone of the press conference prompted Lombardi to speak about patriotism at the luncheon.

"I do not question the right of young people to dissent," he said. "I only question their right to destroy. There is a difference. Dissent is a matter of articulation. Destruction is anarchy.

"I DON'T KNOW what all this revolution stuff is about. I just know I don't like to hear such talk."

Lombardi never was a speaker who belabored a point with unnecessary words. He said what he had to say on a sticky subject and he said it succinctly. Then he spoke about football.

He declared that the average player who comes up to the pros today is no different from the young man of five years ago.

"AND THAT includes the matter of long hair," said Lombardi. "What do I care how a player wears his hair? That's none of my business unless it affects his football.

"There is only one reason that I encourage players to wear their hair short. It is strictly medical. Long hair during violent activity induces perspiration which in turn induces infection. And infection in turn brings on boils which can infect an entire squad."

There's nothing fuzzy about the way Lombardi speaks.

Yacht Race For Cal-20s Scheduled

The Paradise Harbor Yacht Club will host a Cal — 20 Yacht Racing Association qualifying race Saturday off the club's marina at Paradise Cay, near Tiburon.

At least 35 Cal — 20 boats are expected to compete in the 10 mile race, which the Tiburon club is sponsoring for the San Francisco Bay Cal — 20 Association.

The race will be in the area bounded by Red Rock, Southhampton, Pt. Chauncey and Paradise Cay, where it will begin at noon.

The club also announced its spring series trophy winners. First place went to Mark Stock of San Rafael, who piloted an Excalibur 26. Warren Pollock of Mill Valley took a Coronado 25 to second, Walt Foster of Corte Madera won third in an Islander Bahama, Tiburon's Stan Behrens took fourth in an Alden 36, and in fifth place was Vic Piltch of Novato in a Santana 22.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG

When facing a split in which both pins are on the back line, as in the 7-9, don't try to shave a pin to convert the spare. The only time you should try it would be when your team is well ahead. Good advise is always to make sure of one pin . . . you know how many games are decided by only one.

DeYoung Running Away From Field

Terry DeYoung, 20-year-old lefthander from Novato, is running away from the field in the fourth annual Warriors West Coast Bowling Eliminations at Castle Lanes in San Francisco.

DeYoung hit the portside for a 279 high game and sizzling four game series of 963 — a 241 average — to lead his nearest competitor by 110 pins in the summer scratch competition.

DeYoung's 2715 total after three weeks leaves him with a 229 average.

Salt Lake Gets ABA Stars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Owner Bill Daniels of the newly relocated Utah Stars says he hopes to "make Salt Lake the Green Bay of professional basketball."

Daniels and his American Basketball Association team officially pulled up stakes Wednesday and moved from Los Angeles to this Mormon-dominated community.

At a news conference announcing the move, Daniels and other team officials expressed supreme confidence for next season.

They pointed out that the Stars jelled late last year under Coach Bill Sharman into a team that took the eventual champion Indiana Pacers to six games in the finals of the ABA playoffs.

Daniels indicated the year-old Salt Palace, where the Stars will play home games, was a major factor in bringing the team to Utah.

The sports - convention center can seat between 14,000 and 15,000 fans for basketball. It also is the home of the Golden Eagles of the Western Hockey League.

"In professional sports, the facility is the name of the game," Daniels said. "I feel the Salt Palace is comparable to Madison Square Garden and the Los Angeles Forum in every way—all they have is a few more seats."

He said Utah also was selected as new site for the franchise because it long has been "basketball country."

Young, Small, But Strong Describes John Farnkopf

By RALPH CHATOIAN

JOHN FARNKOPF
Teen-age title

If you can lift your own weight over your head, that's pretty darned good.

If you can lift twice your weight, that's really something.

John Farnkopf, 18-year-old senior at Drake High School, recent winner of the "Best Teen-Age Lifter In California" title, has come very close to doing just that, and he's still trying.

Standing 5-foot-u and weighting 138 pounds, the blond strongman hoisted 255 pounds in clean-and-jerk competition at the combined California State Amateur Athletic Union Teen-Age and State Junior Olympics weightlifting championships recently, in Berkeley.

CLOSER

"I've come closer to that," he said. "When I weighed 130½ pounds I lifted 255 once, so that was only missing by six pounds."

In addition to his 255 clean-and-jerk at the May 22 competition, John pressed 195 and snatched 180 pounds for a 630 total, winning the 148 pound division. One of the lightest performers in that division, Frankopf feels he may eventually advance to the 165-pound group. He still has a few years to grow. He won the state teen-age title on a pound-for-pound basis with the other winners.

Farnkopf has been lifting weights for the MarVel Ahletic Club for about two and one-half years, after lifting weights only as a hobby while a sophomore at Drake High.

"I didn't think of lifting in competition when I began lifting weights," said Farnkopf. "But I started lifting in competition and I just like it."

For John, one of four sons of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Farnkopf of 122 Calumet Avenue, San Anselmo, weightlifting is a full year of training, although the actual lifting season is from October through June.

His older brother, Frank, 20, tried weightlifting for a while but is now out of it. Jim, 16, isn't a weightlifter but Ned, 12, lifts weights and won the 93-pound division of the Junior Olympics. The boys' father is an engineer at the Marin Municipal Water District.

John does his weightlifting practice at the MarVel A.C., which is really the basement of coach Jack MacPhee's home in San Rafael. He practices six days of the week, about three hours each session. He says about 75 per cent of his practice is actual lifting and the other 25 per cent in conditioning. Other hobbies for the youth include tennis and water skiing.

John plans to attend College of Marin next September, and eventually hopes to study at a state college or university.

"TREMENDOUS"

In speaking of MacPhee, Marin County's foremost weightlifting enthusiast, John says "He's a tremendous coach . . . he really impresses me. Whether things go right or wrong, he just sticks with it."

Farnkopf doesn't think he'll be in any major competition until next season, beginning with the Central California championships in Fresno, in October. But his year-round training program of three hours lifting a day will continue until that time. And by then, he just might be lifting twice his weight.

COLLEGE WORLD SERIES

USC, Texas Vs. Upstarts

OMAHA (AP) — The Texas Longhorns and Southern California Trojans, old hands in baseball tournament competition, take on a pair of strong upstarts to open the College World Series Friday night.

The double-elimination tourney, drawing eight NCAA district winners throughout the nation, will stretch about a week, including scheduled play for the first time on Sunday. There will be a new champion since Arizona State failed to win a return trip.

After Friday's doubleheader, there will be three afternoon-night games Saturday and the same slated for Sunday. By this time, a winners-losers bracket should be firmed up and two teams eliminated by absorbing their second losses.

Texas (36-6) opposes the Delaware Blue Hens (22-4) at 5:30 p.m. CDT Friday in Omaha's Rosenblatt Stadium, followed at 8:30 p.m. by Southern California (47-12) facing the Ohio University Bobcats (31-4).

The two lossers will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. That night, the Florida State Seminoles (45-7) play the Arizona Wildcats (44-16) and the Dartmouth Indians (23-8) engage the Iowa State Cyclones (18-9).

Sunday's timetable calls for games between Saturday's loser as well as games between Friday and Saturday's winners.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
IGNACIO BOULEVARD RECONSTRUCTION
ALAMEDA DEL PRADO TO PALMER DRIVE
PROJECT 69-001
CITY OF NOVATO
MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Finance Director, City of Novato, California, until 4:00 o'clock p.m., on Thursday, June 25, 1970, for the furnishing of all plant, labor, materials, tools, equipment and machinery necessary for the construction of Ignacio Boulevard Reconstruction - Alameda - Del Prado to Palmer Drive Project 69-001.

The proposals will be publicly opened and read in the office of the Finance Director on the date and at the time mentioned above. Plans and specifications and proposal forms, may be obtained at the office of the City Engineer upon payment of a non-refundable printing and service charge in the amount of Six Dollars ($6.00). Other fee documents available from the City which may be applicable to this project are as follows: Novato Standard Specifications - $3.00, Uniform Standard Drawings of all Cities and County of Marin - $1.00. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Novato, and should be mailed to the Public Works Department, City of Novato.

The work to be done includes, but is not necessarily limited to: clearing and grubbing, roadway grading and construction, P.C.C. curbs, gutters and sidewalks, asphalt concrete resurfacing and all appurtenances necessary for the successful completion of the project as shown on the plans and specifications.

Notice is hereby given that on June 9, 1970, the City Council adopted a resolution determining the general prevailing rate of wages applicable to the work to be done, which shall be the minimum rates paid on this project, a copy of which wage scale is attached hereto.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids, to waive any informality in a bid, and to make award as the interests of the City may require. This notice is given by order of the Council of the City of Novato, California.

No bid will be received unless it is made on proposal form furnished by the City Engineer. Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the bid as a guarantee that the bidder, if the award is made to him in accordance with the terms of his proposal, will promptly execute a contract in the required form, secure payment of workmen's compensation insurance, and furnish a satisfactory faithful performance bond and a labor and material bond. Each of said bonds shall be in the sum of not less than one hundred percent (100%) of the estimated aggregate amount of the payments to be made under the contract, computed on the basis of the price stated in the proposal. In addition to the above, and if requested by the City, the bidder shall furnish a financial statement of recent date. Failure to comply with this requirement will render a bid informal and shall be sufficient cause for rejection.

The contractor shall complete the construction of the total project within forty-five (45) working days, the first day of which shall be the date of the City Engineer's notice to proceed.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Bone Marrow Failure Causes Variety Of Problems In Blood

Blood is manufactured mainly in the bone marrow where it is passed along into the bloodstream. Red and white cells live about 120 days; platelets have a short life expectancy, 3 to 6 days.

The production and destruction of blood are vital functions, and serious complications occur when either mechanism is disrupted.

Several related diseases occur when the bone marrow goes on strike and refuses to manufacture one or all types of cells. The existing cells soon die, and unless transfusions are given or bone marrow is reactivated, death ensues. Hematologists (blood specialists) now pin their hopes on marrow transplantation.

MARROW TRANSPLANT is done only when medical treatments with corticosteroids fail, and there is no chance of reactivating the bone marrow. As in all transplants, rejection is the old bugaboo, and considerable time is spent selecting the donors and giving immunosuppressives.

Tests show that when the marrow is injected it settles in the bone and works until it is rejected.

Bone marrow failure occurs when the tissue is "insulted" or exposed to a variety of chemicals, medicines, antibiotics, X-rays, radioactive agents, and viruses. Chloramphenicol is currently blamed for many cases. Now and then the cause escapes detection.

THE MANIFESTATIONS of a bone marrow breakdown may appear abruptly or slowly. When the formation of red cells lags (aplastic anemia), the victim becomes pale, weak, and tires easily. With further lowering of the hemoglobin (iron), shortness of breath, pounding of the heart, headache, and fever ensue. Involvement of the platelets induces bleeding.

White blood cells (leukocytes) are the body's first defense against infection. When in short supply, resistance is impaired and infections of the skin, urinary tract, lungs, and blood present serious problems.

Ulcers develop in the oral cavity, nose, and rectum.

A serious and disabling disorder ensues when all of the marrow elements are involved.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLD WORD, OLD TREATMENT

W. W. writes: Will X-ray cure catarrh?

REPLY

Thirty years ago X-ray was used to treat catarrh of the head and lungs. Occasionally it was successful. This type of therapy no longer is used because the results do not justify the risks attending too much radiation. Futhermore, the antibiotics do a better job in chronic respiratory infections. Incidentally the term catarrh has been practically eliminated from scientific terminology.

CRAMPED ESOPHAGUS

P. H. writes: How can a person with a cramped esophagus eat?

REPLY

Sitting up. If X-rays show that cramping does not represent narrowing due to tumor, stricture, or diverticulosis, your physician can prescribe an antispasmodic to be taken before meals. Avoid ice cold liquids and harsh dry foods. Marked spasm may require mechanical dilation.

OVEREATING

L. O. writes: Is an excessive appetite a sign of approaching trouble?

REPLY

Yes, if the hearty appetite leads to obesity or diabetes. Overeating also may indicate nervous tension. On the other hand, appetite improves when a person is free of stress. When he feels good, he enjoys food and is tempted to eat more.

DOPESTOP—Norman Hovda (right) 22, a former narcotics user, explains to a group of Phoenix, Ariz., high school students the perils of drugs. The teen-agers in turn spread the word to younger listeners, as volunteer lecturers in the elementary schools where they studied before going on to high school.

Teen-Agers Toiling In Dope Crusade

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — More than 2,000 Phoenix high school pupils have been going back to their elementary schools this year to tell fifth through eighth graders why teen-agers shouldn't use drugs.

The program is called Dope Stop and it's run by a 22-year-old former drug user named Norman Hovda.

It started last fall when officials of the Phoenix Community Organization for Drug Abuse Control became concerned with increased use of drugs by teen-agers.

Then came along Hovda, fresh from a bad trip on the hallucigen LSD which climaxed four years of using drugs including marijuana.

He joined John French, the idea's originator, on loan for a year from a computer research company.

They acquired a secretary and a publicity director and set up shop in the Maricopa County Mental Health Association building.

"School administrators were the biggest problem in setting up the program," French said, "Some in the grade schools were afraid to start something they thought the parents may not like."

But Hovda went to the high schools, working through guidance counselers to recruit pupils who wanted to learn about drugs and go back to their elementary schools to tell the fifth through eighth graders about the harm that drugs could do.

Hovda conducts monthly training sessions at 33 high schools with about 2,500 teen counselors. The emphasis is on "doing your own thing."

The teen volunteers are asked:

"Just why are you involved? Why don't you use drugs? Just what are you turned on to in this life?" When they have thought out those questions and answered them honestly, Hovda feels they are ready to go into the elementary school classrooms once a month with a message.

The volunteers are taught about the things young people experiment with and the drugs police say they will ineviatably be tempted to try.

"The student's return to the same elementary class month after month saddles him with a responsibility for that class," French says." He knows he either will succeed or fail. He feels he's really got a purpose.

"We haven't lost any teen counselors who've got off on drugs because of boredom."

The students are responsible for learning about drugs, selling the schools on the program, scheduling their own appearances, providing their own transportation and telling the younger pupils about drug dangers.

Their involvement has led to reflection among the volunteers on why young people turn to drugs. "Society presents problems, so people turn to dope. We must solve the problem, but we know we can't do it, so we educate."

Phoenix Police Chief Lawrence Wetzel paralleled the thought. "Dope Stop allows policemen to be policemen and takes care of the drug education aspect," he said. "It's hard to evaluate the effectiveness of the program, because it's hard to know how much didn't happen because of it."

Wetzel said arrests for marijuana and drugs are running about the same as last year in Phoenix, "but arresting these kids isn't going make them stop doing it. I don't think a kid will stop until he realizes what he's doing to himself."

The program has not been universally praised. Even some of the elementary pupils have criticized it. They are invited to.

"I think the Dope Stop program is a waste of time," a fifth grader wrote. "However, if you came more often, had some photographs, and had more than just talking I think it would be successful."

Teen counselors will meet this summer "to find out what their hassles have been and to try for more saturation," Hovda said. "They're already reaching about 30,000 kids a month," he added.

Pot Raid Is A Pleasant Social Event

A West Marin man who termed two sheriff's officers "the nicest cops I've ever met" yesterday led them on a search of his house and, then after posing in his thriving marijuana patch, willingly pulled up all 400 plants.

For all his politeness, Michael Lee McCoy, 25, of Valley Ford, ended up in Marin County Jail, where he was booked on suspicion of possessing and growing pot and having narcotics paraphernalia.

Joining him in jail was Joel Richard Duckett, also 25, who lives with him.

Constable Michael McLean said that he and deputy Joseph Kelly went to McCoy's rural residence yesterday after neighbors had reported there was a lot of suspected pot growing in plain view from the road.

After McCoy answered the door, he told McLean that "the last time I was busted, the cop kicked in the door." He then offered to take the officers on a tour of his house and when this was completed, he picked up a hoe and watering can and posed for pictures in the marijuana garden.

Still not wanting to trouble the officers, McCoy offered to pull up the plants himself. McLean described the confiscated plants as ranging from seedlings to four feet tall.

"He was a good farmer," McLean concluded about his new acquaintance.

Both McCoy and Duckett were held in lieu of $2,500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Nixon Getting Tough: Wants Crime Package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told Congress today to "get off dead center" on his crime legislative package and said the lawmakers may face retaliation from the voters in November if new anticrime laws are not passed.

"The major failure of this Congress has been its failure to act on any of these bills," Nixon said. "Partisanship is no excuse."

As the President was calling for action on Capitol Hill, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said in a speech on crime that criminal elements, whether Mafia leaders or dishonest repairmen, "must be fought with every weapon available and consistent with our Constitution."

Nixon, speaking informally to a group of U. S. attorneys visiting the White House, said Congress should "get off the dead center on which it has been operating, get these bills out of committee and get these laws passed."

There are 13 measures before Congress, ranging from drug control to pornography to control of explosives, he said.

"I understand partisan politics, I understand dragging feet on some issues," Nixon said. "That's the way the game is played. But crime is not a partisan issue."

Nixon said he has been receiving letters from around the country demanding action on crime legislation. He said crime is a top issue in public opinion polls taken around the country.

"Failure of Congress to act will be something for the people to remember," he said.

Nixon said the rate of increase of crime has declined recently and gave credit to Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who stood at his side during the meeting in the White House rose garden.

But he said law enforcement authorities need more effective tools and that they would be provided with passage of the administration's anti-crime program.

Nixon also called for "even-handed enforcement" of laws already on the books as a step toward re-establishing public confidence in the law.

"When a law is not enforced, that creates a disrespect for law," he said. "But when a law is unfairly enforced it also creates disrespect for law."

Nixon's audience was a delegation from the annual conference of federal attorneys, being held at the Statler Hilton Hotel, where Agnew in a prepared speech said that "criminal elements" are "truly the enemies of our country."

Bill That Caused Schrade Uproar Goes To Floor

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The legislation involved in a controversy over Senate leader Jack Schrade's acceptance last year of a $5,000 campaign contribution was approved Wednesday by the Assembly Finance and Insurance committee.

The measure, sponsored by Chairman Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, was sent to the floor on a voice vote with no audible dissents. It would permit thrift and loan companies, also called industrial loan firms, to compete in the lucrative home loan market.

Schrade, R-San Diego, accepted the campaign contribution last June from the California Association of Thrift and Loan Companies shortly after he voted for the bill in a Senate committee. The measure died on the Senate floor. Schrade also supported virtually identical legislation at previous sessions.

Cong Raiders Massacre 75 Civilians

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong guerrillas throwing grenades into bunkers filled with terrified villagers overran a South Vietnamese hamlet today and killed 75 civilians and injured 83 others.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said the incident killed the most civilians since the massacres at Hue during the Communist 1968 Tet offensive.

In Cambodia, Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops today seized part of the ancient ruins of Angkor Wat and attacked the Siem Reap Airport, from which Communist forces were driven last weekend.

The slaying of the civilians in South Vietnam was at Phu Thanh, a hamlet 16 miles south of Da Nang.

UPI correspondent Robert EM Sullivan reported from Phu Thanh that many of the civilians slain were wives and children of South Vietnamese soldiers or were war refugees.

The Vieg Cong attacked at 1:30 a. m. with mortar fire against a bridge.

"The real target was the civilian area," said Maj. Thomas J. Pentacost of Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Nearly every one of the homes in the village of 3,410 residents had an underground shelter. But the attackers lobbed grenades into them and U. S. officials said 34 persons were killed in one bunker alone. An old man, weeping, pointed to a level hut that had been his home. He said a single grenade killed his friend, Nguyen Tuan, his pregnant wife and their four children.

"There were dead people all over the place," said Pfc. Joseph Cusick, 21, a Marine from St .Paul, Minn.

Village chief Nguyen An said there were other bodies in collapsed bunkers.

Foes Hit Reagan's Tax Plan

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Reagan's tax reform plan has hit bitter opposition from school officials who say it will cripple their ability to provide quality education.

School spending controls in the measure amount to a "built-in guaranteed mediocrity for education in California," complained Robert E. Kelly, superintendent of Los Angeles city schools.

Rich districts will get richer and poor ones poorer, he told the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee during the measure's first Senate hearing. No action was taken during the lengthy hearing Wednesday and another hearing scheduled in two weeks.

BAGLEY UPSET

"They never came around until last Tuesday. They stood around and laughed at us until last Tuesday. Hordes of them," Bagley said.

He referred to ballot Prop. 8 on the June 2 primary election ballot, backed by most of the school establishment, which would have forced the state to pay 50 per cent of the cost of local public education. Prop. 8 lost by a 2-1 margin.

Bagley said his measure had to have controls over school spending in order to guarantee property tax relief.

Kelly said the bill raises taxes by $1 billion when is full operation in 1973 — "not one penny of which will be used for new state aid for schools."

"Surely we can do better for the children of this state," he said.

CHALLENGES BILL

And he challenged whether the bill actually would cut property taxes. Kelly said it would take a tax rate of $5.10 for each $100 assessed valuation of property "to maintain our present curtailed program" compared with a current rate of $4.80.

The Reagan plan passed the Assembly only after Democrats got a pledge that every effort would be made by the Republican administration to find new state aid for hard-pressed schools this year. Reagan and Bagley insist that school aid must come in a separate bill.

The tax bill would raise about $1 billion in new revenue by 1972-73 to finance large scale property tax relief. The major tax hike is a one penny increase in the five per cent state sales tax.

It would freeze school spending allowing only for increases justified by higher cost of supplies and salaries or more pupils. The tax rate could be boosted only by a vote of the district voters.

The educators bitterly complained that this would do away with current tax overrides allowed for special programs such as adult education and local costs of school lunch programs.

Russell Kent, superintendent of schools in San Mateo County, said administrators do not oppose the idea of spending controls but he said, "We believe these expenditure controls will fall capriciously on districts."

ATTACKS FREEZE

Kelly complained that the freeze, based on 1969-70 spending levels, would hit large urban districts "at low ebb." His massive district, largest in the state with an annual budget of $687 million, has had to pare spending by $67 million the past two years to meet available funds.

He and others said the controls would only aggravate a system where wealthy school districts can get by with a lower tax rate than poor districts with a smaller tax base.

Bagley said this situation would have been corrected by the statewide property tax feature he had in his bill, but was forced to delete in the Assembly.

"Many of the people crying about this disparity are the same people who opposed the statewide property tax," Bagley said. "It would have achieved equalization. But we haven't had one iota of assistance from school people to achieve equalization."

Other amendments are planned to make up an estimated $40 million deficit in the bill of proposed spending over increased income. This is caused by the current fiscal trend of higher welfare costs and less income from tax sources because of the economical down turn.

Meeting Postponed

The Kentfield Fire District Board has postponed its June meeting to 8 p.m. Wednesday at the main fire station because one board member is out of the county and Chief Kenneth T. Kamp is on vacation.

Popular Novato Teacher Putting Away Her Texts

By THERON A. NEWELL

At Lu Sutton school in Novato, there is a first grade teacher so popular that parents request that their children be put in her class, especially if older brothers and sisters have had her for a teacher.

That will end with this school year when Johnnie Guthrie retires after 16 years teaching in the Novato schools. It will be the end of a teaching career that began more than 40 years ago.

But teaching has been only one of her careers. Her life has also encompassed defense work in Detroit, Mich., and work in the atomic bomb plant at Oakridge, Tenn.

Born Johnnie Dodson in Athens, Tenn., and graduated from the McMinn County High School in Athens, she took the state teacher's examination and began teaching the first four grades in a two-room school at Marshall Hill, outside of Athens.

She also taught at Idlewild Junior High School there and coached the girl's basketball team as well.

"I have pictures to prove it," said Mrs. Guthrie, seeming to suspect her mature dignity might make it hard to believe that she ever ran around a gymnasium.

After schol was out for summer in 1942, she visited Detroit, where she took a job with Packard Motor Car Co., which put her through blueprint school. She became supervisor of blueprint reading for precision machinists, starting at $70 per week, compared to the $92.50 per month she had been getting as a teacher.

In 1943 she went to work as a cubicle supervisor for Tennessee Eastman Co. "Everything was top secret; we didn't know what we were doing," she said of her work. "All we had to do was watch a big series of dials in a room; we couldn't even visit other parts of the plant."

JOHNNIE GUTHRIE
Well taught children, her legacy

A highlight of this part of her career — though it gave no clue to what she was doing — was when Dr. Robert Oppenheimer once visited her cubicle in the plant, she said.

It was only after the bomb fell on Hiroshima on August 6, 1945, that they knew.

"It doesn't bother my conscience because we were working for the defense of our country that had been attacked," she said on inquiry. She said that she used to tell her classes of her work at first, but has not done that in recent years.

Her section of the plant was closed down in 1949, and in 1950 she married Harry Guthrie, a boy with whom she had attended school in Athens. They moved to Novato and lived at Second Street and Vallejo Avenue for a year while Harry built the house they still live in at 1205 Olive Avenue. He is a retired steel construction worker.

During these years, she had not neglected her own education. She graduated from Tennessee Wesleyan College and later took her master's degree in counseling and guidance from San Francisco State College.

It is the Novato school children that are her biggest legacy. During her 16 years teaching, nearly 500 students have felt her warm personality and charm in their daily lessons at school.

"I try to get them to think in addition to learning their lessons," she gave as one reason for her success with the children.

"Whenever a family has had a child in her class, they want their other children to have her for a teacher," said Alfred Rivasplata, principal of Lu Sutton school.

Not having any children of her own, she has given her students her love and attention. She is really devoted to them, Rivasplata said.

She has taught her first grade students the love of flowers. They have planted flowering bulbs outside her classroom. Now they can observe nature beautify a corner of the school grounds.

Another of her hobbies, folk dancing, she has shared with the students at the school. At home, her hobbies include playing the electric organ and piano for her own enjoyment.

Her retirement has not gone unnoticed. She was given a life membership by the California Parent-Teacher Congress. The Lu Sutton Parent-Teacher Association presented her with a silver bowl.

Of her future plans, she said:

"I want to live the rest of my life in my home, I love it so much."

FOR THE YOUNG AT HEART

Home owners at Greenbrae Marina not only live near the water but also live on it. Any clear day is a valid excuse for sailing and youngsters with their small craft and lots of canvas are quick to take advantage of it. This is a scene on the main lagoon. Some homes face on Corte Madera Creek with access to the bay.

An Injustice To Fawns

Meaning no harm whatsoever, certain tenderhearted travelers in the outdoors spot seemingly abandoned fawns and adopt them.

As to the truth of the matter, such a traveler actually does the fawn a great injustice, for its mother probably wanders nearby, soon to return and take care of her undisturbed offspring.

You might ask why. And the answer lies largely in the fact that the average person can't provide the special care and feeding needed by young deer for survival.

Even if a young deer survives under the hands of humans, it can hardly be called an ideal pet, often becomes bothersome and sometimes downright dangerous.

As the young fawn grows up, it learns to kick vigorously. And its sharp hooves can inflict serious injury on children or adults.

Observe Laws For Safe ,Happy Riding

Bicycling just for thrills ends in some nasty spills. Enjoyment shouldn't come first, with bike riders in traffic — safety should.

Obey all traffic laws to the best of your ability and you'll live for many more days of happy bicycling.

Family Airplane Can Be A Real Vacation Aid

Hundreds of new weekend vacation sports, formerly inaccessible due to distance and driving time, and the fun of the great outdoors can be easily within your grasp via the family airplane.

To a private pilot, a 500-mile jaunt is only a few enjoyable hours flying time. The personal satisfaction of learning to fly a modern "private" airplane is something you will carry with you all your life . and the cost is surprisingly nominal.

Learning to fly is basically relatively simple and certainly requires no superhuman skills. Last year, nearly 150,000 people began flying lessons. They will soon be joining the 750,000 who now enjoy its benefits and convenience. Most had never before even seen the inside of a private aircraft before they started.

So, if you've always envied the man who steps confidently from his car, boards a private airplane and flies away, and if you happen to have the urge to fly, here is how to go about it:

Thousands of schools throughout the country teach flying. Many offer a special "get acquainted" introductory flight lesson for a minimal charge of $5.00.

This is an excellent way to start, since it gives you an opportunity to actually fly an airplane yourself, accompanied by a government-licensed instructor, and base your decision to continue on actual experience.

Your instructor will begin with an introduction to the airplane, explaining what makes it fly and how it is controlled.

After only one lesson, it will be difficult to believe that most student pilots make their first solo flight after just 10-12 hours of dual instruction time but, it's true.

Very soon, all those "meaningless" dials and switches begin to form a pattern, just as automobile instruments do when you learn to drive. As this becomes clear and you can make consistently accurate landings, your instructor will step from the aircraft on some pretext and nonchantly tell you to "take her around the pattern a few times."

Litterbugs Spoil Much Pleasure In The Outdoors

Being in the outdoors revitalizes you with its refreshing change from normal routine.

Sad to say, many individuals spoil this outdoors for others by joining litterbugs or potential firebugs. If they do this consciously or unconsciously, it makes no difference.

Look around you. Do you see the unwholesome sight of litter? Chances are you do. And how do you handle your matches?

Don't you add to the mess. Keep the land clean by tossing your litter in the proper receptacles, not on the ground. Keep the land green by being careful with fire.

Join the good citizens, not the litterbugs or potential firebugs.

Forest fires have no respect for property boundaries, our environment — or your own future.

Cook-Out Secret: Easy Does It

"Easy does it" is the secret of "cook-outs" and successful patio parties. Take steps to save work before and after the meal. The clue to cutting down on cleaning up is new cookware that does double duty for cooking and serving.

Planning ahead will save time and work; you can prepare food, freeze it in this cookware and then place the utensil directly over a flame when you're ready to cook and serve. Detachable handles facilitate cooking, twist off for table service to reveal elegant-looking casserole dishes.

Here are two quick and easy variations on familiar barbecue recipes you may enjoy serving:

SPECIALBURGERS

½ cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon ground mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1½ lbs. ground beef chuck
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
dash Tabasco sauce
8 slices salami (about ½ lb.)
1 large sweet onion, sliced
8 buttered sandwich rolls

Blend mustard, Worcestershire and Tabasco sauce and catsup in 1-pint mixing bowl. Work salt into ground beef with a fork. Shape into 8 flat patties. Brown lightly in melted fat in a skillet placed directly on the grill over glowing heat. Arrange 4 slices salami in a well-greased Pyroceram brand saucepan. Place a browned hamburger on top of each salami slice. Put 1 tablespoon of barbecue sauce on each hamburger. Top each with a slice of onion. Repeat, making a second layer directly over bottom layer. Cover and place on grill for about 25 minutes; uncover and continue cooking an additional 10-15 minutes, until sizzling. Serve in buttered rolls.

SAUTEED TOMATOES

Sprinkle thick-cut tomato slices with salt, pepper, basil, to taste. Place in fat remaining in skillet used to brown hamburgers, and sear quickly. Keep hot on back of grill.

Include People In Pictures

One good rule for vacation pictures is to include people. You can add interest if you have them doing something. Action makes a picture something special, and there are plenty of natural situations to be found while camping that will make the pictures easy to take and fun to look at later on.

There are innumerable camp-life scenes: mother cooking breakfast on the gas stove; father and the children putting up the tent; the kids getting washed in a stream.

The important thing is to have them fit naturally into the theme of the picture. They are your models; use them imaginatively.

QUICK CHANGE SET

Volkswagen's campmobile for 1970 can be an everyday car or an instant resort featuring sleeping quarters, kitchen, dinette and living room for weekend and vacation trips. Optional "pop top" provides standing room, an inside luggage rack and an upper berth for a child.

Some Timely Tips On Towing

Do you own a travel trailer, occasionally tow a horse trailer or tow a boat on a trailer? Engineers offer these timely tips on towing. The same principles apply, no matter how long, how heavy, or how well designed the trailer.

Load a trailer a bit more carefully. Keep the weight centered as near the rear axle as possible. Remember these two rules about trailer loads:

Heavy cargo in the forward section of the trailer will substantially increase the tongue-load. That in turn is harder on spring bars, rear car suspension and general handling.

Too much cargo placed in the extreme rear section of a trailer lightens tongues loads, but this is not a beneficial treatment. Tail-heavy trailers have a tendency to whip violently, to pitch down into chuckholes then to fling back up roughly. They'll fish-tail dangerously.

Distribute your load evenly, but with most of the heavy gear placed slightly ahead of the axle and as close to the floor as practical to store it.

After normal loading is completed, check the attitude of the car-frame and trailer-frame.

They should be riding in a horizontal-level position for smoothest towing results. Don't believe that old nonsense about towing with a "rake" (tongue high). Load-equalizer hitches are a real boon. They function most efficiently when the car and trailer, in a fully-loaded condition, are both riding level.

After a season of storage the little 12-volt dry-cell battery used to power the safety break-away switch is probably weak. Discard it and replace with a new one. It's a few dollars wisely spent. Why take chances? No power, no stop.

Tighten the hitch-ball before leaving home, then check it again after the first 50 miles or so of towing.

Remove the hub caps from the trailer wheels and tighten the lug bolts. If they work loose, the trailer may wobble dangerously.

Stop at the first gas-station on your way out of town and inflate tires to three or four pounds over the usual load. Don't forget the spare tire!

The safety break-away device cannot work unless attached. Double-check to make sure the end of the cable is firmly fastened to some part of the towing vehicle.

After dropping trailer onto hitch-ball, always latch the coupler handle and bolt it for security. (There is usually a hole drilled through coupler for this purpose.)

Couple the wiring systems together, car to trailer. While you stand behind trailer watching have your wife test the turn signal lamps, tail lights, brake stop-light, and trailer running lights. Replace any defective bulbs now.

Test trailer brakes right in driveway! Adjust if necessary.

Adjust side-view mirror for new season.

Pre-trip check list insures against forgotten items when preparing for vacation with camper, travel trailer or motor home.

Keep a check list of all pre-trip services and of the gear you plan to take. This will save time, provide an organized method of remembering things to do before setting out and build enjoyable anticipation for the trip.

Most families start with a basic list and then add to or subtract from it according to the nature of the vacation. The basic list comprises mandatory items for any trip, be it for a day or a month. Subsidiary lists can be divided into specific special-purpose areas.

There is an added bonus to adopting a plan such as this in that you can assign different specialty lists to various members of the family, putting each one in charge of a separate category. This will ease the work load for the head of the household, and will instill a sense of pride, responsibility and accomplishment in even the youngest child.

For instance, you might turn over the check list for pre-trip service of the recreational vehicle to your teenaged son. He would be responsible for seeing to it that the unit was in good traveling condition; the motor tuned, tires safe and correctly inflated, oil, water and battery in order, and the tank filled with gas.

If you will be going fishing, a younger son might see to it that the fishing tackle was collected and ready to load. A daughter might be put in charge of checking cooking utensils, sleeping gear and disposables, such as paper plates, napkins, towels and bathroom tissue.

Another daughter might help her mother plan the food and beverage list. One of the younger members of the family might have the responsibility of food for pets that go along.

You, as "captain of the ship," are in charge of the itinerary, planning the stops and fiugre the best routes. Your job is to coordinate all lists with the children in your "crew," when everything is accomplished.

Specialty lists will vary considerably according to the nature of the vacation. You wouldn't take the same gear to the seashore that you would take skiing, for instance.

As you take different types of trips, keep your old check lists. They will come in handy next time and you will be able to add items you discovered you needed and leave off items which you didn't use.

Keeping a log of your trips is helpful for the same reason.

It will be a reminder of things you might forget over the course of a year, and you can plan your future trips by going over your old ones.

If you make check lists, and follow them, you will eliminate the possibility of forgetting essential items. Keeping a log and check lists should be fun and shared by the entire family. This procedure will teach youngsters order and responsibility, enhancing the enjoyment of your trip.

Camper Components Should Match

To get the maximum enjoyment from a camper, special care must be taken in matching the two major elements: the camper coach that houses the eating, sleeping and bathroom facilities — and the vehicle that carries the coach itself. In most cases each must be purchased from separate dealers.

Perhaps the best way to handle the situation is to decide on the type of camper coach you want, and then look for the proper vehicle to carry it.

Some dealers, for example, offer camper-carrying models with units available in both rear and all-wheel drive.

Each carries a decal that states its limitations in terms of the combined weight of camper coach, gear and passengers.

In addition to this, the camper dealer can provide the facts on specifying the proper special equipment and necessary heavy-duty components in order to assure that the vehicle will operate properly.

Forest fire prevention costs nothing but a little thought. This is the year to think fire safety all of the time.

Heating System Can Stretch Swimming Season

Do you swim in spite of the weather or because of it?

A well designed pool heating system can stretch or even double the swimming season. There are two types: continuous and intermittent. The first holds water at the desired temperature for the full season.

But intermittent pool heaters can save 30 percent of fuel costs or more.

Experts advise heating the water only when the pool is in use. And buy a heater carefully sized to your pool, they say, explaining that the extra cost of a heater that's large enough for your pool will soon be made up by lower fuel costs.

An accurate temperature control is a must, as fuel bills can increase up to ten percent when water temperature rises one degree.

Natural gas pool heaters maintain water temperature accurately.

Lack Of Campgrounds Is Critical

Single most serious obstacle in the growth of the recreation vehicle industry has been the shortage of public and private campgrounds for use by owners of motor homes, truck campers and travel trailers.

Studies of the people who use recreation vehicles show that the vast majority rarely seek out the wilds, much preferring an established camping area where they have access to such niceties as water, electricity, sewage hookup, picnic tables, fireplaces and paved parking areas.

Since most of the new breed of campers are people who have been raised in urban and suburban areas, it is logical that their tastes in travel camping run toward communal comfort rather than toward the more solitary and rough hewn type of wilderness camping.

It has been only recently that there have begun to be enough campsites of all sorts to satisfy public demand. While the number of recreation vehicles has grown at an average rate of 25 per cent annually in each of the last eight years, growth of parks and campgrounds has hovered at the 10 per cent level over the same period. The year 1969 saw a marked improvement in the number of campsites, mostly from the increased number of private campgrounds which have opened, plus the expansion of already existing facilities. The stimulus has been in the private sector, as the investor has become aware of the profit potential of campground ownership and operation.

Last year the total number of campsites accepting recreation vehicles in the U.S. grew from 44,424 to 578,342, an increase of 30 per cent. This growth was mostly in private campgrounds.

The federal budget, otherwise occupied, has not included monies for adequate expansion and construction of new public and national campaing and park facilities.

The boom in use of recreation vehicles shows no signs of abating, however. Therefore, even more must be done to provide additional campsites. With an estimated 2.5 million recreation vehicles on the road today, plus an estimated 7.5 million by 1980, it is obvious that there will have to be continuous growth in both public and private camps and parks in order to keep up with demand.

The day of the campground being 100-per cent booked months in advance is almost over as of now, but it will return if campgrounds and parks do not continue to grow as fast as, or faster than, the recreation vehicle industry.

The burden for this development will continue to fall largely on the private sector to realize the need, and then fill it.

Outdoor Room

There is considerable interest in the home that is designed to combine indoors and outdoors year-round. An "outdoor living room" may be enclosed like a greenhouse, by glass or clear plastic, and air conditioned so that it is always comfortable and plants and flowers thrive winter and summer. In such a room, outdoor activities like gardening can be enjoyed anytime of the year.

During 1969 there were more than 90 thousand wildfires — more than 80 thousand of them were caused by man and his activities.

Shoji Screens

If you plan shoji screens in your garden shelters, modern translucent plastic materials can be substituted for rice paper. Pebbles of varying sizes and colors are often used for decorative ground color, as is raked white sand. Small pools and running water traditionally add interest to oriental gardens. As a final touch, oriental sculptures or such accessories as stone lanterns can be used sparingly.

Be your own fire lookout. Keep a sharp eye out for careless habits that could lead to a wildfire. Think critically of the way your campfire is built, the way you refill a lantern, your vehicle's exhaust system if you are near dry grass or brush.

Can Fill Long Summer Day

The warm-weather months can be the point of no return for busy moms with a vacationing brood of listless youngsters.

"What can we do now, Mom?" is the all too frequent question put to the woman of the house.

Be ready for that query when it comes. Suggest a "Paint-In!" Provide the kids with one or two galvanized steel garbage pails, a can of any exterior cement base or latex paint, and decals, stencils and design cutouts in contrasting colors. Then turn your budding artist loose to decorate the trash pails.

Chances are you'll have the most imaginative "decorator cans" in the neighborhood. Challenge the kids by offering prizes for the most elaborate, funniest, most original, most colorful . . . or have categories such as geometrics and cartoon characters and turn the Paint-In into an all-neighborhood project.

From Bodega Bay To Jenner— Every Mile Is An Adventure

"By the sea, By the sea, By the beautiful sea."

Nowhere on that picturesque nine-mile strip from Bodega Bay to Jenner at the mouth of the Russian River, on the Sonoma County Coast, does the scesery lose its appeal. Quite the contrary. Every mile brings new adventure.

Go north on U. S. 101 until you reach the Washington Street turnoff in Petaluma, which leads west to Bodega Avenue. Follow the latter 27 miles to State Highway 1 and Bodega Bay.

Start at the south end of this almost landlocked bay. A road sign saying "Doran Park" clues you in on leaving State Highway 1 for a pleasant little excursion down a country road. Enjoy skirting the bay's edge, seeing unusual things. Crushed oyster shells and mud flats lie to the right of you, dunes and European beachgrass to the left.

At Doran Beach, which is a sandspit that makes the bay safe for fishing boats, you'll find some of the best rockfishing on our state's north coast.

Back on State Highway 1, you'll soon be impressed by a little village stringing out along it, by Bodega Bay and its small buildings set against rolling hills. Some call it the spitting image of a Mediterranean village. Brightly colored roofs heighten this illusion.

Notice, however, all the fathers and sons on the short piers that jut into the bay and you'l quickly get the message that you're in what is primarily a fishing village.

Now you're on your way to that looming, moss-green, and black-granite promontory, to gigantic Bodega Heard.

Once there, you'll really be feeling on top of the world. You'll be standing on land sighted nearly 200 years ago by the young Spaniard, Juan Francisco de Bodega, aboard the Sonora.

From this great vantage point, do take some pictures. Those of the crescent-shaped inlet make fine trophies for any album.

At the bottom of the scenic hills, enter Salmon Creek, headquarters of Sonoma Coast Beach State Park, the park with all those beaches. A typical one of these displays fantastic cliffs and coves that took angry waves and winds long centuries to carve. And Salmon Creek's south beach provides about the best beachcombing stretch in the whole area.

To your delight, the sight of the sea stays right with you almost until you reach Jenner. Discover the northwest point at Duncans Landing, where at least 25 anglers lost their lives because of unpredictable, towering waves. But stay inside the fence.

Pass beautiful and wide Wrights Beoch, make a side trip to Goat Rock, and again return to State Highway 1. Shortly thereafter the bridge over the Russian River spreads out before you. Turn left at the other end to arrive in Jenner. Note the unique way this town clings to the hillside.

Try this trip some fine sunny day. You'll be happy you did.

Group Flying Clubs Are Becoming 'In'

Group flying clubs are rapidly becoming one of the most popular roads to learning to fly and private airplane travel.

While a great majority of Americans who learn to fly do so on an individual basis through approved flying schools, an increasing number are finding advantages in club participation — namely, each airplane owned by the club gets maximum use by members, substantially reducing operating costs.

Basically, a flying club allows people interested in flying and in learning to fly — through a pooling of organizational and managerial skills — to establish a program that provides high-quality, well-equipped new aircraft at a surprisingly low cost per member.

Guidelines for establishing a flying club may be obtained from several sources. Well researched booklets, such as "Airplane Co-Ownership" (the Cessna Foursome Plan), provide helpful hints on how to get started and what to expect in the way of costs, etc. Some clubs are organized by employees of large companies and others by groups with special common interests.

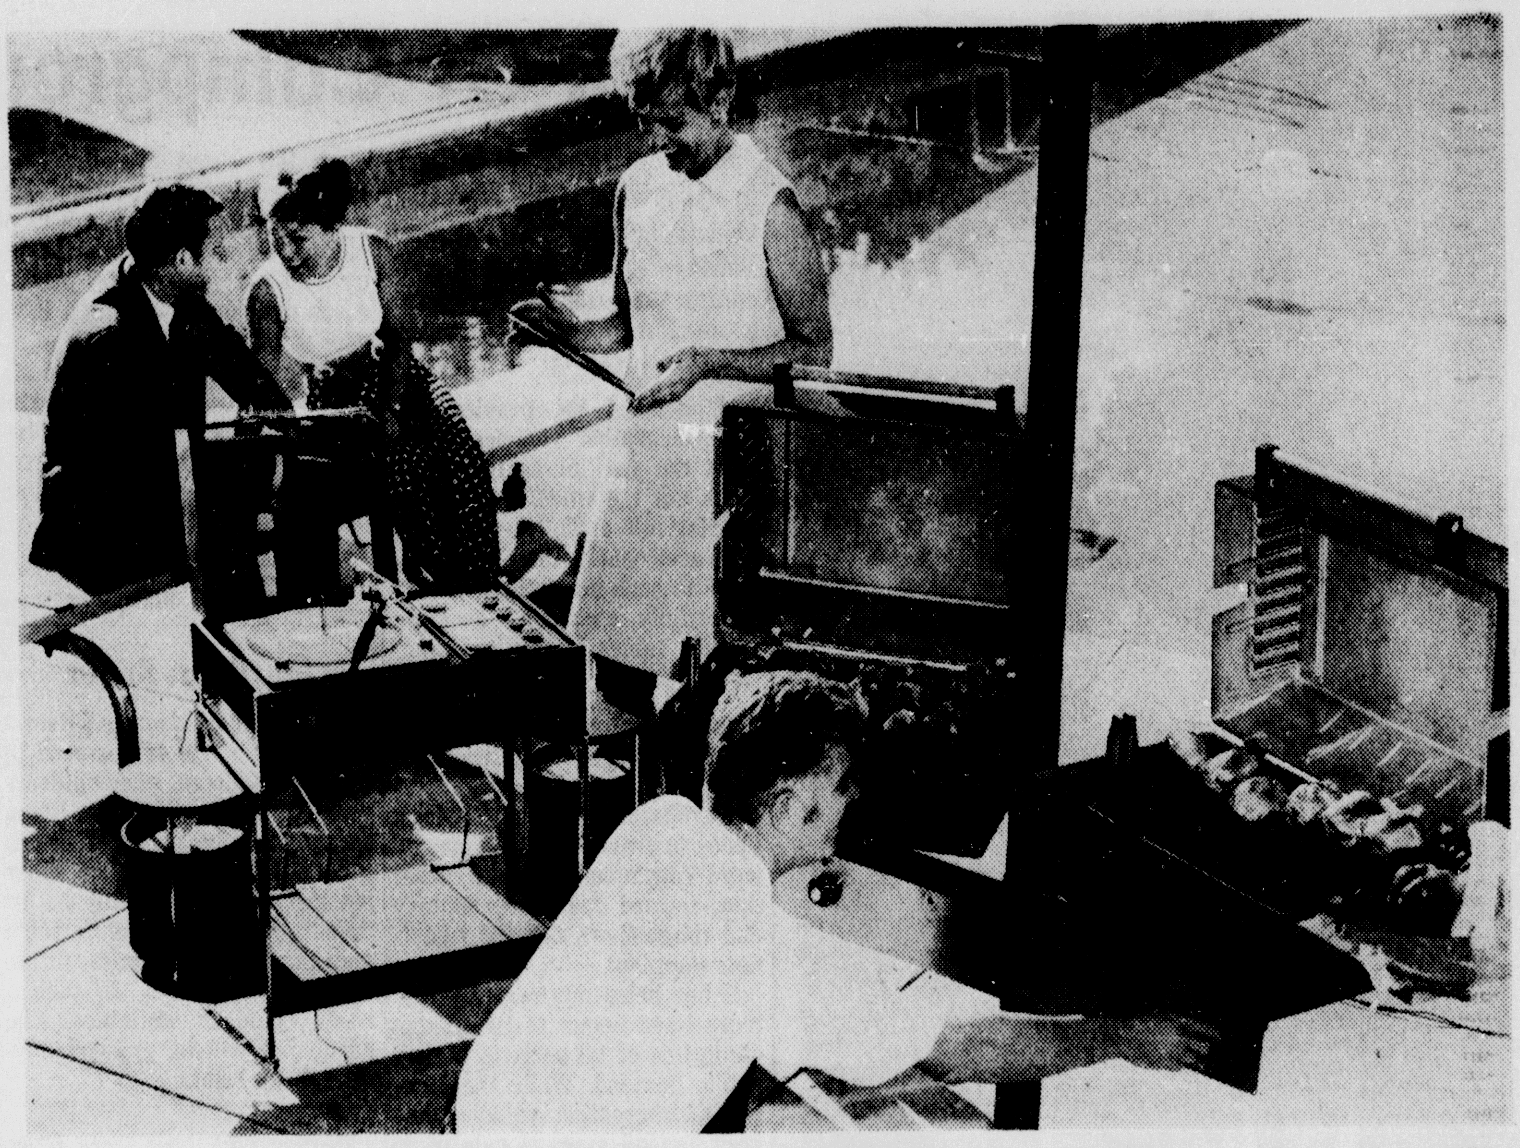
By organizing a new club or participating in an existing group, learning to fly and continuing to fly compares, costwise, to learning and continuing with other activities such as skiing or golf.

Flying clubs vary from very small groups with only one two-passenger trainer-type airplane to large, businesslike organizations employing a full-time manager who supervises a membership of hundreds with 20 or more aircraft — including high performance six-passenger models for cross-country vacation travel.

After learning to fly, continued club membership makes it economical for a pilot to utilize his well-earned license to bring weekends alive for himself and family.

Age is certainly no barrier. Club members range from 17 (the youngest age that one can obtain a pilot's license) to men and women in their 60's.

Today, there are thousands of flying clubs in the nation.



ADDS ZEST TO THE PATIO

The outdoor enthusiast with a flair for fun will find that portable electronic entertainment brings the music of a sidewalk cafe to a barbecue dinner. Later, the big bands or combo recordings set the mood for dancing under the stars.

Surfing Is 'Mad' World Of Its Own

"Here it finally comes," yell excited surfers truly devoted to their sport. With a mad dash, they're off to catch the king, the prized wave of the day, before it breaks.

Others merely watch, supposedly contented, their surfboards simply lying in the sand for show. Go ahead and just sprawl out in the sand, soaking up the rays and daydreaming. Go ahead and just wiggle your toes, sitting back and watching the waves. But you're missing out on unimaginable thrills.

Know what it's like to come really alive? Head for some beach with the proper coastline, one where surf breaks onto a point of land, where reef or rock formations run out from the shore, and you'll find out. But only if you work hard on learning how to surf.

Sure, surfing appears simple. Still, you'll take many spills and nurse many sores before you're ready for the real thing, that of zooming down a fierce eight-foot wave.

Since California waters prove colder than Hawaiian waters, where surfing originated, experienced surfers find paddling on their knees more comfortable. But you, the wise beginner, know enough to first lie down on the board and get the feel of the surf.

Other novices realize the advantage of this, the safety aspects. And they follow through by paddling ahead of a wave that has already broken, the bubbly white foam catching them and carrying them to shore.

Several days, even weeks, may pass before you're capable of passing beyond this "guppy" stage. Someday, though, you too will dash off to catch the king-sized wave of the day. Begin trying your hand at surfing and that prize will be yours before you know it.

Forests mean recreation, jobs, beauty, hunting, fishing, hiking, camping, and a feeling of individual satisfaction and peace to those who enter them. Keep them green and growing. Conditions this year make the threat of wildfires even more ominous than usual.

Water One Of The Vital Resources

Water is one of our most vital natural resources. We can drink it, cruise on it, fish in it, swim in it — and we use vast quantities for industry — to say nothing of commercial navigation. But we can also pollute it so that none of the above may be possible. Let the boatmen of America join the crusade to prevent pollution. Better still, lead it.

High temperatures, winds and low humidity make an explosive combination in our foretss. Don't light the fuse of disaster. This year calls for extreme care.

Outdoor Activities Growing Faster Than Available Places

Do you grumble when your favorite beach is overcrowded, or you can't find a pad at the campground of your choice: Does it seem there ought to be a ski lift or a boat launching ramp closer to home? Or a ballfield, or a swimming pool, or a trail?

Most people do complain about such things these days. The numbers of outdoor activists are growing at a fantastic rate while the areas and facilities for them to enjoy are limited and their growth rate is way below pressures for expansion.

Recent legislation such as the National Scenic Rivers and Trails Acts, and the growing involvement of states and communities with the program of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, indicate determination at the top to enhance the Nations' environment and outdoor recreation opportunities. Implementation of these laws evolves at State and local, as well as at the Federal level.

The Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation suggests that outdoorsmen (and women) can help themselves by getting involved in these and other local and national efforts to balance outdoor recreation supply and demand.

Rarely before in our history have citizen groups been so encouraged to participate in matters of environmental concern, and rarely have their accomplishments been so encouraging.

Citizen victories in preserving open space in our countryside as well as our cities are due, at least in part, to the fact that a wealth of assistance and information is available for everyone who wants to act instead of grumble.

There are some 35 federal agencies with more than 90 specific programs that in some way affect outdoor recreation. Citizen awareness of these programs often spurs both private and public interest in preserving or developing outdoor recreation areas and facilities.

These are briefly explained in a Bureau of Outdoor Recreation publication called "Federal Assistance in Outdoor Recreation," which is available for 35c from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

The programs covered range from financial and technical assistance that might be available for cleaning up a lake, for converting farmland to public or private outdoor recreation areas, or for creating playgrounds in inner cities.

The Nationwide Outdoor Recreation Plan, "The Recreation Imperative," discusses the Nation's outdoor recreation estate, and recommendations to improve it. "From Sea to Shining Sea" suggests many possibilities for citizen action in a broad range of environmental programs. These also are available through the Government Printing Office.

The Safe Way To Tow A Trailer

The vacation season, with its accompaniment of cars towing trailers, is upon us. And with it comes the threat of trailer "whipping," a hazardous series of hard-to-control events that can virtually throw a car and its passengers off the road.

The safe way to control the threat is to make sure, before you start out, that you've done everything you can to keep an emergency from developing.

Two precautions are especially critical:

1. Make sure the total trailer weight isn't more than half the weight of the towing car, and
2. Make sure the trailer tires are kept properly inflated.

Whipping is when the trailer steers violently from side to side and jerks at the car. The fishtailing motion comes from the normal lateral vibration of the car in conjunction with an overtaking force on the car from the trailer.

As the car slows down the trailer tries to push it. The combination tends to jackknife a bit to one side of the other and the car tires and suspension system 'stretch' slightly toward that side. As they rebound, the partial jackknife begins in the other direction.

Depending on the car's natural lateral frequency, its weight, and the trailer weight, there will be some specific speed for the combination at which resonance is most likely. And as the car slows through that critical speed range, the side-to-side motions become more and more violent and can soon throw a car totally out of control.

Without separate trailer brakes, the car's brakes hold the only solution. But they must be used carefully and well. Slow down sharply to get through that critical speed range as quickly as possible. But don't lock up the brakes under any circumstances. You'll lose all steering control and the whipping trailer will mean disaster.

To prevent whipping in the first place, it's easy and important to keep tires well inflated. For the car, cold pressures of up to 32 pounds aren't too high. One common size of trailer tires needs up to 45 pounds of air, and boat-trailer sizes take as much as 65 pounds or even more.

Boat trailers themselves pose a special problem. While they're often light enough to be hauled safely, vacationers may find the inside of the boat offers appealing space for lots of extra cargo — and load it far beyond the safe limit.

Keeping the trailer weight below half that of the car and insuring that there's no unnecessary slack in the hitch linkage are major measures against whipping. A separate brake system for the trailer is similarly helpful.

For Children

When you travel with youngsters, it's wise to take along food and beverages from home. Use a cooler and a beverage jug, for children will be happier eating food they're used to.

What To Call The Fixed Reel

The fantastic but certainly justified popularity today of fixed-spool reels has caused confusion as to what they should be called. There are open-face reels and closed-face reels; and ones that mount above rod handles and ones that mount below.

The open-face reel, mounting under the rod, is a spinning reel. The closed-face reel, having a nose-cone and a push-button, is a spin-cast reel — and while most are mounted on top of the rod some are mounted below.

So you spin with open-face reels, but you spin-cast with closed-face reels.

Tips On Taking Dog On Trip

Take your dog on a recreation vehicle vacation? Why not? Steinbeck did it. If you would travel with your own "Charlie," or Fido, or Rex, here are a few pointers that may help to make yours and his trip more enjoyable.

Plan to stay in privately operated recreation vehicle parks and campgrounds, or else check to be sure that public facilities in a particular state will accept your dog. Many will not. Most require that your dog be kept on leash at all times. In any case your dog should be kept under control and never allowed to run at large.

Make sure that your dog's rabies immunization is up to date. Immunization booster shots are required on an annual basis in some states and in Canada. It is best to comply with this minimum to be safe if you plan to cross state lines or international borders. Be sure to carry the dog's immunization certificate with you. Merely displaying the "rabies tag" on his collar is not enough.

Designate a place for your dog in your motor home or travel trailer that he can "call his own." Put his bed there, if he is used to this comfort. Your pet will feel much more secure and you will be more comfortable when you tell him to go to bed and he knows where to go.

Often a spot under a dinette table is a suitable one. One owner of a 22-foot motor home added a child's expandable safety gate across the back bedroom area, put the dog's bed under the expanded divan. Dog stays in his place and is happy. His folks are happier too.

Don't forget, your dog needs rest stops too. Whenever you stop for fuel, or in a rest area, take your dog for a walk. Not around the service station or rest area landscaping, please, but on the designated dog walks or a nearby vacant lot; not around expensive shrubbery.

Don't leave your dog tethered and unattended in camp; stake him out only when you are nearby. A retractable tether with ground stake is a valuable pet accessory that costs only a few dollars. It allows the pet a bit of freedom, yet reduces the inconvenience of his becmoing entangled in vehicle wheels or nearby trees.

If your dog is a nervous type when traveling, your veterinarian may recommend a mild tranquilizer. Use such medication sparingly.

The motion sickness drug Dramamine ofter works well as a mild tranquilizer and nausea remedy. Your veterinarian can tell you the proper dose for your dog, according to body weight.

To maintain your dog's health and well-being, make every attempt to feed him and walk him at his regular "home" times. Even if you decide to push on for that last two or three hours of driving to your destination, take time to feed Fido when his mealtime comes. He will be happier and so will you.

Keep your dog on his regular diet. A change of food and eating habits is much harder on your pet than it is on you. If you want to try new or different pet foods on your dog, do it at home and let him decide which one he prefers for eating on the road.

Provide drinking water for your dog at all times. A straight sided mixing bowl is ideal for this purpose.

If yours is a big working dog: setter, pointer, Labrador or similar, you'll find he tracks a lot of mud into your "house" after a day afield. No problem. Keep a vegetable brush handy near the vehicle door. A little warm water, a few strokes with the brush on the soles of his feet, a quick wipe with a paper towel or two and your pup is presentable in any company.

Never leave your dog alone in your vehicle unless some ventilation is provided. Electric current may fail and allow inside temperatures to soar in even a well-insulated vehicle. There is always the possibility of gas leaks which could have dire results if some fresh air is not allowed to enter the vehicle.

In summer, or in warm winter climates, protect your dog against insect pests: fleas, ticks, mites, etc. Your veterinarian may recommend a dusting powder or one of the newer pest collars. Flea and tick pills are also available and are said to be very effective.

Your house pet type will be a lot more contented if you take along one or two of his favorite toys. A nylon bone, a ball or a squeaky rabbit may be great for calming canines in unaccustomed surroundings.

Most dogs take enthusiastically to recreation vehicle travel after the first or second trip. One Doxie has added the word "camping" to his vocabulary. Just say the word and he is ready to go. Once out of the house he makes straight for the big rig, yapping for the family to hurry it up and get the show on the road. He knows he will get a lot more attention from his people when all are on vacation, relaxed and enjoying a trip together.

Normally a rather loud-mouthed hound, this daschshund leaves many of his guarding responsibilities at home. He rarely utters a sound unless someone fools around the vehicle after all have retired for the night. Obviously, dogs enjoy vacations too.

Kings Canyon Park Offers Plenty Of Outdoor Freedom

Born free? At any rate you'll feel free as the winddows at Kings Canyon National Park.

Nature really outdid herself at Kings Canyon in Fresno County, transforming an area unfit for man or beast into an area drawing flocks of hikers and campers. She scooped out steep canyons. She created high mountain meadows.

You'll feel free as the trees grow anywhere in the park. But when you first enter the canyon, the majesty of giant sequoias holds you captive. Your mind can't seem to wander away from them.

Equally engrossing, an array of picturesque mountains takes your breath away, with some of the peaks rising to 14,000 feet. And among the peaks are those sparkling mountain lakes and tumbling mountain streams of Kings Canyon.

You'll feel free as the river flows near the park's entrance. Stop by these lovely silver cascades of Kings River. And if you've a mind to, plunge in and take a refreshing dip. Swimmers just love these waters. So do fishermen. Kings River hosts an abundant supply of large trout.

If you're a camper at heart, the spacious Cedar Grove campgrounds in the vicinity of Kings River certainly won't disappoint you. Here man gave the modern touch in the accommodations that suit each individual's taste, from open grounds to cabins.

See the rest of the park on foot or on horseback. Numerous riding and hiking trails wind upward and upward into the High Sierra. Along the way, a real treat might be in store for you. Bear, deer, mountain lions, and other wildlife frequently roam the desolate areas.

Jumping-off place for pack trips and hikes into the High Sierra is Cedar Canyon. Rugged trail pounders risk getting calluses by venturing along the Copper Creek or Granite Pass trails, carrying about 35 pounds of supplies on their backs.

Gateway to the High Sierra wilderness is General Grant Grove. Before the 1940 creation of Kings Canyon National Park, this grove made up the former General Grant National Park plus the Redwood Mountain area. Today tourists rate it among the most scenic wilderness areas.

Want to be free? Then from Fresno take Highway 180 east for about 90 miles until you reach Kings Canyon National Park.

BONAIR II

LIGHTWEIGHT BOATING — This model, complete with seats, wooden transom and windshield is typical of the remarkable inflatable boats on the waterways today. This is a case of instant boating. This sport has long been popular in Europe.

Rough It With Mink Sleeping Bag

Long before the American camping craze began, the great outdoors belonged to that hardy minority willing to endure the hardships which go hand in hand with the rewards of a camping holiday. Comforts were to be shunned at any cost, under penalty of disgrace to those who refused to "rough it" all the way.

That kind of camping might have been great for Tarzan or Nanook of the North, but for the majority of Americans it was just plain uninviting — for many a "tenderfoot" it was much too real.

So American ingenuity went to work on a transformation of camping. As a result, now even the little lady of the house — traditionally camping's loudest critic — can be almost as comfortable in Yellowstone National Park as in a luxury hotel in New York City.

For the large family planning a trip, there's a mobile unit that sleeps eight and can be constructed with just a few turns of a crank. It can contain, depending on what you can afford to pay, electrical outlets, a daybed and a self-storing screen door.

But if you'd prefer to rough it modern, there's a mink-lined sleeping bag for Mother. And for Dad, there's a metal match that strikes against almost any rough surface.

Be sure to take an adequate supply of essentials. Start with a can of insect repellent and ointments for burns and scratches. And bandages, iodine and, just in case, a snakebite antidote.

Hot Air Is Latest Rage In The Pleasure Boating Field

Those salty seagoing yarns aside, hot air is the latest rage in pleasure boating.

This air, used to inflate non-rigid boats that are at most distant cousins of the famous life rafts of World War II, provides "instant boating" that has added new convenience and fun to millions of recreation-minded citizens.

Inflatable boats (never call them "rafts," experts caution) have been long popular in Europe. There they are used for everything from cruising to water skiing, from racing to hauling cargo.

European inflatable manufacturers (most of them French) have cast their collective eye on the tremendous North American recreational market. Such brand names as Zodiac, Lidair and Avon are now becoming commonplace on our waterways.

Today's "rubber" boat is no longer made of rubber, but rather of hard wearing synthetics capable of withstanding the unique stresses and strains dished out to the typical pleasure craft.

In size, they vary from one-man rowboats to the 20-man carriers favored by armed forces. Most popular models range from five to about 12 feet, and carry up to three people.

All inflatable boats get their go-power from outboard motors. Most take the smaller engines (25 horsepower and less), although the larger models, often with a windshield and remote steering controls as standard equipment, can accommodate outboards up to 85 h.p.

Great advantage of the inflatables (beside their low maintenance costs) is their compactness. Most of these hulls weigh from 20 to 100 pounds, and when deflated fold into small carrying cases not much larger than a typical suitcase.

Radio Needs Little Care

Portable radio get dunked? Leave it out in the rain?

You can dry your transister radio out and get tip-top performance if you use a little care and a few simple steps recommended by radio engineers.

First, don't turn the receiver on! Take out the batteries and quickly sponge out as much water as possible. Rinse out any salt water with fresh clean water to guard against oxidation of the electronic components. A sponge or towel will help get out excess water.

Now fan the radio and place it in a warm place or in the open sunlight where a light breeze might blow, just until it's dry. Watch out for intense heat which can cause damage to the case or components.

When all the battery contacts are clean, return the batteries to the radio, snap it shut and turn the set on!

How To Enjoy Indoor Picnic

Forget the fear of the weatherman spoiling your picnic. Here's a picnic for indoors or outdoors: picnic ham steak as the main course, with country style peach pie for dessert.

Counting one thick slice of boneless, ready-to-eat ham (about ½ or ¾ inch thick) and about ½ cup crushed potato chips for each serving, spread ham slices lightly with mustard, then sprinkle generously with crushed potato chips.

Wrap each ham steak in a double thickness of heavy foil; seal tightly with double folds. Refrigerate until ready to grill. At picnic time, heat wrapped ham steaks on grill until steam begins to escape, about 15 or 20 minutes. Open wrap before serving. Serve with additional potato chips and pickles.

'Highway Hypnosis' Is A Major Worry

Summertime, and the driving isn't so easy.

Like most everyone, you're probably counting on covering more territory this summer, on cutting travel time by using superhighways. Sad to say, these newfangled highways can make motorists victims of certain diseases, those ruthless, devious, and catastrophic diseases that boost our traffic death toll.

"Highway hypnosis" falls in this category, bringing trouble to many motorists. Superhighway engineers plan much to break the monotony of long-distance driving, building gentle curves, posting markers to stimulate the eye. Still, the humming of tires and the purring of the motor play with a motorist's state of mind, close it to quick emergency thinking, open it to "highway hypnosis."

Keep your mind active, the main way to fight this disease and to cure it as well. Do so by turning the radio to lively music that defies anyone to become drowsy. Some simple games allowing clear concentration on driving, perhaps counting cars with the current fad of daisies pasted on their bodies, should prod your alertness. Never fix your eyes on the road.

Another disease, "velocitis," alarms drivers on superhighways, arises from the fact that continual high-speed driving dulls one's judgment of how fast one's car is really going. Should a driver suffer from "velocitis," he may be doomed to smashing into another car's tail end or to rolling over on a soft shoulder.

Don't you be doomed. Take those preventive measures of glancing frequently at the speedometer and varying your speed occasionally. Reduce that speed gradually, too, for a stop or turn. Whatever you do, don't think you're too big or too strong for taking periodic rest halts along the way.

On long trips, our standard rules of the road, including passing with care, no jumping of lanes, and following at a safe distance, take the strain out of your shift behind the wheel. Summertime, and the driving on superhighways can be easier, the diseases nil. But you must help yourself.

Wash And Ware

Best wash and wear results, at home and when using coin-operated machines during your travels, come from following instructions. Wash whites in hot water, colored things in warm water. If you prefer, take along your favorite detergent.

Next Time Try A Leisurely Picnic

Perhaps you would like a sandwich-and-fruit menu. Put the children in charge. They'll enjoy packing th breat container. Try raisin, pumpernickel, whole wheat, rye or French bread to give cold cuts a lift. Lettuce, sliced tomatoes and relishes, can go along, too, in separate containers.

Now's Time To Clean Up Family Pool

With warm weather not too far off, swimming pool owners should do a bit of advance thinking about assuring that the coming season be one of all enjoyment in the pool with no maintenance problems. Few swimming pool owners, however, know as much as they should about pool maintenance. Yet this knowledge can save time and money, and increase fun and safety.

Probably the most important single aspect of swimming pool maintenance is proper filtration. That crystal clear, tantalizingly cool-looking water most people picture when they think about pools simply can't be achieved any other way. Fortunately, today's filters operate with ease and economy — if you know a bit about maintenance.

Two basic types of pool filters are used: Sand and diatomite. Both are effective, though the diatomite units are more compact, offering greater efficiency in less space and more operational flexibility.

Also, during World War II, the U.S. Army learned that diatomite filters remove many undesirable organisms from water. Diatomite filters may be portable or installed permanently. Proper maintenance of either type revolves around three fundamentals: Care of filter and elements, proper use of filter aids and chemicals, regular, thorough cleaning.

Diatomite filters must be precoated with a filter aid to prevent clogging of the filter elements. This is done by calculating a slurry, or mixture of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a coating about one 16th of an inch thick on the filter screens. The slurry should contain one 10th of one pound of diatomite for each square foot of filter area.

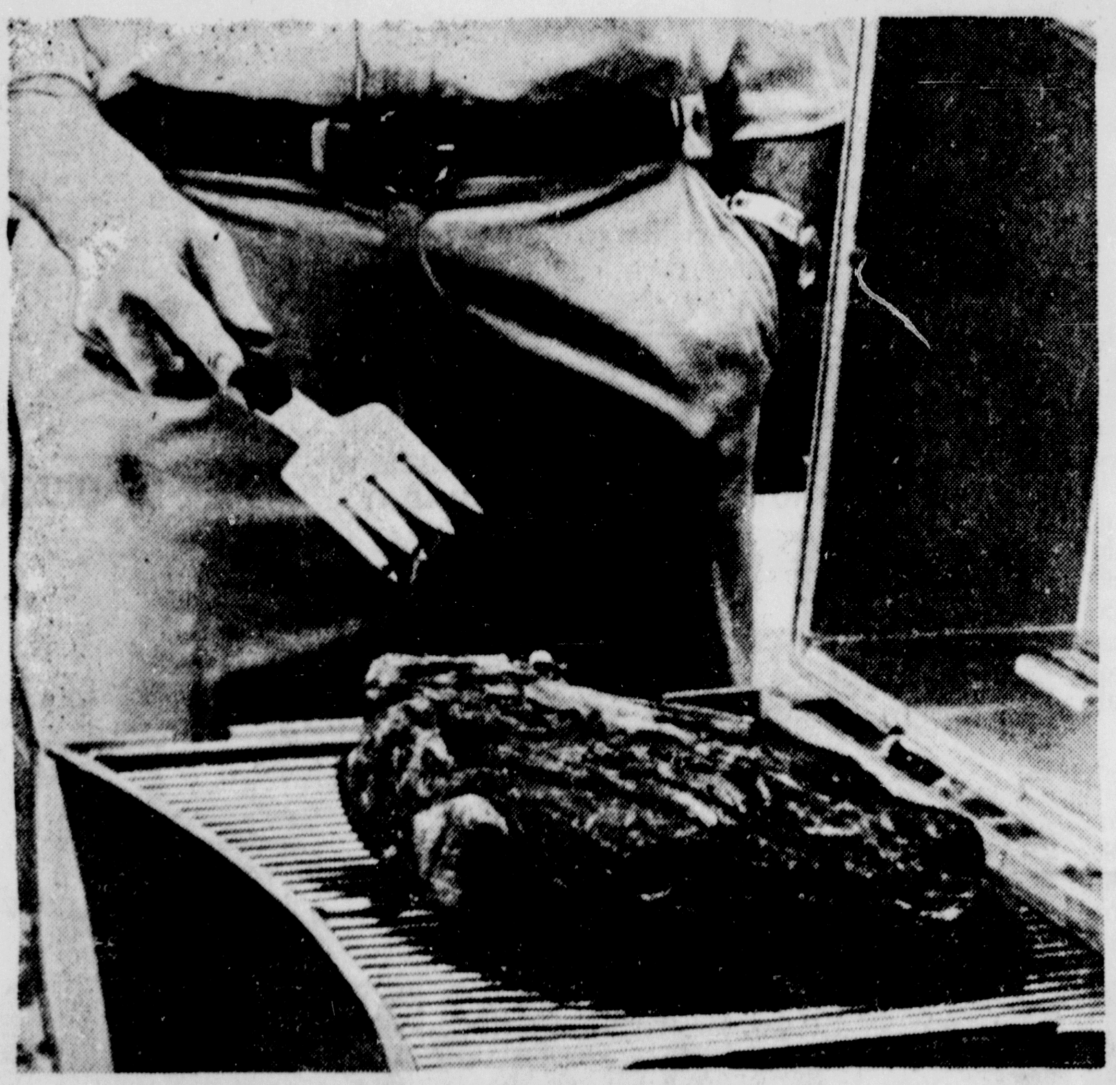
During the filtration cycle, which lasts from three to ten days, it is desirable that diatomite be regularly added to prevent slimes and other dirt from clogging the precoat layer. This can be done by placing a supply of diatomite into the filter's body feed apparatus, which will "dole it out" as needed during the filtration cycle.

The third step, cleaning the filter can be done by backwashing, sluicing, or spraying.

Backwashing is the most common method for cleaning the pressure type of diatomite filter. In backwashing, water is pumped in a reverse direction through the elements and discharged to waste.

Sluicing or spraying is the usual method for cleaning vacuum-type diatomite filters. The filter is drained and the caked material is then washed off the elements by spraying or sluicing with a hose and nozzle.

Proper precoating, cleaning, and chlorination will prevent short filter cycles and high filter pressures caused by the clogging of the element. When the elements do get plugged up, they are cleaned in one of two ways: by hand-scrubbing or by pumping a suitable solution into the filter and soaking the elements.



MINIMUM BARBECUE FUSS — A juicy steak can be broiled outdoors without charcoal problems. New gas-fired grills with ceramic briquets give even heat and are easily cleaned.

Changes At Last In Outdoor Cooking

Cooking outdoors has been an American tradition for the past 10,000 years.

The first All-American Cookout was held by the Indians who migrated to this continent more than 100 centuries ago.

The reason for cookouts 10,000 years ago was simple. There just wasn't any indoors.

Today, however, as the nation strives to preserve its natural resources from being overwhelmed, cookouts become an ever more popular way for people to enjoy the great outdoors.

Millions of modern-day Americans are participating in the pleasure of eating outdoors (and more are being added to these numbers each year) in their own backyards as well as on picnics and while on fishing, hunting and camping trips.

What modern home today is complete without provision for a cookout on the patio?

Although outdoor cooking has been with us for centuries, methods changed little from those used in primitive times, until recent years.

Where the Indians used hardwood fire, so too have many latter day outdoor chefs. The first outdoor chefs used flint to ifnite their fires. Until recently the only improvement over the flint was a match.

All of this has changed with the introduction of the gas-fired outdoor grill — a model that can be permanently set up in the backyard, or one that can be taken afield.

The one in the backyard may be hooked up to the gas line that serves the home. The model that goes afield is operated by natural L-P gas fed directly to its burners.

Many gas grills also have pilot lights similar to those on modern kitchen ranges for instant ignition of fire.

In addition to these modern convenience improvements, gas grills have the ability to begin cooking after a warm-up period of less than five minutes.

The primary reason is even infra-red radiant heat. The heat is produced when ceramic or firebrick briquets are heated by the gas fire producing an intense, even heat to provide the infra-red waves that create the searing action associated with grilled meat, fowl and fish.

TAKE A PICTURE OF IT — Memories as fresh as the fish caught on that last camping trip are preserved if a camera is along to record the details. In the past 10 years or so the camera has become one of the most important items to pack for the family vacation whether it be to the mountains or to a big city for a day's outing.

Take Camera Along To Record That Fish

Daniel Boone went camping, and he never took a camera along, neither did Davy Crockett.

They didn't have to. A century later a producer showed up to dramatize their deeds for television.

While your camping trip may also go down in history, there's no need to wait 100 years to relive it.Take a camera.

Remembering your trip without pictures is like sight-seeing in a fog — blurry at best. What better vacation souvenir than a photo story of your trip? When camping in a national park or in your own discovered wilderness, remember the advice of the National Park Service — "take nothing but pictures, leave nothing but footprints."

Picture-taking also enables the family to enjoy the trip more — not just its memories. It is a creative outlet for the whole family. With automatic cameras requiring no more skill than a click of the shutter, even children can capture the beauty of the moment — a squirrel and his acorn, a flower in bloom, or dad landing a prize catch from the lake.

The best way to bring your camping trip back on film is to pick high spots of your trip and integrate them into a picture-story of fun in the Great Outdoors.

Perhaps you're camping in a scenic park. A natural opening shot would be the signpost at the park's entrance with the children looking at it. (They will be reading the sign, not smiling at the camera.)

Other shots in your picture story could be the family setting up camp, children doing the chores, bathing in the stream, and day-to-day activities like hiking through the park, swimming, boating, etc.

One last bid of advice: Take as many pictures as you like, and then add to the number. The picture you don't take will never be seen again. When shooting an especially interesting scene, take at least three shots — one from a distance, another from middle distance and a third from up close, as close as you can get.

Keep shooting in any weather. There are going to be days when the sun doesn't shine, but don't let this stop you. Picture-taking opportunities seldom repeat themselves. Take that picture even on a dismal day.

Messrs. Crockett and Boone couldn't take cameras along to record their adventures. You can. Do!

Don't Neglect Barbecue Grill

Don't neglect your barbecue grill. Grease, left on will harden. Scrub it with a solution of three tablespoons of sal soda concentrated per bucket of hot water. Accumulations of grease can be removed if you use sal soda dry as a scourer, applying it with a damp brush. Then rinse.

Make Cubes Early

If you're planning a patio party and want to hedge against running out of ice, make cubes ahead of time and put them in plastic bags in your freezer.

PLINKING CAN BE FUN — An air rifle and Dad's steadying hand will help Junior score a hit. Around camp, plinking can be fun for the entire family. For those not in the know — plinking is an informal brand of marksmanship that provides as much fun from chosing unusual targets as hitting them.

The Patio Deserves Your Best

Life goes on indoors in winter and, in fact, a special area inside each home is traditionally set aside for its pursuit: the living room.

In spring and summer, however, living becomes more of an outdoor endeavor, logically practiced in an "outdoor living room," better known as a patio.

Just as in the foul-weather family gathering place inside, the patio deserves decorative attention. It should have a motif all its own that, at the same time, fits in with the over-all decor of your home.

However, unlike its indoor counterpart, an "outdoor living room" is subject to the constant and gruelling punishment of the elements, making the choice of durable, weather - resistant surfacing materials a must.

Unglazed ceramic mosaic tiles and quarry tiles are among the most popular patio surfacings. Ceramic mosaics and quarries are available in such a wide variety of designing colors, sizes, shapes, textures and designs that an endless number of imaginative decors is possible. At the same time, these rugged fired clay surfacing materials are completely weather-resistant. Their colors won't fade under the ice of winter or the heat of summer.

Check Clothing

If your camping clothes and sleeping bags were put away clean but need freshening before you hit the road this year, fluff them up in your gas dryer at medium heat. This will help rid them of wrinkles and any musty smell from winter storage.

Plinking Is An Outdoor Favorite

Despite an endless variety of activities to occupy the camper, there is one that, once discovered, always proves a favorite.

Plinking — that informal brand of marksmanship that provides almost as much fun from choosing unusual targets as hitting them — is as natural a part of camping as sleeping bags and mess kits.

Few veteran campers, especially those who venture from the beaten paths, consider their gear complete without some sort of "plinking" gun — usually a 22-caliber rifle — and several boxes of target ammo.

Yet, plinking, far from being a pastime reserved for the wilderness, is also enjoyed by countless family campers. Even at community campsites, where the use of a 22-caliber rimfire rifle would be inadvisable, an air gun will serve as an excellent substitute for the plinker.

Single-shot types are best for beginners and youngsters. Practically noiseless and virtually recoil-free, these pellet-firing air guns can be used for close-range plinking around camp, without disturbing neighboring campers.

Anything from tin cans and paper cups to bottle caps and pine cones will suffice for targets. With a little inventiveness, a fascinating array of progressively smaller targets, set up in gallery fashion, can challenge the skill of every plinker in the family for hours on end.

Whether plinking around camp with a 22-caliber or an air rifle, a few simple rules should be followed: Always select a suitable backstop, such as a hill or earthen bank, to set targets against; never shoot over water, and never use bottles, jars or anything made of glass for targets.

Plinking will fill those spare hours in camp with loads of relaxing and satisfying fun. Once you try it, you'll make plinking a must for all your camping trips.

Gas Grill Cooking

The average family cooking outdoors on a gas grill will use one or two 20-pound cylinders of LP gas during the summer.

Protect Home If You Travel

"There's no place like home." If you want to avoid the shock of returning to a burglarized home or one that has gone up in smoke, follow these simple tips:

Before you leave on your extended motoring trip, inform the police where you can be reached in an emergency and how long you'll be gone. Inform a friendly neighbor, too, and ask him to do you the favor of watching for prowlers loitering suspiciously near your home.

Do stop regular deliveries, such as milk and newspapers. Have the post office hold or redirect your mail. And don't forget to arrange for regular lawn mowing, either.

Now for the shutting off of gas and water at the main valves, of electricity at the master switch, unless you plan to keep the refrigerator running.

Lock all windows and doors, too, but don't lower shades. Make sure that what you return to will really be "home, sweet home."

Common Sense

A little common sense and courtesy go a long way toward keeping farmlands free of posted signs; hunt like the gentleman every sportsman should be.

Some Undisturbed Beauty Is Still Left Within California

Wherever countless tourists go, they throw their hands up in despair and complain of how man has spoiled the former beauty around him, has replaced lovely trees and other scenic sights with those modern structures of steel.

In spite of commercialism sinking in on many once charming sites, there's still some undisturbed beauty left in California. Countless tourists just don't know where to do.

Man does visit the wilderness areas. But man never stays.

Whenever you have a hankering for unspoiled nature at her best and time on your hands as well, go to one of the 16 wilderness areas located in California's 17 national forests, areas that have been preserved for your enjoyment.

Like most people, you probably desire challenge. Without a doubt, the wilderness challenges your outdoor skills to the fullest.

There are no roads in the state's wilderness areas, making motorized travel out of the question. So better look elsewhere in the national forests for taking those leisurely sightseeing trips by car. Some designated sections even have auto tours.

To get around in the wilderness areas, however, you have to use your own two legs or the four legs of a horse. If you prefer the latter, you can rent a horse at any of the 50 pack stations in the national forests.

Either way, on foot or horseback, you'll have the time of your life in these last frontiers of America. All the solitude you want can be found there, not to mention the enlightening experience.

Choose the Minarets Wilderness on the boundary of the Inyo and Sierra national Forests, for example, and it's truly a sight to behold, what with its majestic trees swaying ever so gently and its picturesque mountains standing ever so proudly. Batter Peak lies to the right of it and Mount Ritter to the left.

As if that's not enough territory for you to cover, over half a million other acres of national forest land have come into consideration as possible additions to the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Man does visit the wilderness areas. But man never stays.

Mendocino Offers An Ideal Vacation

On a northern California promontory where Big River meets the Pacific Ocean at State Highway 1, stands the town of Mendocino with its many sharp contrasts to the modern structures of the big city.

With old New England-type homes complete with gables and dormer windows, Mendocino displays little of what you can call modern, but bears a striking resemblance to Atlantic seaboard towns.

Of particular interest here are the many fine examples of Victorian architecture, especially the well-preserved MacCallum House.

Note also the quaint places of worship, such as one of the oldest Protestant churches still in continuous use in California.

No matter if it's your first or tenth visit to Mendocino, you'll enjoy its scenic vistas, its rugged coastline. Most of all, however, you'll be impressed by its weathered homes that provide such a sharp contrast to modern big-city structures.

During 1969 there were 91,843 wildfires in California with 80,753 of them caused by man and his activities.

Youngsters Lure Their Parents Into Outdoors

The combination of outdoor recreation's booming popularity and the urgings of adventurous young sons — and daughters too — are luring more and more "stay-at-home" parents out of the living room and into the woods, along stream banks, and to the shoreline.

And whatever the duration of the trip, whether it be a day's outing, a week-end, or a glorious long vacation, every trip into the great outdoors works up hearty appetites.

This means take along food is required. Almost every meal in the outdoors is either a picnic or a cookout. How best and most conveniently and safely to take the food along — and what foods — is mostly a problem for mom.

Salads and gelatin desserts prepared at home in advance, for example, can be taken out of an ice chest for instant serving.

Pickles, carrot sticks, celery, and olives, add touches of flavor to any outdoor lunch or dinner. The condiments require only a little space in the ice chest.

The weekend woodsman can start the day off with a tasty breakfast of pancakes, bacon, and hot coffee. Dry pancake mix carried from home can be prepared in an instant. Just add eggs, milk, and oil, pour directly into the skillet, and you have a breakfast to get father and son up and away.

For light breakfast eaters, be sure to take along a variety of dry cereals. Add milk and sugar — instant breakfast!

Veteran woodsmen and first-time pioneers agree that an ice chest is a recreation item that is a necessity. Utilizing the ice chest most efficiently involves some interesting techniques.

It's an easy task to simply load the ice chest with a sack or two of ice under or on top of perishables. The food will keep fresh . . .but it can become soggy from melted ice. Pools of water can form in the bottom of the chest creating the task of emptying out first the food, then the chest, cleaning the chest, and then putting everything back together again.

Instead of dumpting loose ice, put in a separate container or use several small containers and place them in different positions. Save yourself the trouble of moving loose ice around until everything fits by keeping the ice in special containers.

The cold air necessary to keep food fresh can be positioned where you want it — without the fuss and bother of shifting melting ice cubes about.

In Dishwasher

Easiest way to clean the grids of your gas grill is in the dishwasher, but don't let them go through the drying cycle. If food particles remain after washing, they will bake on.

Take The TV Set Along This Vacation Trip

You don't have to miss your favorite program, history making news or television specials if you take your TV set on vacation this year.

Television sets today are compact enough to fit into luggage compartments, and keep you in touch whether you are at a lodge, lake cottage or in a trailer-camper.

Most campers are fitted with an outdoor cable that hooks up to outlets in our trailer parks. Marinas also have AC current outlets within reach of a boat's berth.

Save your radio or TV packing box as protection from salt mist and road bumps.

Fish And Photography Make Very Fine Team

Almost everyone remembers the old fisherman's tall tale that goes something like this: when the fisherman up in the north woods was asked about the biggest fish he had ever caught, he said, "Well, we never really weighed the fish — but the picture, alone, weighed six pounds!"

There is no prouder fishing trophy than a good snapshot of the day's catch. Closeups work best (and if you want to fudge a little on the size of the fish you can hold the stringer of fish close to the camera and they'll appear larger).

For Cooking Only

A modern gas range in your camper, trailer or mobile home is a blessing, but remember it's for cooking only. Never use any gas range for heating, whether you're at home or out camping.
